CHOATE'S TRIBUTE.

Joseph H. Choate, ambassador to Great Britain in the McKinley and Roosevelt administrations, an ex-president of the American Bar Association, and long a leader of the American bar, and a leading Republican, writing in the Review of Reviews for January, 1915, paid high tribute to Wilson's administration's politices growing out of the war. He said:

"If we can mantain our neutrality and keep out of this war and at the same time prove ourselves friendly to all the nations engaged in it—as I think we shall under the wise and prudent conduct of President Wilson—the United States will, I believe, not only be called into consultation by the warring nations, when they are no longer able to keep up the fight, but will practically be able to dictate the terms of peace between them, one of which must, if possible, be an effectual guarantee against any future outbreak of the horrible spirit of militarism which has caused the present war.

"And I am encouraged in this belief by reading the present recent massage of President Wilson and the annual reports of the Secretaries of war and of the navy which, taken together, appear to show a steadfast determination on the part of our Federal government to have us prepared always for effectual self-defense, which is a necessary condition of our national existence.

"Of course, the end of this war will see us by far the most powerful nation in the world, and if the policy pointed out by Secretary Daniels is pursued, we shall perhaps in the fullness of time become ourselves the mistress of the seas without incurring hostility or attack from any nation, and shall be the great factor of preserving universal peace."

Commenting editorially on Mr. Choate's letter, the editor of the Review of Reviews says:

"Surely there is no more approved friend of international peace in our country than the Hon. Joseph H. Choate. Read then, what he writes in this number of the Review on our need of efficient agreement with what President Wilson has set forth in his message to congress of December 8. For our part, President Wilson's seem statesmanlike and noble. They are wholly compatible with strict and efficient attention to the business of getting the best results out of the vast expenditures for army and navy that are met by the taxpayers."

A WELL-DEFINED ISSUE.

The Chicago Tribune's special correspondent, E. C. Hill, who followed Candidate Hughes in his campaign of the middle west, reported his Milwaukee speech in the columns of the Tribune as follows:

"Throughout Mr. Hughes' address the applause, filed to hairtrigger speed, exploded constanly like gun volleys. The first burst of applause came when he said in the principal city of the state of LaFollette that the La Follette shipping bill must be repealed; the next, when he said that the Underwood tariff must be replaced by a protective tariff; the third, when he declared that the whole Democratic legislative accomplishment must be wiped off the books for the good of the country."

At last we have a clear and well-cut issue. All who favor the repeal of the LaFollette shipping bill, all who favor the repeal of the Underwood tariff, all who favor the repeal of the Federal Reserve law, the Rural Credits law, the Income Tax law, the Agricultural Extension act, the Child Labor law, and the other labor legislation of the Wilson administration, the Alaskan Railway bill and the other progressive and conservative legislation of the Wilson administration should vote for Mr. Hughes. Those who do not favor the wiping out of the whole Democratic legislative accomplishments should vote for President Wilson.

MISFITS

Oh yes, the r. r. men are for Hughes with a vengeance, about like this: Hughes 1, Wilson 3.

Don't get nervous over that lone sub. off the Atlantic coast. Just another daring German achievement.

In a few days it will give Hughes an opportunity to do some grumbling. Pretty near run out of material.

What's in a name. John Lightburn, a Portland jitney driver, was arrested because his lights were not burning.

We have heard of ropes of straw. Here is something that beats it:

The city council of Stanfield has ordered the street commissioner to have the street leading to the depot on Harrison road strawed as far as the city limits.

Misfits appreaciates some fine doughnuts sent him by Mrs. Captain Phillips of North Albany. They were plump, almost holeless.

Not only is Mr. Hughes Wall street's candidate, but he is conducting a Wall street campaign, says the N. Y. World.

Well, the ocean belongs to all nations, a public highway.

Try, Try, Again.

Harrisburg Bulletin: Once more government engineers have decided that the Willamette river is easily navigable as far as Eugene. A small boat was paddled down the river some weeks ago. Aboard were a few inspectors. Similar trips have been made heretofore. The reports have always come up immediately after that the river was navigable, a dandy stream, get busy with your boats. But somehow the chaps that own the boats have other ideas, they refuse to run a boat even as far as Harrisburg. The fact must not be lost sight of however that $10,000 has been appropriated by the government to make a survey of the river from Corvallis to Eugene.

Sample of Sarcasm.

Salem Journal: If republican claims are correct as to what the states are going to do at the coming election, President Wilson might as well pack his grip about the first of March and get ready to move over into New Jersey. One enthusiastic correspondent says Mr. Wilson cannot carry Texas, and Lamar Tooze says Massachusetts is solid for Hughes. Those two statements should settle it.
