RURAL SCHOOL SUPERVISORY SYSTEM DISCONTINUED

By an act of the legislature of 1916 the rural school supervisory system was made optional and placed in the hands of the school directors of the rural schools and under the direct management of a board appointed to carry out the provisions of the law. This board consisting of A. C. Schmitt of Albany; J. W. Miller, of Shelburn; Milton A. Miller, of Lebanon; W. C. Cooley, of Brownsville, and the county school superintendent, at the close of the last school year and the first year under the optional system, decided to ask for an expression from the directors of the rural schools of the county before entering into plans for another year. A ballot was sent to each director asking that a vote be given and as a result about 75 per cent of the directors voted and many suggestions for and against the system was expressed. However, the majority vote was against the system and the board will act in compliance with this vote. No supervisory will be employed and the county superintendent, beginning with the present school year, will serve as the rural supervisor for the entire county instead of a portion of it as under the present plan.

WHAT WAR DOES.

Bridgeport to Build a Million Dollars Worth of Homes for Its Workmen.

(By United Press)

Bridgeport, Conn., July 25.—The war boom has run this town's population up to the point of overflowing. There are 2,000 families here without roofs. So the chamber of commerce engineered a private corporation, organized with no idea of profit, to build a million dollars worth of model houses for them. The first work on the homes started here today.

It is estimated that nearly 50,000 persons have moved here to stay in the last twelve months. Most of them were brought to help make munitions, but a part of the increase was caused by the establishment of 400 big factories of all kinds in the last few years, here.

The poorer workmen felt the pinch of the situation first. Landlords boosted rents when they saw what was happening, so the first work of the new corporation is the building of 400 two-family houses to rent at $12 to $18 a month.
