WHY FOR WILSON.

By George Creel.

Woodrow Wilson stands for courage and achievement; Charles E. Hughes stands for evasion and criticism.

No citizen is in doubt as to the president's position on all the great questions of the day. What he has done is a matter of record; what he intends to do is set forth in simple, understandable English. What citizen is able to say what Mr. Hughes would have done or what he will do?

He quarrels meanly and persistently with everyone of the great laws that Woodrow Wilson has driven through. Currency and tariff legislation, income and inheritance taxes, workmen's compensation, shipping bill, rural credits, trade commission, and even the child labor law have been made the targets of his peevishness, but not once has he dared say:

"I will repeal them."
But when pressed for his own attitude, takes refuge in the coy statement:

"I will be firm."
He does not scruple to make political capital out of the Lusitania's dead, but will not say what he himself would have done.

Belgium figures in his speeches, but he declines to state whether or not he would have the United States protest.

The navy bill, indorsed by Admiral Dewey, as the "best ever passed," and the army bill alike receive his censure, but no human power is able to drag a word from him with regard to what he considers "adequate" preparedness.

His lips were sealed during the days when the eight hour bill was before congress. As leader of his party he sent no word to Republican senators and representatives asking them to vote against the measure, though a filibuster could have depleted it. But before the ink was dry on the president's signature he burst out in noisy denunciation. Even so, he does not say:

"I will repeal it."
Never was the issue so clear-cut between courage and cowardice, between honesty and hypocrisy, between performance and prostration. On the one hand stands a president who has given peace with honor, preparedness without militarism and prosperity with justice. On the other stands a candidate without an issue, without a principle, without a policy.

POODLE DOG POLITICS.

Salem Journal: The Portland representative of the "Woman's part," an organization said to be financed by the Newport society women whose energies have heretofore been devoted chiefly to giving banquets to poodle dogs and pet monkeys, sends out the following: "The misstatement that President Wilson is a true supporter of suffrage has been given rather wide circulation through the Democratic circles. The fact that President Wilson has had three and one-half years in which to demonstrate his interest in national suffrage for the women of the country." Well, suppose it is true that President Wilson is not in favor of woman suffrage except thru action of the states—the plan endorsed by both republican and democratic parties in their platforms—what did the republican party do to further suffrage as a national issue in 30 or 40 years of undisturbed supremacy? Certainly the republicans did nothing and the record is to their credit because the right of women to vote should be settled by the respective states and not by the nation, just as the republican national platform adopted at Chicago declares. Hughes repudiated his own platform when he declared for national suffrage in the evident hope of securing financial help from New York swell society set, who have taken up politics as a fad when not attending their monkey dinners, or at the suggestions of their husbands, who are railroad or trust millionaires and are naturally interested in the success of Hughes.

MISFITS

Scratch 'em cowboys.

Some round up this Western Oregon aggregation of cowboy stunts.

When the rough is cut out there is a good deal of intense interest. The achievements of the experts in manipulating horses is a marvel of skill.

Beans are too much for bridges.

From the start Boston had the edge on Brooklyn.

Booze always causes trouble. It's built that way.

It's as natural for booze to bust things as it is for water to run off a duck's back.

Some mighty good riders at the round up.

They can't beat some riders of hobbies in sticking on though.

Take W. S. U'ren, for instance, what horse could buck him off a single-tax saddle.

Open Letter to Hughes.

(By Luther H. Rice.)
Dear Mr. Hughes:
You'll please excuse
My dullness if I seem obtuse,
Or fail to properly enthuse,
When you break loose.

The papers give me all the news
And more advice than I can use;
But when I try to get your views
On public questions, then $ lose
My patience, and I sigh and say
"Oh, what's the use!"

I give the devil all his dues;
I rather liked you, Mr. Hughes,
When you were judge. But when you chose

To be a knocker and abuse
Our president, I must refuse
To read your "ooze."

The Democrats you still accuse;
Your lamentations I peruse;
These may alarm—they can't amuse,
And thinking men they won't confuse;
But altogether, Brother Hughes,
You're too profuse.

One final word before adieu;
If you would stand in Wilson's shoes
You'll have to try some other ruse—
For, by the gods, you're going to lose!
The Republican party will get its dues;

You're up against it, Mr. Hughes.
