SURPRISED BY TRICKY GREASERS

Scoots Were Caught in Ambush and Fired Upon With Machine Guns.

WERE GREATLY OUT-NUMBERED BY MEXICANS

But Killed Twice As Many Before Being Forced to Retire.

(By United Press)
Mexico City, June 22.—Gen. Pershing's defiance of instructions from General Trevino caused the battle of Carrizal station, Gen. Obregon announced. He said the Mexicans fired upon the Americans under his orders. The official statement reported that the battle occurred Sunday. The Americans were moving southward, and were driven back, seventeen being captured. General Gomez was killed in the battle.

Washington, June 22.—Secretary Baker announced that he is endeavoring to move the California, Kansas, and Missouri militia to the border immediately. They comprise eight thousand troops. They will start when their equipment is complete. Their mobilization is not quite complete.

San Antonio, June 22.—Gen. Funston received a message this afternoon from Gen. Pershing declaring that he had no report from the American troops engaged in the Carrizal battle. He dispatched another squadron of the tenth cavalry to investigate, and they would report soon. Gen. Funston will make no orders until Gen. Pershing advises him. It is believed troop H, under Captain Boyd, was engaged in the fight. Private reports indicate that cavalrymen were scouting Carrizal when they were discovered by the outposts. The Mexican commander ordered the machine guns secreted on the roofs of houses and hid his men behind the walls. The Americans rode into the ambush. After a hot two hour fight, they were forced to retire in the face of vastly superior forces. Another body of Mexicans reinforced the Carranzistas. Mining companies' agents reported the Mexicans losses double those of the Americans. A strong chain of Carranzista troops are drawn around Gen. Pershing. The rapid movement of the Mexican troops in the evacuation of Juarez, which yesterday held four thousand soldiers, caused the belief that the Mexicans intend to attack the Americans. Hundreds of refugees crossed into El Paso this morning.

El Paso, June 22.—Twelve Americans, including the commander, were killed in the battle at Carrizal yesterday. Consul Garcia announced 17 Americans were captured. The Mexicans lost 14 killed and 30 wounded.

Buenos Ayres, June 22.—The Mexican government today launched an extensive anti-American propaganda in South America. Former Argentine congressman Palacio accepted an offer to make a speaking tour against the United States.

Washington, June 22.—Missouri, Kansas and California militia this afternoon were ordered to go to the border immediately.

After the first excitement about recruiting and mobilizing had died down at the armory the natural course of events has taken place. O. A. C. STUDENT JOINED HIS COMPANY UNDER DIFFICULTIES

Was in California Picking Fruit When Called to Colors and Responded Moneyless.

That the Corvallis company of infantry can lick the whole Mexican army is the belief of some, at least if all of the company are like one of the members, J. M. Franklin, quartermaster. When the call came he was at Sebastopol, Calif., picking fruit for money to resume studies in the O. A. C. He collected what was coming to him, borrowed $5, bought a ticket to Albany and reached here with 20 cents in his pocket. The fare from here to Corvallis is 35 cents, so he walked to Granger, paid his 20 cents for a ticket and reached Corvallis in time to join the company and start for Clackamas as hungry as a bear, but determined to lick the greasers and serve his country at any cost.

THREE INDIANS ON WAY TO MEXICO AT HUB

Instead of Being Allowed to Fight Greasers They Will Do Concrete Work.

Thomas Hooglin, Roderick Jackson and Martin Jones were in the city last night on their way to Mexico to fight the Greasers; but they changed their minds at this city, or rather had them changed. Chief of Police John Catlin and Policemen Rodgers did it. They met them out at the depot and advised them to return to Chemawa, where they had been studying the art of civilization. An officer came up and kept them company going back today. They will assist for awhile in putting down some concrete walks there at Uncle Sam's expense, a much more peaceful job than hunting Carranzistas, though it is a much needed job just at this time.

TWO MORE AUTO ACCIDENTS HERE

Geo. Hines Was Hit By the Lebanon Train at Froman Station.

HE CAME VERY NEAR GETTING HIS FINISH

Fatty Hornback Run Into Telephone Pole on Ellsworth Street.

Out at Froman station this morning, Geo. A. Hines had an experience that nearly ended his career, and would have done so, but for presence of mind. He was coming to town in his auto, and on approaching the crossing, in the early fog, saw an auto approaching on the other side of the railroad track. He slowed up a little, but kept going. The Lebanon train was approaching and had whistled, but he did not hear it, not hearing well. Twenty-five feet to the track he saw the engine, too late to stop, so he turned his car in the direction the train was going, which was what saved him. The car was hit at the front end and badly mashed up, being carried through the cattle guard and mashing a switch down; but Mr. Hines was only slightly bruised. He declared though that he thought he was about to go into glory and was surprised to find himself alive. He waived his hat at the engineer as he put on brakes and stopped the train.

He says that if the engineer had blown his whistle again when he saw him, he could have stopped, but the engineer thought he was stopping for the train to go by.

Last evening Fatty Hornback, of the Whitney jitney service, was going along Ellsworth street, when he came in contact with a pole at the corner of Fifth street, and came near knocking it down. He also bruised his Ford somewhat. Today Fatty was walking with a cane, with only a slight limp. In trying to make the turn at the corner something stuck on the brake which refused to work, and it headed straight for the pole. The internals of the auto were considerably disturbed.
