SATURDAY NIGHT THOUGHTS.

These thoughts are going out on the 58th birthday of the world's leading emperor, William, best known as the Kaiser, central figure in the midst of the world's greatest war, a genius of high order whose ability is unquestioned; but whose motives are often impugned.
He is now unquestionably seeking peace, and, whatever the past, is entitled to credit for his efforts.

In the war itself there is apparently no progress at all towards victory on one side or other. People who are studying the question closely differ in opinion as to the ultimate result. Some say the allies are sure to win, others that the Teutons can never be conquered. In the meantime fortunes are going up in smoke every minute, an awful waste, and civilization is being shattered.

There can be no doubt that the devil is smacking his lips in glee, almost jealous of his European competitors for hell's honors.

The President's last peace address is attracting the attention of the world. Whatever opinions it engenders it is setting the world to thinking. It may be visionary; but it is working in the brains of men. Perhaps there isn't enough that is practical in it; but the tendency will be to results. Definite or not, it speaks for a great brain back of it, with a mission above commercialism.

In Oregon the session of the state legislature is the principal event. It is easy to sit on a fence and criticize the man passing by, and so it is easy to criticize a state legislature, and most of us do it. The truth is, there is often a good deal of reason for doing so, because of the things done by a legislature contrary to the interests of the masses, due to the varied influences that emanate in a lobby and radiate thru the membership, dominated by special interests constantly seeking an advantage.

Legislatures will never be run as they should be until the members learn to appreciate the fact that they are the servants of all the people of the state and not of big interests or their own county or district. Men should be large enough to rise above their associations and friendships.

It will be a fine thing when public servants are as careful of the money of their master as they are of their own.

There are personal spendthrifts; but the average man watches his own concerns carefully.

Oregonians are watching earnestly for the arrival of Mr. Bondary, due in a short time. Whether rightly named or not will be a matter for consideration later. But whatever tricks are resorted to, under the proposed new law there can't very much leak thru, and for practical purposes the state will be about as dry as a bone.

Every smoker in Albany should use McCourt's Hand Made or Albany Special Cigar made by the Willamette Cigar Mfg. Co., and sold by all good dealers.

WISITS.

A former captain of the U. O. football team is now mayor of Athens, and yet some people declare that football is antagonistic to brain development.

Europe is not big enough to appreciate America's ideas of peace.

Some big scholars in Germany say the President's address was that of a theorist, without enough practical in it. Well, how can you drive nails without something to drive them in.

Peace movements must start on theory, even visions, and work up into substance.

Wanted, a pencil sharpener that doesn't waste all the lead.

Enough peanut politics at Salem these days to litter the floor of both houses.

A sample is the clerkship biz. of Senator Bingham.

It is to be regretted that more senators are not absent. For instance President Moser.

Here's a joke ament the present cost of existence. It does not come from Puck, Judge, Life or any bright surveyor of modern humor. It's up to the minute, just the same, for it originated in our meat market this morning: "What's the price of that steak?" we said. "A dollar will cover it," piped the butcher. We took a dollar from our jeans and proved that he was right. The dollar completely covered it.—Ex

The man who does anything in the world has enemies.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead

Who never to himself hath said, "My trade of late is getting bad, 'I'll try another ten-inch ad." If such there be, so, mark him well; For him no bank account shall swell, No angel watcheth gold and stars, To welcome home a millionaire. The man who never asks for trade By local line or ad displayed, Cares more for rest than worldly gain And patronage but gives him pain. Tread lightly, friends, let no rude sound Disturb his solitude profound; Here let him live in calm repose Unthought except by men he owes. And when he dies, so plant him deep that naught may break his dreamless sleep:

Wherein no clamor may dispel The quiet that he loved so well; And that the world may know its loss Place on his grave a wreath of moss: And on a stone, "Here—lies— A chump who wouldn't advertise."

HIGH PRICES RESTRICTED

Irregular tendencies again appear in trade and industry, with business rising in some channels and falling in others, and with wholesome conservatism still the outstanding and most reassuring feature. With the requirements of many large concerns covered far ahead, the necessity of urgent purchasing is obviously less apparent and signs multiply of the restricting influence of high prices, some interests holding off because of the knowledge that reaction is inevitable, though as yet there is little evidence of yielding. Even with many buyers making future commitments with increased caution, new demands bulk heavy in the aggregate and it remains the fact that in some instances profitable contracts are being rejected, either through the inability or disinclination of manufacturers to engage themselves further. Owing to adverse working conditions, not a few producers find it difficult to make substantial progress in reducing accumulated orders and the transportation congestion still causes much complaint of tardy deliveries of materials and merchandise, though some relief from the car shortage is indicated. With the change to lower temperatures in sections where the weather was unseasonable, retail trade has responded promptly and the large distribution to consumers throughout the country seems remarkable when the element of the high costs is considered. Both bank clearings and railroad earnings clearly show that general business is sustained in exceptional volume, while the noteworthy ease in money is an important factor making for satisfactory mercantile collections.

With the bank surplus rising 350 per cent in six weeks to above $180,000,000, it is not strange that many people are predicting continued ease in money. Low rates are logical with the Clearing House members so strongly entrenched and nothing suggests a reversal of present conditions, at least not in the immediate future. Additional foreign financing is in prospect, but the recent liquidation in stocks and farm staples has lessened the demand for accommodation from speculative channels, and currency is flowing its way in volume from the interior, as usual at this period. Moreover, the receipt of fully $50,000,000 in gold this month has obviously worked in borrowers' favor, and local banking institutions are transferring funds to London for investment in prime commercial bills, because of the higher interest return offered in that market. Meanwhile, sterling exchange moves upward gradually, being strengthened mainly by cheap money here and the announcement of a new $250,000,000 British loan in this country.
