MEANING OF PATRIOTISM.

Pictorial Review: All the idea of world-government Europe has is imperialism, which means one nation or group of nations dominating the others.

America stands for federation, which means each country, great or small, attending to its own affairs, and settling international disputes by peaceful process of law.

Patriotism to an American means the same enthusiasm for humanity. It is right for us to want the American eagle to utter its screams over the Seven Seas, provided we know what it is screaming about.

And its voice is never for possession or rule; it means, to any people it approaches, their independence and self government guaranteed, as well as such justice and order in their borders as shall be a basis for trade, free travel, and peace.

The Stars and Stripes has no such significance as the flags of Russia or Germany. It is the flag of humanity, the symbol of the one nation that stands for "All people that on earth do dwell."

With this conception of the kind of nation this is, and of how different a thing American patriotism must be from the clashing national passions of other lands, we can perhaps get some light on the teaching of patriotism to the young.

Patriotism is wholly worthy and noble, if it means not the subjugation of any people but the liberty and independence of all, if it means not race-hate and rivalry but the brotherhood of all, if it means not another bloody chapter in social competition, but the beginning of world cooperation; if it means world unity, world government, world peace under world law, and not a continuance of that senseless "battle of the kites and crows" that so far has been history.

Children fight; grown people learn to get along together. America means that the world is coming of age.

If you know what American patriotism is, you can be as patriotic as you please, and sound the hekgag and beat the tom-tom.

OUT OF BUSINESS.

Two breweries and distillery went out of business in Philadelphia last week. The Alex Young Distilling Company had been in operation ninety-three years.

"There is no money in the brewery business and it is getting worse each year," he said. "The liquor business is dying a natural death, the small breweries are losing money and the profits of the large ones are so small they are not good investments any more."—Ex.

STANDS HIGH.

"As a promoter of vocational education," says Tom Richardson, a well known booster of Portland, "President Kerr, of the Oregon Agricultural College, is regarded by competent authorities as the most influential man in the state." In an address before the School of Commerce students Mr. Richardson further called attention to the rank of the O. A. C. among the agricultural schools of the country.

MISFITS

One cartoonist makes Wilson the whole thing at the St. Louis convention. Correct. He certainly is a good deal.

Only a good licking will settle the case of C-a-r-r-a-n-z-a!

He made a great mistake when he failed to punish the men who jumped into our back yard.

Ten or more years in a calaboose would make Carranza know where he was at.

Always Paint.

Marshfield Times: F. E. Allen while visiting at his old home in Albany, Oregon, sent The Times the following belated spring poetry, evidently delayed but not deleted by the censor:

Little beds of flowers Little cans of paint Make attractive places Out of those that ain't.

Things to Forget.

Some one wants u sto publish this: Has some one played a scurvy trick? Forget it. Has some one soaked you with a briek? Forget it. Don't let the memory endure; a scheme of vengeance will not cure a single sore, you may be sure—forget it.

thought her smooth when she was young; forget it. She's had enough of work and care to sour the temper of a bear; what if she hits you with a chair? Forget it. The kids kick up a beastly noise? Forget it. You cannot read for girls and boys? Forget it. Some day they'll leave the old home shack, and then you'll wish that they were back, to make the floors and rafters crack—forget it. You have a toothache in your ear? Forget it. You've half a mind to shed a tear? Forget it. For brooding over grief or pain but puts the fantods in your brain, and shows you are not safe or sane; forget it.

Reason to Be Proud.

Salem Capital Journal: I. Stevens is the possessor of a Ford Car and is as proud as he was of his first pants, he made a trip to Oregon City and Portland, this week where he met two of his sisters from Dayton, Wash., who will make an extended visit in Marion county.
