MAUD HOFFMAN TO RETURN TO U. S. ON A VISIT

It is announced that Miss Maud Hoffman, who has obtained a splendid reputation as an actress, making a reputation in London, will return to the U. S. this winter for a visit, and her old-time Oregon friends will hope that she will extend the trip from New York to Oregon, in which state she was born, a native of Benton county. She was a resident of Corvallis for a good many years, and has quite a number of friends in Albany, where she was a frequent visitor, often the guest of the Mason family. Starting as a reader Miss Hoffman turned her attention to dramatics, and, going to London, became leading woman for E. S. Willard and Richard Mansfield, standing high both dramatically and socially. For several years she has not been acting, giving her attention to the writing of plays, and charitable entertainments. A beautiful woman of high personal attainments, she will meet with a hearty welcome if she comes to Oregon.

SCIENTIFIC.

A bumper to stop railroad cars has been invented that consists of a series of curved elevations in the track which gradually reduce the speed of a car, the last one being high enough to halt it.

The Turkish government has taken up a project for the irrigation of nearly half a million acres of the Adana plain, the Cilicia of antiquity, at a cost of $17,000,000 and eight or ten years of work.

The United States bureau of fisheries is planning to transport 8,000,000 humpback salmon eggs from Alaska to river in Maine and a carload of lobsters from the latter state to Washington coast waters.

Tests of a Swiss city of the relative efficiency of arc and metallic filament incandescent lamps for street lighting were decided in favor of the latter, chiefly because more agreeable to the eyes.

A ferryboat that transports automobiles across a river in Washington is operated by jacking up the rear wheels of a car and connecting them by belts to machinery that drives the boat's paddle wheels and propeller.

The available water power of European Russia, including Finland, the Urals and the Caucasus, has been estimated by government experts at 30,000,000 horsepower, of which scarcely 250,000 horsepower has been utilized.

For the most rapid photography a camera has been invented in which the film is automatically shifted by the shutter closing and which is fitted with a pistol grip to aid in aiming it, at the same time keeping it level.

Flowers are more fragrant when the sun is not shining on them, according to a French scientist, because the oils that produce the perfume is forced out by the water pressure in the plant cells and this is diminished by sunlight.

An auxiliary set of wire net blades in a new electric fan are driven by the air moved by the regular blades and pass through a tank of water, vaporizing it so that it cools and purifies the air of a room in which the fan is used.

Librarianless Library.

Guard: Did you ever hear of a library without a librarian?

Over at the small coast town of North Bend one actually exists. The reading room is in an office building. The janitor of the building turns the lights on and off, sweeps the floor, dusts and keeps things in order; the patrons do the rest.

North Bend people have a great deal of confidence in each other. They all use the library on the honor plan. They enter as they please, read what they want, return the volume or periodical to its place, and leave the reading room in as good order as it was in when they entered.

Mrs. Herbert Armstrong of North Bend is responsible for this unique library management. She recently spent three weeks at the University of Oregon observing educational methods and library management.

Former Albany Boys—

The Oregonian gives a picture of the two sons of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Boles, of Portland, formerly residents of Albany, where the boys were born. Edwin and Herbert are now 7 and 8 years of age, one a year and one day older than the other. They recently celebrated their birthdays, having a party. The boys are some kids and their Albany friends hope they may have dozens of birthdays.

W. C. T. U. Meeting—

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the public library. Mrs. Clyde Bryant will give a paper on "The Dry Nation in 1920."

DOWN ON THE BORDER.

The Soldiers Learn a Whole Lot of New Things and Then Some

By Webb Miller

(U. P. Staff correspondent)
El Paso, Tex., Nov. 16.—In enumerating the beneficial results of the mobilization of national guardsmen upon the border someone has dwelt upon the educational advantages.

"Every one of the hundred-odd thousand militiamen," they say "will go back to his home with a clearer knowledge of a new section of our country and an educational understanding of the Mexican situation."

So as soon as the teras are up and he can get "town leave" the newly arrived guardsman hurries down to learn all he can about the Mexicans and the "situation," see the famous international bridge and catch a glimpse of the turbulent country at the other end of it. It is a thrilling experience—if the "guardia" has imagination. The soldiers of the patrol furnish the educational features.

At first sight the bridge is a bit disappointing. It is a rickety wooden affair, and the "Silverio Rio Grande" mentioned frequently in the popular songs is a distinct shock. It is neither silvery nor grand. At this season of the year it is a mere thread of dirty water meandering over the sandy river bed. Usually a dozen naked Mexican children are attempting to get wet or dirtier.

But at the other end of the bridge are several sinister dark-faced figures fondling Mausers. They are leaning against the railings, each with a two-huskel hat pulled over their eyes. They are the Carranzistas customs guard. When it is time for them to go off duty someone will awaken them.

"Do them fellows ever get to snip-in?"

"Oh, yes." The veteran casts a sharp

The newcomer is visibly impressed. He envies the hardened veteran his careless demeanor in the face of danger.

"What are them red horse blankets they wear around their shoulders?"

The "rook's" thirst for information is insatiable.

FREEZING BATTERIES

A Willard Expert Says Undercharging Cause of Most Winter Troubles.

It takes a temperature of about 100 degrees below zero to freeze a fully charged battery. On the other hand, a battery that is almost exhausted will freeze at about 20 degrees above zero. In general it might be said that the car owner who keeps his battery in a fully charged condition need have no fear of his battery freezing, but he will have to watch it pretty closely to see that it is kept fully charged.

This is one of many interesting points touched upon in the new booklet on "Winter Cars" which the Willard Storage Battery Company has recently brought out. In discussing this booklet, the Willard expert says: "Whether a man uses his car or lays it up during the winter, the storage battery must have particular attention. If he runs the machine, his battery is quite heavily worked, cranking the engine in the morning when it is cold supplying the light for driving in the early evenings and long nights. Unless the battery is watched pretty closely there is the possibility of its giving out more energy than it is receiving from the generator. This means a starved battery and a starved battery freezes very easily.

"If, on the other hand, the car owner stores his car, his battery should be fully charged and inspected at regular periods so that it can be kept in a fully charged condition.

Otherwise, it is liable to be dead when it is taken out in the spring.

In the new booklet on "Winter Care" the Willard Storage Battery company has pointed out to motorists what the chief battery troubles are in winter, how they arise and how they can be avoided. This booklet ought to be very interesting to every car owner.

This booklet, like the rest of the Willard literature, can be had for the asking by any motorist who is interested.

OBJECT TO SHERWOOD

Want a Warden Who Will Treat Them as Human Beings

In open rebellion against the rule of Deputy Warden L. C. Sherwood, who has been in charge of the penitentiary since Warden John Minto's forced resignation five days ago, 300 convicts last week left their work in the prison shops and flax mill, claimed for and obtained a hearing before the state board of control, and demanded the removal of Sherwood and his staff.

After an extended hearing a board promised the men that a humanitarian warden would be appointed, but declined to give explicit assurance of the removal of Sherwood.

Convicts are human beings and should be treated as such in the state penitentiary.
