WILSON RECORD.

What honest issue can be raised against the re-election of President Wilson and the continuation of the Democratic party in power?

With Germany having yielded to the demands of the American government, conceding all the points raised by President Wilson in defense of American rights and for the upholding of American honor, can there be any question of the efficacy of the handling of foreign affairs?

Will the Republican party contend that despite the fact that President Wilson won a great diplomatic victory, not merely for the people of the United States, but for civilization itself, this country nevertheless should have gone to war with Germany?

When President Wilson gave the order for the American troops to enter Mexico to break up the landish bands which had been causing the loss of life and property along the border, the Republican leaders in congress applauded the firm action that was taken. It was agreed by the Republican leaders in the senate and house that no other action was possible.

So far the opposition party has confined itself to vague and general statements that the handling of foreign affairs will be made an issue. The count will have to be more specific or else it will be given short shrift in the court of public opinion. President Wilson's statesmanship has forced the respect of the world and the knowledge of his reserve power, the realization that a united nation stood behind him, have kept the country at peace while millions of men are being sacrificed on the battlefields of Europe, because such statesmanship in Europe was lacking when most needed.

Can preparedness be made an issue? Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, returning from a conference with Co. Roosevelt, advocated on the floor of the senate an army of 250,000 men. The army reorganization bill of the Democratic party, as finally passed by the two branches of congress, calls for a regular army of 211,000 men. Is there any room for an issue here?

Secretary Daniels, of the Navy Department, established the naval consulting board, headed by Thomas A. Edison, so that the scientists of the country might be mobilized for national defense. The present administration likewise has established an industrial mobilization committee, to inventory and aid in the development of all American industries, for strength in time of peace as well as in time of war.

The administration naval bill, recently introduced in the house, carries an appropriation of $241,000,000. This is an increase of more than $91,000,000 over last year's appropriation. It is the greatest measure for the naval preparedness ever advanced by any administration. In addition to the five new battle cruisers, of the most modern type, there is provision for submarines and all other warships deemed necessary, together with an experimental laboratory, a real aviation corps, and every other modern weapon of defense.

As a result of the work of the Democratic administration, there will be complete military and naval preparedness, without militarism. There will be the maximum of efficiency, with the minimum of expense.

If the Republicans are to make preparedness an issue, they will have to be more specific than they have been in the past. Even though they had done their part, when they were in control of the government, and could now point to their own record, which they admittedly are unable to do, they would have to be more specific with respect to the defects of the present administration's program of preparedness.

Industrial defense has been provided by President Wilson's administration. It will be found in the new banking and currency law, in the administration's tariff commission bill, in the anti-dumping bills and other measures behind which the whole weight of the administration is being thrown. The Democratic platform will assure industrial defense, rational, reasonable, permanent. The present nationwide prosperity, which seems to give such concern to the Republican party, will be amply safeguarded, both with respect to domestic business and exports, without further agitation, upheaval or uncertainty is President Wilson and the Democratic party are retained in power.

MISFITS

It is a good thing that we can easily forget the past in the matter of weather.

Alas, how our fondest ideas get shattered. We had all along supposed England had the greatest navy in the world.

The trouble with England it hasn't been keeping pace with Germany since the war began.

Germany licked England mostly because of an equipment built up since the war began, modern implements of warfare.

The lumber biz. ought to be good now, created by the enormous demand for T. R. timber for big sticks.

The big steel trusts are getting in their work.

One of them sends a circular to the newspapers almost daily, evidently seeking free advertising.

After robbing the country for years this is salacious.

There is only one Woodrow Wilson, said the speaker at the high school commencement.

Almost forgotten—Charlie Chaplin.

"Please, Mr. Shea," said the little girl from the house next door, "mother says would you be kind enough to come over and take care of baby for a little while?"

"Why, certainly," replied Mrs. Shea. "Is your mother ill?"

"No'm, but she's writing a paper on 'The Proper Care of Infants,' and she's afraid she won't be able to get it done in time to read before the Mother's club tomorrow afternoon." —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

give you a hearty whack. The things they say all make you feel just like you are a king; They listen and they laugh right out when you say anything. "There's nothing in the world too good for you," that's what they say; They tell you that the world will talk about you some fine day; They go and kill the fatted calf whenever you heave in sight; They spread the pleasant salve on you and surely spread it right; They're proud to know you, yes they are, and flatter as they should. Your friends besiege you day and night When you are Makin' Good.

no one heaves in sight; You wonder where the friends have gone you used to know so well; You somehow miss the hearty laugh when your best yarns you tell. Nobody slaps you on the back or treats you like a king; You cannot find an audience; you feel the dreadful sting Of failure in the atmosphere and cannot tell just why The flattering friends of yesterday are wont to pass you by. You miss the glad acclaim they gave, the ever welcome shout; For very few will stick to you When you ar Down and Out. —Milwaukee Daily News.
