PORTLAND WEEKLY STOCK MARKET REPORT

Cattle-There were nearly a thousand head of cattle on today's market. The entire days' receipts were California with the exception of a car of natives and a few odds and ends. Mexicans went at $8 for steers and $7 for cows. Natives went as high as $8.35. Vealers and bulls had little activity. Market was steady.
Hogs-With 4500 hogs on today's market, price sagged considerably. $8.50 was the best top and bulk $8.35 to $8.40. Today's receipts were the largest single days offerings for several months. Market slow.
Sheep-There was no over supply in today's receipts. Not quite 700 were offered and nothing sensational was developed. All kinds are quoted steady.

PORTLAND CROP EXPERT MAKES N. W. REPORT

Declares That Cool Weather Has Greatly Retarded Crop Conditions.

By Hyman H. Cohen (Written for the United Press) Portland, Or., June 7.-Weather too cold.

These three words tell the exact condition of the 1916 grain crops in the states of Oregon, Idaho and Washington.

From practically every section of the Pacific Northwest, special crop correspondents announce that weather conditions during the month of May have continued against the cereal crops.

This perhaps is not the most serious drawback to the three states producing even an average crop of wheat this season. In the first place the acreage is so greatly reduced below the normal of recent seasons that even were weather conditions ideal, the total crop could scarcely be up to the average.

The protracted rainy period during the early fall, the entire winter and spring months, gave little opportunity for farmers to get in their normal acreage of grain. In some sections less than half the normal acreage is shown.

As a general rule the light land sections are showing the best crop condition this season. The Columbia River section of Oregon is especially fortunate considering the standing of the crops elsewhere. In the light land sections of Umatilla county, Oregon, and Walla Walla county, Washington, the prospects are far better than in the so-called heavy land sections.

Weeds are giving more than the usual amount of trouble in the wheat fields of the three states, the damage being especially noticeable in the heavy land sections.

As a rule the showing of spring wheat is much better than in the winter planting and both oats and barley are showing a better condition than wheat.

"MATRIMONY" AND "STOLEN MAGIC" AT THE ROLFE

When a man tires of his wife and seeks diversion in every pretty face that he meets and she still loves him, what's she going to do about it? Thomas H. Ince and C. Gardner Sullivan's new play, "Matrimony," which will be given in the Triangle program at the Rolfe theatre tonight, gives Miss Julia Dean the opportunity convincingly to answer this query. She certainly arouses the neglectful husband (Howard Hickman) by her open flirtations with his men friends.

Admirers of the delightful satiric art of Raymond Hitchcock, who enjoyed his work in the Sennett-Keystone comic thriller, "My Valet," will be pleased to learn that he will be seen this week in an entirely different humorous two reeler, which, like the other, also enlists the personal talents of Mack Sennett and Mabel Normand.

The Lutine Bell.

The Lutine bell that rings at Lloyd's comes from the crack French frigate which was captured by Admiral Duncan. In 1799 she was sent by London merchants with £1,175,000 on board to Hamburg, but was lost off the Texel. Lloyd's underwriters recovered £100,000 and an oak table, chair and bell, the latter of which is always kept in Lloyd's committee room and rung when an overdue ship arrives.-London Standard.

Men Are So Evasive.

The haughty saleslady finally descended to notice the shopping person. "Is any one waiting on you?" she asked. "I'm afraid not. My husband was-I left him outside, you know-but I'm afraid he's gone home."-Philadelphia Ledger.

Too Smart.

Willie-Pa, do you know everything? Pa-Yes, my son. Why do you ask? Willie-Why, I wanted to find out why it is that the heavy end of a match is the "light" end. Pa-You go and take a walk, young man; you are getting too smart.-Pittsburgh Press.

Political Preparedness.

"Well, have you been fixing your fences?" "Been digging trenches," declared Congressman Flubdub. "I'm in for a real fight."-Kansas City Journal.

For He Didn't Stay With It.

"I came from a very good family," said the tresome one. "Some families certainly do seem to strike luck!" said the wearied one.-Browning's Magazine.

PRETTY CONSTANCE COLLIER A NEW STAR AT GLOBE

In a sermon on the evil of the theatre the Rev. Dr. Penfield Sturgis, rector of fashionable St. Martins-in-the-Lane, refers directly to Jane Bartlett and the grand opera "Zaporah" of which she is the star. Stung to the quick she accepts the challenge he has given and determines to make him "eat his sermon, word for word."

On the strength of the rector's sermon the mayor closes the opera but the Rev. Dr. Penfield having had a chance to study Miss Bartlett at close range, realizes her bigness. He discovers that out of the goodness of her heart she has been quietly educating a number of poor girls, feeding hungry composers and lending a kindly ear to the downhearted.

Repentant, he decides that he owes her an apology which he makes in an open letter to the newspapers. At this his congregation rises in arms and to preserve his dignity the young rector offers to marry the prima donna. She accepts, thus having carried out her threat. At this point the story takes an unexpected turn; why not see the play and enjoy it for yourself? At the Globe tonight.

At the Boarding House. "Is this beef too rare for you, Mr. Simpkins?" "Well, since you ask me, Mrs. Skinner, I would like it a little oftener."-Baltimore American.

Tart Retort. "Dad-No. I won't have my daughter tied to a stupid fool for life! He then don't you think you'd better let me take her off your hands?"-Pennsylvania State Froth.

Fooled Her. "Astounded Mother-Why, Tottie, you never told me you had invited so many children to this party. Small hostess-That's cause you said that I could never keep a secret.-Life.

Very Seldom. "When a man gets a raise at the office he can seldom keep it from his wife-that is, the information-and, well, the raise too."-Florida Times-Union.
