was not until later that bearer certificates were put out.

These certificates were issued at the request of New York banks which at that time were handling large amounts of gold and which sought the issuance of gold certificates by the government as a matter of convenience, thus obviating the constant handling and rehandling of gold coin. These certificates were regarded not so much as money as warehouse certificates for money, being exchangeable at all times upon demand for the actual coin.

The question of making the certificates legal tender was not, to the knowledge of the authority consulted, discussed when this suggestion of the New York banks was carried into effect by act of congress. The fact that it was decided, to begin with, to limit these certificates to certificates to order would have been a barrier in the way of making them legal tender had the suggestion been advanced.

So much for the authorization of gold certificates and their not being made legal tender then. Financial authorities point out that there has been in the years since no practical need for taking this step. Gold certificates are in practice accepted as in every way as good as the gold itself, and they are immediately convertible into legal tender by surrender and exchange into gold.

TWO STARS IN "THE LOVE MASK" TONIGHT

Following their joint success in "The Golden Chance," Cleo Ridgely and Wallace Reid, will be seen at the Globe tonight in the Jesse L. Lasky feature play company's production of "The Love Mask," a wonderful and gripping western drama written especially for them by Cecil B. DeMille and Jeanie MacPherson.

Cleo Ridgely by her wonderful performance as the wife in "The Golden Chance," immediately established herself as one of the foremost dramatic stars of the screen.

Wallace Reid, excellent and handsome Lasky star, as the sheriff, torn between love for the girl and his sworn duty, is given an opportunity to show his wonderful ability as an actor, which has not been surpassed since he appeared with Geraldine Farrar in the Lasky production of "Carmen."

The story of "The Love Mask" has to do with the adventures of Kate Kenner, a young woman who owing to the death of her parents during the mad rush for California gold in the year 1849, was forced to stake out a claim and eke out her own existence by panning. How she strikes a mother lode only to have it taken away from her—how she disguises herself as "Silver Spurs" the notorious bandit—how the sheriff in love with her, is torn between conflicting emotions, and how it is all finally straightened out, is told in one of the most novel stories the Lasky company has ever as yet offered to the public.

The settings for "The Love Mask" are said to be both beautiful and unusual and the two stars are surrounded by an all star cast including Earle Foxe, Lucien Littlefield, Dorothy Abrial, and other prominent members of the Lasky organization.

Prof. Kent Here—Prof. Frederick C. Kent, who succeeds the late Prof. David Torbet as professor of mathematics at Albany College, arrived in the city today and is getting located preparatory to the opening of college next Monday.

HE MOVED HIS WELL.

It Wasn't Pulled Up Nor Sawed Up, but It Did Change Place.

There is an old story about the man who pulled up a well and took it to a more desirable location and another about the man who took up a well, sawed it in sections and used one of the sections for a land roller. They were exaggerations, but the experience of Ezra Toller proves that a well can not always be classed as a permanent fixture. Ezra had a well in front of his house. It had never been a success as a well. Ezra wanted it filled up. One way would have been to haul stones or earth and use the material to fill it. But Ezra had no team.

So he went at it with a shovel. Working on the side of the well next to the road, he began to dig and to throw the dirt into the well. He kept this up until he had filled it, which was not a difficult job, as the well was rather shallow.

But when the task seemed finished Ezra found that he had made a new hole by the side of the one he had been filling. There was but one thing to do—proceed to fill it in the same manner. Of course this resulted in still another excavation, which in turn revealed similar treatment.

As all of Ezra's digging had been on the side of the well nearest the road, the result was that the hole in the ground was finally moved out into the highway.

Judson Tolliver was commenting on the exploit one day down at the corners. "Queer thing Ezra did," he remarked. "You know that old well that stood in his front yard? Well, sir, he's moved it thirty feet from where it was—moved it clear out into the road!" "How'd he do it?" inquired another representative citizen.

"You'll have to ask Ezra," replied Judson. "But he did it, sure enough. I saw the well in the road yesterday, and I saw the track he made movin' it. The thing plowed a furrow four feet wide all the way."—Youth's Companion.

OUR GOLD CERTIFICATES.

Why These Notes Have Never Been Made Legal Tender.

Answering the question, "Why are gold certificates not legal tender?" the New York Times says:

The first gold certificate act was passed in 1863, and at that time the issuance of these certificates was confined to certificates drawn to order. It
