"THE STORE OF QUALITY"

LIKE CAESAR OF OLD CAPT. DICK EXHORTED HIS MEN And the Cherrians Heard the Cry and Marched Onward to Victory.

The Cherrians of Salem has reason to be proud of their achievements at Marshfield, where they carried off first prize for the best drilled team, in competition with the gladiators of the Rosarians and Radiators, of wide renown.

Stephen A Stone tells about it in the Statesman in the following classic manner:

On another notable occasion the Salem Cherrians today successfully defended their title as the best drilled organization of boosters in Oregon, winning first prize over the Portland Rosarians and the Eugene Radiators in competitive drill following the great pageant of the railroad jubilee, which filled through the streets of Marshfield for two hours during the forenoon. The prize was $50 cash. Second prize was awarded to the Rosarians.

Like Caesar of old, Captain Charley Dick exhorted his men before the fray.

"For four years I have drilled you, Brother Cherrians," the captain said, "and we have always gotten what we went after. Never has we been defeated in any competitive event. Now Cherrians, are we going to win today?"

In unison the team of forty white uniformed Cherrians answered, "We are!"

The competition was the hardest the Cherrians have ever gone up against. Anxiously watching Salem visitors could detect scarcely a flaw in the maneuvering of the Rosarians, and the Radiators, largest in number of any of the uniformed bodies, showed careful training.

"I don't see how we can win this time," was heard from various Cherrians before it was over, but victory came.

The Cherrians have left a deep impression in the Coos Bay country, and they are told it is a favorable impression. The town has been plastered with stickers by the Cherrians.

GUMMOSIS PREVENTIVE. Value of Lime in Show in the Experiments of Mr. Faulkner, of Corvallis.

(Published by request.)
A sure preventive and an efficient remedy for the control of gummosis in sweet cherry trees has been discovered and tested out by W. M. Faulkner of Corvallis, and this remedy is nothing less than lime.

A number of years ago Mr. Faulkner was representing a nursery company that advertised to fill in the second year all trees that failed to live, and Mr. Faulkner observed that the fill-in process required more sweet cherry trees than all other trees combined, and he accordingly began a study of the causes of the loss of the cherry trees.

He purchased a farm two miles north of Corvallis, and made tests of the soil. He found that the acid soil caused the gummosis, and he found that the use of slack lime would counteract this acidity and if used in the right proportion would sweeten the sour soil.

As a preventive of gummosis, Mr. Faulkner used the lime when setting out his orchard, using from one to three tons of lime to the acre, according to the nature of the soil. A hole three feet square was dug for each tree, and three pounds of lime mixed with the earth. As the trees grew more lime was added, being worked into the soil by cultivation. The treatment was continued until the trees were six or seven years of age, by which time the roots of the tree have penetrated the deep, sweet soil, and will not need to have the lime added.

For trees affected with the gummosis, if they are not too far gone, treatment with the lime worked into the soil, will improve them or cure. The lime should be worked well down to the roots.

Mr. Faulkner has made tests of all the sweet cherries, including the Royal Anne, the Bing, the Lambert, the Centennial, the May Duke and the Black Tartarian, and has found the lime treatment efficacious. He has never sprayed his trees, nor have they ever been afflicted with disease. He invites any one interested to call at his farm on rural route No. 1, two miles north of Corvallis.

A GREAT STORY. Another Version of the Manner in Which Villa Met his Numerous Deaths.

A Japanese physician by the name of Nodoka claims to have brought about the death of Villa by slow poison given under the guise of medical treatment, according to the Chihuahua local papers today.

After Villa's death, Dr. Nodoka is quoted as saying that the remaining Villa leaders gambled with dice to decide who should impersonate the dead chief, and the lot fell to Col. Gaca, who bears a strong personal resemblance to Villa.

To prevent the deception from being disclosed, Colonel Baca is said to be surrounded by this personal bodyguard, who keep the common soldiers and ranchers from coming too near.

Dr. Nodoka, according to the papers, had been administering poison for three months, with the result that Villa died shortly after his defeat at Parral.

HER HUNDRED DOLLAR BILL. It Was Money Hoarded and Yet It Was Money Flung Away.

In the American Magazine we read the following:

"Mrs. Davis came into possession of a $100 bill. Prizing this money because it was the first she ever earned, she kept the original bill in her possession, most of the time on her person. Only a short time before her death were her relatives aware that she still had the bill.

"When a little girl, nine years old, she deposited $10 in a savings bank and received a pass book. She carried this book with her for seventy-five years. Three weeks before her death she told her grandson she was curious to know if the bank was still doing business and what had become of her deposit. A letter giving the number of her pass book, the amount of the deposit and her maiden and present name was written. Just a week from the day the letter was posted a reply was received to the effect that the deposit, together with the accrued interest for seventy-five years, amounting in all to $225.65, was in the bank for Mrs. Davis.

"Had she deposited the $100 bill with a savings bank paying 4 per cent interest compounded quarterly the principal and interest would have amounted to the handsome sum of $601.89. The $100 bill would have earned for her five other $100 bills.

"Her investment at nine years of age multiplied itself for her thirty-one times. Her sentiment at the age of thirty-nine, persisted in for forty-five years, deprived her of many comforts in her old age which the $600 would have provided."

High Wheat—A. W. Bowersox, of the Red Crown Mills, who has been in the wheat business for 27 years, says that this is the first season he remembers when wheat started here immediately after harvest as high as a dollar a bushel. This makes it a peculiar year in the business. Today the price is $1.20 at this city. Tomorrow it may be lower.
