YOUNG CELLO ARTIST WINS APPLAUSE HERE

Prominent Portland Musician Captures House at First Appearance.

One of the prettiest stories given here in film is that of the Innocent Lie, at the Globe, with Miss Valentine Grant as Nora O'Brien, a charming actress in a sweet character, one who never wavers for right. It is a story without a villain and offers some of the finest scenery shown. Miss Gladys Johann made a hit with her cello work, a skillful and delightful performer, though only seventeen years of age.

In the St. Francis hotel this morning Miss Johann and her mother, Mrs. M. Johnson (Miss Johann's real name is Johnson, too) talked freely about the young artist. Miss Johann is less than 17 years old. She came to Portland with her parents five years ago from Minneapolis.

Johann has never been to school a day in her life—that is, not to regular public schools. She studies under a private tutor and devotes the greater part of her time to her music and art. She is very fond of painting and drawing and studies in all branches of oil and water color painting and crayon and charcoal drawing.

She has been studying the cello for eight years.

The program tonight will include "Somewhere a Voice is Calling," "Mother Machree," "Serenade Badine," "The Rosary," and "La Cinquantaine."

"WATCHFUL WAITING" HAS SAVED A NATION'S LIFE

Mexican Envoy's Tribute to President Wilson's Policy.

Convincing testimony to the wisdom and justice of President Wilson's Mexican policy is given by Luis Cabrera, one of Mexico's commissioners at the joint Mexican-American conference in session at New London, Conn.

"I do not care to discuss political or international questions of any kind," said Senor Cabrera in a recent interview, "but I will say that in official circles of Mexico President Wilson is looked upon as one of the greatest men the United States ever has had as a leader. He is calm and considerate, and his much abused 'watchful waiting' policy has probably saved the life of my nation and prevented our country from entering into a needless struggle."

Lieut. Gov. Barratt O'Hara and Senator Beall are the principal narrators of the stories that developed as a result of the investigations, and the incidents they relate are enacted by professional actors.

The film was assembled and arranged under the pen of Charles Michelson.

Preparatory Service—A preparatory service in the First Presbyterian church tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Next Sunday morning the Lord's Supper will be observed and new members publicly welcomed.

Suit to Collect—Suit to collect $1200 was instituted today by J. W. Cusick & Co., against Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Majors.

Register! Register!—Registration books will be open until nine o'clock tonight and tomorrow night at the county clerk's office.

From Seaside—Mr. and Mrs. Lester Compton, of Seaside, are visiting at Mrs. Compton's sister's, Mrs. Jas. Cochran.

CITY NEWS

To Change Location—Leslie Potts, who has been on Second street, with his confectionary store, for several years, has leased the room in the Pfeiffer building next W. M. Parker's grocery store, which will be fitted up for his business and he will move into it in a few weeks.

Big Prune Yield—The big prune packer at Granger has just completed drying the prunes for the Granger prune orchard, in all 12,000 bushels, about $20,000 worth. Another evidence of valley prosperity.

West to Speak—Ex-Governor West will speak for Wilson as follows: October 9, Coquille; 11, Clatskanie; 12, Hillsboro; 13, Newberg; 14, Woodburn; 16, Oregon City; 17, Lebanon.

Successful Rummage Sale—The Ladies' Aid Society of the Grace Presbyterian church yesterday held a rummage sale at I. E. Conn's on Main street, taking in over $50. They will soon have the church given a needed coat of paint.

Douglas Fairbanks—Douglas Fairbanks, the boyish star of "The Habit of Happiness," a new Triangle Fine Arts feature, at the Globe Friday, has surely found his forte in the films. That he has already become the most popular juvenile comedian appearing on the screen is the claim of many of his admirers, and it must be admitted that his famous personality has at any rate given him a place of note among screen actors.

Corvallis Priscillas—A crowd of members of the Priscilla club of Corvallis came over this afternoon and met with Mrs. Tom Riley, a fellow member, joining there while a resident of Corvallis. Mrs. Riley was making them at home in the Hub City.

Here from Portland—Mrs. C. E. Barney and Mrs. Grant Barney, of Portland, are in the city, called here by the illness of the mother of Mrs. Christiansen, who has been visiting her for some time.

Hear Mrs. Thompson—Mrs. Alexander Thompson, of The Dalles, who is to speak at the Globe Saturday afternoon in the interest of Woodrow Wilson's candidacy, and also that of Mark V. Weatherford and others, is said to be a fine speaker, one who holds her audience. She was at Shadow Lawn when the president delivered his address of acceptance, and is in close touch with the campaign situation. The Globe should be packed.

Special Train for Detroit—On Saturday, the last day of the Round-up, the S. P. Co. will run a special "Scratch 'em" train from Detroit to Albany and return. The train will leave Detroit at 10 o'clock, arriving in Albany at 11 in time to allow getting a bite to eat before the opening of the show. It will not leave on the return until 10:30 p. m.

Will Teach in Willows—Miss Frances Myers, a graduate of Albany high school in the class of 1916, left yesterday for Willows, Northeastern Oregon, near where she will teach this year. Miss Myers was one of a family of three sisters and one brother graduating in the same class.

Some Big Spuds—Local Agent H. S. Logan, of the Oregon Electric, has a lot of fine samples of potatoes grown by Chas. Cooper on his place on the Santiam five miles east of the city. The samples are of the American Beauty and Gold Coin varieties.

GASTRIC REBELLION.

Some of the Mistakes in Eating That Invite Poor Digestion.

Indigestion is often attributed to hasty eating, and people are reproved, and rightly so, for bolting their food, but it is interesting to observe that, while the bolting of meat is always severely censured, one never hears any blame attached to those who swallow fruit by the mouthful and devour uncooked vegetables without any attempt at mastication. Nevertheless it is the hasty swallower of vegetable fiber who is really the sufferer of gastric rebellion. Vegetables are at all times very imperfectly digested by the stomach and require their tough fibers to be thoroughly broken up by the teeth if they are to be dissolved even in the bowel.

There is a well known saying which avers that digestion waits upon appetite, and there is no doubt that of all the adjuncts to digestion a keen desire for food is the most powerful and important. But appetite itself often depends upon conditions which are independent of the body's absolute necessities. Thus the aspect of the food, its smell, taste and even the manner in which it is served all help either to stimulate a desire for it or to induce a sense of aversion, while the environment of the diner often exercises important influence, beneficial or otherwise.

Brain work of any kind interferes with the rapid digestion of food, and even the habit of reading during meals, practiced by so many, is conducive neither to appetite nor digestion. A well lighted room, music and frivolous conversation will often permit a chronic dyspeptic to enjoy without remorse the pleasures of the table, while a depressing atmosphere, uncongenial company and unappetizing dishes may induce a fit of indigestion in the most healthy individual.—Food and Cookery.

CHARM OF THE BIBLE.

Its Poetic Beauty and the Marvel of Its Word Pictures.

Then some of us who cared for literature took up the Bible casually and found its poetic beauty. We read the book of Job—which, by the way, Mr. Swinburne is said to have known by heart—and as we read it even the stars themselves seemed less wonderful than this description of their marvel and mystery:

"Canst thou bind the sweet influences of Pleiades or loose the bands of Orion? Canst thou bring forth Mazzaroth in his season? Or canst thou guide Arcturus with his sons?"

Or we read in the thirty-seventh chapter of the book of Ezekiel of that weird valley that was full of bones—"and as I prophesied there was a noise, and behold a shaking, and the bones came together, bone to bone"—surely one of the most wonderful visions of the imagination in all literature.

Or we read the marvelous denunciations of Jeremiah and Isaiah or the music of the melodious heart-strings of King David. We read the solemn adjuration of the "King Ecclesiast" to remember our Creator in the days of our youth, with its haunting picture of old age, and the loveliness of "The Song of Songs" passed into our lives forever.

To this purely literary love of the Bible there has been added within the last few years a certain renewed regard for it as the profoundest book of the soul, and for some minds not conventionally religious it has regained even some of its old authority as a spiritual guide and stay. And I will confess for myself that sometimes as I fall asleep at night I wonder if even the most picturesque of modern writers has written anything to equal the Twenty-third Psalm.—Richard Le Gallienne in Phoenix.

When the World is Full.

The mean decennial rate of increase in the population of the world is 8 per cent, and at this rate the 28,000,000 square miles comprising the fertile regions of the earth, which haven't been computed can only support 207 persons per square mile, will have their maximum population of 5,664,000,000 persons in the year 2072. This estimate allows fourteen persons per square mile in the 18,000,000 square miles of steppes and deserts.

Crookedest Railroad in the World. Up California's Tamalpais runs the crookedest railroad in the world. Of the eight miles of track the longest tangent is but 413 feet. In one notable instance the road makes five complete loops and ties two complete bowknots to attain an elevation of ninety feet. The end of the line is about half a mile higher than the starting point, and there is not one particularly steep grade in the entire system.—Wall Street Journal.

Painfully Frank.

Hostess (to departing guest)—Must you go so early, Mr. Blank? Blank—I'm very sorry that I must leave, Mrs. Park. The fact is, not expecting to have such a pleasant time this evening, I made another engagement.—Boston Transcript.

Worse Still.

"Did Mr. Jobbles pay his bill?" "Yes, sir," answered the collector. "but he made a lot of fuss about it." "Um! Don't let that trouble you, son. It's the fellow who bellows and doesn't pay that we should worry about."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Hint That Failed.

Visitor (waiting an invitation to lunch)—Two o'clock! I fear I'm keeping you from your dinner. Hostess—No, but I fear we are keeping you from yours.—Meggendorfer Blätter.

Original Era of Good Feeling.

The phrase applied to the administration of James Monroe, "the era of good feeling," first appeared in a Boston newspaper, the Columbian Sentinel of July 10, 1817. From that time until the present hour the two administrations of Monroe—a period of eight years, 1817 to 1825—are referred to in the terms of the newspaper paragraph which so aptly expressed the public sentiment of the day.

Lay of the Cow.

"What are oxen?" asked the teacher. The little foreigners looked blank. "Does any one know what a cow is?" she asked hopefully. A dingy hand waved wildly at the back of the room. "I know. I know. teacher. A cow she lays milk!"—Harper's Magazine.
