SATURDAY NIGHT THOUGHTS.

A candidate for president has been in Oregon this week, an American citizen, though he hasn't voted for six years, and he has been making his record as a candidate by throwing stones at the other candidates, who is his president the same as ours, without making anything very definite as to what his own program would be if elected president. This is not very material though, for as governor of New York state he has the record of giving the state the most extravagant administration in the history of the state, signing appropriation bills for $10,000,000 more than any other governor, though there the governor has the power to veto individual items. One cannot remember a candidate for president who has made a poorer showing on a campaign.

In Europe has been the same old war, without much advantage during the week on either side, with no signs of peace, a struggle that can end only by exhaustion of strength and money.

Attracting wide attention has been the negotiation for a settlement of matters by the railroad employers and employees, a big task that is full of rocks. Unable to agree themselves it became such a national matter that the president has taken a hand in the negotiations for settlement. On the face of it, though, the parties are so far apart it looks almost like an impossibility for them to agree, both sides unwilling to make the necessary concessions. It is said, that if the strike follows the railroads have applications for positions by 25,000 men, so that many of the trains will continue to run, and traffic will not be entirely stopped. A strike, though, will mean strife and serious consequences seriously to be regretted.

A wife beating case was up this week. The old fashioned whipping post is none too good for the man who whips his wife, particularly a man who has tried to live off her earnings. The more lazy and shiftless a man is the more he is called upon to discipline his wife. People with sense appreciate the fact that husband and wife are companions, without bosses, who to get along must bear and forbear, each doing their part towards bearing the big burdens of life, forgiving and forgetting as the clouds roll by, never using force, and keeping the tongue as smooth as possible.

Constantly one is reminded that life hangs by a thread easily broken. It suggests that constant watchfulness is necessary in order to avoid rocks and reefs. One can hardly cross the street without looking in all directions first. Safety first has come to be a great thing not only with those manipulating machinery, but with all from the baby to the old man or woman tottering on the edge of the grave.

MISFITS

We are all under the same president, who is entitled to our respect regardless of party, unless he is absolutely tyrannical, which a president could not be.

Same old Green-Eyed Monster

Albany Democrat suggests that when Miss Coos Bay and Mr. Eugene Lane are finally married that they come to Albany for their honeymoon. Good suggestion. They couldn't find a quieter place in the world.

Long Distance Operator.

Journal: On the ground that she is a common scold an Albany man has brought suit for divorce in Linn county against his wife who is in Germany. She must be some long distance operator to get past the censorship often enough to bother in Linn county.

A narrow headed editor down in Grants Pass proposes to lay the blame of the strike if it occurs to the president. There's a diamond for you.

One of the Salem boys down on the border got so lonesome for something to do that he wrote a note to the Journal about one of the best men in the company being in the guard house. Then he had more time to be lonesome by apologizing, declaring that Jim felt awfully bad about it.

An Ashland man caught a skunk instead of a squirrel, and now says any one can have it by calling. An Albany man knows how to make a skunk as respectable as a squirrel. Send it to him.

The man who tries to be elected

On his own merits and not by running down his opponent is the one who stands best with the people, whether in city, county, state or national politics.

It is the same way in business. The mud thrower is always the one who gets bespattered.

Oregon's old resident, Jas. Ham Lewis, of Chicago, is to be out here with a speech that will make Mr. Hughes appreciate the fact that there are two sides to all questions.
