DE WOLF HOPPER'S NEW PLAY EXCITING

Mr. Goode, the Samaritan, in the Triangle photoplay feature of that name, which is to be shown at the Globe theatre for a limited engagement of two days, beginning today, is a benevolent old gentleman who becomes enmeshed in the toils of the law when he buys a stolen automobile from Foxy Monte, a crook.

While poor Mr. Goode languishes in jail, his family, believing him to be absent on a business trip, Foxy Monte makes himself most agreeable to Mrs. Goode and her charming daughter, Evelina, who promises to become his wife. Goode, not pleased with the state of the jail, and being in great sympathy with the disreputable inmates, has the place refurnished, and at expiration of his sentence invites Shifty Ed, one of the incarcerated crooks, to come and visit him.

Ed comes to make his call in company with his "gill," Shorty Sal, at a time when the Goodes are entertaining a fashionable house party, with Foxy Monte, under an alias, as one of the guests. Sal recognized Monte; and he, realizing he is in danger of exposure, denounces Ed and Sal as notorious thieves, himself robbing the guests of their jewelry to fasten suspicion upon them. While attention is directed to the two unfortunates, he persuades Evelina, whose hand has been denied him by Mr. Goode, to elope with him.

How Shifty Ed and Shorty Sal turn the tables upon Monte in gratitude to Mr. Goode, leads the film to an exciting finish.

Jim Jam Jems, of Bismark N. Dak., a paper so hot it has to be sent thru the express office to subscribers, the U. S. mail refusing it admission. Clark has evidently made money for he has just gotten married and he and his bride are going to do Europe on their bridal trip, going to the front.

Goes to Corvallis—

F. W. Blumberg has accepted a position in the department store of J. M. Nolan at Corvallis, and his family have already moved there to make their home. It is an interesting fact that Mr. Blumberg first clerked for Mr. Nolan upon coming to Albany over thirty-five years ago from Michigan, Mr. Nolan having a store at the present site of the Cusick bank. He now has one of the largest and best stocked stores in the valley.

At Morning Star—

The Ladies' Embroidery club of Morning Star Grange yesterday held an all-day Thanksgiving entertainment at the Grange hall, with a good crowd present. At noon the ladies served a fine dinner for their husbands and friends, a sumptuous affair. Before the dinner there was a program of songs, recitations, etc. During the afternoon games and contests occupied the attention of the guests. Tonight there will be a pie sale at the hall.

Up From Portland—

D. W. Wakefield, of Portland, returned home last evening after attending the annual Thanksgiving dinner at the home of L. E. Blain. Mrs. Wakefield will remain for a longer visit.
