ROOSEVELT'S FALSEHOOD.

In his letter to the Progressive National Committee, largely devoted to a discussion of the support given by the German-American Alliance to Mr. Hughes and the reasons for his own defeat, Colonel Roosevelt included the following characteristic statement:

It is folly to pay heed to any of the promises in the platform on which he (President Wilson) now stands, in view of the fact that almost every important promise on which he stood four years ago has since been broken.

It is a maxim of the courts that when a witness is false in one statement, he may be regarded as false in all.

The Democratic party, in its platform of 1912, promised tariff reform, and tariff reform is now a fact. It promised additional and more constructive laws for the regulation of corporations and the Clayton anti-trust law is the result.

The platform commented upon the passage by congress of an amendment providing for the direct election of senators—the resolutions for the two amendments having been put through by the Democratic party—and both laws are now written upon the statute books.

There was a plank for banking and currency reform and the promise has had its fulfillment in the best banking system ever given to the people of the United States and, is generally approved by the financial world.

A rural credits system was promised to the farmers of the country who had been promised such reform by the Republican party for twenty years without fulfillment. As a result of the ascendancy of the Democratic party to power, as a result of President Wilson's leadership, both branches of congress have now passed a rural credits measure which eventually will enable tenant farmers to own their own land without encumbrance. The Democratic measure was passed almost unanimously in both branches the Republicans being obliged to give their approval.

Another of the important planks in the Democratic platform was one advocating agricultural co-operation with the state. Such co-operation, with a new and modern marketing system, federal aid in road-building and other aids to the farmer, is now a reality.

Justice to labor and the conservation of the rights of labor were promised in the platform of 1912 and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has said that more was done for the laboring people under the leadership of President Wilson and under the Democratic party than under any previous administration.

Conservation of the natural resources of the country were promised and there has been progressive conservation, accompanied by sane development. No administration has ever had a more efficient operation of the interior department.

The spirit of the platform as well as its letter have been upheld.

No party in the history of the nation has ever written upon the statute books a greater body of progressive and constructive laws. Labor has given its approval to the laws written by the Democratic party to conserve the interests of labor. No greater advance has ever been made in the interest of the farmer since the republic was founded, and the farmers themselves, more prosperous and more enlightened than ever before, have given their endorsement to what has been done in their behalf.

Real reforms have been accomplished in the interest of the all the people. There has never been a time when the reserves of the national banks of the country, representing the prosperity of the people, have been larger.

What has been done by President Wilson for the greater liberty, freedom and prosperity of the American people constitutes the finest record of any American statesman. In times like these, when the whole world has been rent by war, when the United States itself has been imperiled, President Wilson, compelled as he has been to give the major part of his attention to the critical problems involving the peace and honor of the nation, might well have been excused if he had not been able to complete his record of internal reforms. But he has been as successful in his domestic accomplishments as he has been in his handling of foreign affairs and in upholding the honor and dignity of the nation.

MISFITS

At Baker City a streak of lightning went clear through a church and never hit even the preacher. Perhaps he needed some electricity. Some of the preachers do.

Story in S's.

Sir Samuel Simms saw sweet Sarah Samson swimming. Suddenly she seemed sinking. Sir Samuel stood stunned. Striding seaward, spurning shingle, Sir Samuel swiftly swam Sarah-wards. Sir Samuel skillfully supported swooning Sarah. Swimming shorewards, Sir Samuel successfully succored Sarah. Seeming somewhat shaky, Sir Samuel sampled some spirits—special Scotch.

Sarah saw Sir Samuel's self-sacrificing spirit. Sir Samuel saw Sarah's sweetness. Sir Samuel soon sought Sarah. Striding slowly, Sarah sighed softly. Sir Samuel seemed speechless. "Say something, Sir Samuel," said Sarah.

"Say 'Sam,' Sarah," said Sir Samuel. Sarah, smiling shyly, softly said "Sam."

"Sarah—Sally," stammered Sir Samuel. "Sweet Sarah—sweetheart," Sarah solemnly surrendered.

(Printer's remark: "Please stop this; we are chort of eccc.")—Titbits.

Moral: Buy a linotype.

A man arriving in Corvallis from the east was so struck with the sand east of the mountains that he composed the following poem, published in the G-T:

I've been viewing sandy prairies
For these many hours past,
And the sands, with all their shiftings
And their driftings, seem to last.
While the jocund little sage brush
Lifts its head on every hand
And knee-deep and getting deeper
Does its worst to dam the sand.

And the railroad by the river
Every crooked mile or two
Throws a fence across the drifting
cloud

And tries to dam it, too.
Even so the wily settler
Sets his saplings to the breeze
And with vehement emotions
Seeks to dam it with his trees.

But the sand is on the rampage;
With a whistle keen and loud,
Rip! it whips across the benches
In a gritty, murky cloud;

You can make it twist a little,
You can make a little fall;
But you cannot stop the balance—
No, you cannot dam it all.

So for me the old Willamette—
Drifting mists instead of grit;
Take my sand as I take pepper,
Just a little bit of it.

Want my verdant hills and meadows,
Want my flowing corn and grain—
Want the sea breeze and the showers—
Let 'er drizzle; let 'er rain!

Tired, strained, irritated eyesight finds welcome relief through lenses ground in the new Sir William Crooks glass.
