THURSDAY, JANUARY 4, 1917.

AMERICAN WIVES America continues to be fortunate in being out of the great European war, and yet in different ways this country is interwoven with the struggle in a manner to bring the events close home.

Continually Rises. "Blessed is the man who getteth up in the chilly morning and buildeth the fire for his wife; he shall rise again." Verily, verily.

Princess Buoncampagni, who was Miss Draper of Boston and Washington, is spending a lonesome honeymoon here.

Count Dentice del Frasso is one of the general staff's motorcycling messengers. His wife was Georgiana Wilde of St. Louis.

Princess Alessandro Ruspoli has two sons under arms. One is in the army and the other in the navy.

Countess Telfener, who was Ada Hangerford, has a son in the army. Edward Kingsland, who became an Italian citizen after his widowed mother married Prince Camporeale, has been dangerously wounded at the front.

Princess Camporeale originally was Mary Bennet, a celebrated New Jersey belle. The son of the Duchess Luigi Lante della Rovere is serving with the Italian troops in Macedonia.

One of the sons of Princess Poggio Suaso Ruspoli is an aviator. The other is in the automobile service. She was formerly Josephine Curtis of New York.

All these titled Americans are also doing their own bit for their adopted country. Red Cross nursing and caring for widowed and orphaned children are the most popular services.

IT WORKS Pendleton E. O.: Conclusive proof that prohibition does lessen minor offenses such as drunkenness and disorderly conduct is furnished by a comparison of the police records of the past year and of the year 1915.

NOTICE Owing to the advance in the prices of brushes, tools and in fact all other articles used in a first-class paint shop, also you will take into consideration that we are compelled to carry the State Industrial Accident Insurance at an expense of 15 cents a man per day for the protection of our customers against liability should an accident occur.

A Coos Bay paper filled its columns with Happy New Years, 40 or 50 of them, or to be exact, 47. Older people will certainly appreciate that number.

Some School Poetry After reading the following from the Dorris Times there will no longer be a dispute as to the greatest poet in the world:

After all the spirit displayed speaks for the life of the Dorris High, something people like.
