SATURDAY NIGHT THOUGHTS.

In the European war the Germans on the west have gradually bent back, and yet the progress of the Allies is very little, hardly enough to frighten the Teutons. It is said the Kaiser put in an appearance in order to know himself the exact situation.
On the east side the advantage has been with the Russians, who have erected a tremendous machine which is pushing steadily forward, gradually mowing the Austrians down.

The modern war has developed in a striking manner into machine work, and the soldier has become a wonderful part of it. The man in the line, though part of a machine, must have his individuality, and back of it all have a heart full of loyalty as a patriot.
But it is an awful thing to consider man as an element in the destruction of his fellow men as the last resort in the settlement of what?

More and more it is being appreciated that the policy of our treatment of the Mexicans has been a wise and humane one; one in the future, when this age is viewed dispassionately, shall be praised by thinking people. Today the masses appreciate the generalship which has kept this country out of war so far.

Few things have excited more interest than the adventures of the Deutschland. Writers of fiction do not narrate experiences that grip the world tighter. The man who runs the gauntlet in the story book, is a hero of exalted character, in the narration. So the men who are engineering the trip of the German undersea merchantman, are entitled to the admiration of the world.

How the life of the person lived in the interest of others does stand out, when it comes to the end of this part of it, particularly in an age like this, steeped in selfishness, every man for himself, Al everywhere in colossal letters.

Some of the biggest sermons are preached by the Christian life that is really lived under the Christ program. One wonders why young people, though appreciating such a life, do not place more value on it as an example for themselves.

Albany people are pleased to know that Albany College is to be continued at Albany for at least a year, probably permanently, as it should be, for it has played a part that deserves notice. Though not a city builder like a state university or a great agricultural college, it fills in splendidly in local development. The absence of the college would be a serious handicap to the city, which should never be permitted.

MISFITS

Victor Murdock gave as an excuse for missing one of his first appointments in Or. the statement that he was in Chicago attending a funeral, having reference to the demise of the Bull Moose.

Wake up, have $ day in Albany.

An interesting suit down in Tex. is that of Cyclone Davis, once an Albany visitor, to compel the use of the word "cyclone" on the ballot, in connection with his candidacy for congressman.

Life on the Border.
Stayton Mail: "Buck" Tilton, who belongs to the O. N. G., writes home that he has trained a half dozen Mexican fleas to hunt gophers and that he is going to turn them loose here this fall and cop some bounty money. We wonder how big a Mexican flea is anyhow.

We are just optimistic enough to like heads like this: "Sees betetr times ahead."

No use anyway for a person to be a thunder cloud all the time.

It is a good thing to keep infantile paralysis and other microbes out of the state; but it is also a good idea to abolish a worse microbe, calamitus knockibus.

Nothing spreads much faster than this disease among plastic people.

Richard Dixon, one of the Eugene boys at Cascadia, composed a poem on the trip, from which the following is taken:

Away, away, away up east from Salem
Away, away, down south from Albany.

When Albert Senders led the horses
one night,

The next morning there was a sight
Look away, on the stump and you could have seen him there.

I went to Cascadia camp,
And found that the ground was damp.
While Edward Sox was learning to box,

Landacre was getting a cramp.
Ross Kramer he did howl,
The gnats made John West growl
McMurphy coughed and Tapper laughed

To see Herb Darby chase fowl.

Robnett received some sweets,
They tasted betetr than meats,
In a close shave they were put in a grave

Far below Mark Sanderson's feet.

Of course there were cats galore,
But Albert wanted Moore,

Johnny asked Palmer to please make them calmer,

And Vern Howard shut his door.

We wonder what make's Dick's hair
curl,

And why Mr. Palmer is Young,

The reason "Butch" runs from a squirrel

And why Buren has only one lung.
