AN OPPORTUNITY

How The Landless May Make Use Of The Farm Loan Act To Get Farms of Their Own.

By Frank R. Wilson, of The Federal Farm Loan Bureau. (Written for the United Press)

(Written for the United Press)

Washington. Jan. 26.—The question has been frequently asked, "How can a renter who has not saved 50 percent of the purchase price of land make use of the Federal Farm Loan Act, to get land of his own?" The answer is, by means of a first mortagage given under the Farm Loan Act for 50 per cent of the purchase sprice—provided this does not exceed 50 percent of the appraised value— and second mortgage given to the former owner of the land or to a bank or private money lender, for the balance. It must be borne in mind that the amount which can be borrowed under the Farm Loan Act is limited to 50 per cent of the appraised value of the land, and this is written on the assumption that the tenant will not pay more for his land than it is actually worth, or, in other words, its assumption that the tenant will not pay more for his land than it is actually worth, or, in other words, its appraised value as contemplated under the Farm Loan Act. To furnish a concrete example: Suppose John Smith, a renter, wants to buy 100 nares of land, walued at $50 an acre, the total purchase price would be $5000, but John Smith has not the money to buy it. Under the Farm Loan Act, Smith would be entitled borrow $2500 of the appraised value, and the proper and lumber men. Various group confersable proper and lumber men. Various group confersable proper and lumber men. Various group confersable propersive words are properly to buy it.

Now let us say that the second mort age would draw 6 per cent and could be arranged so as to be retired in en years. The interest on this $2500 Long Line Fiber Brings $1000 Per Ton; Test to be Severe One.

For the first time in history Oregon figures in the export flax trade. The Yark Street Spinning mills of Belfast, one of the largest plants of the kind in the world, has just hought all the long-line fiber of the flax grown experimentally at Eugene and Portland Chambers of Commerce. The fires on the National Forests of this District for 1916 were distributed as follows: Alaska 28, Washington, 465, and Oregon 683. In number of fires reported, the Siskiyou National Forest in Oregon leads the District with 243 fires. The Snoqualmie Forest in Washington stands second with a record of 177 fires for the season. The least number of fires occurred on the Tongass Forest, Alaska, where three were reported.

Sixty per cent of these 1176 fires they had gained headway enough to cover a quarter of an acre. Thirty-two fires, less than three per cent of the total number, burned over more than ten acres and did, damage to exceed $100 before they were put under control. Any one of the 1144 other fires if left to itself might have become a large forest fire, says Dis-trict Forester Cecil.

Campers caused 23 per cent of all the fires reported. Lightning was responsible for 19 per cent, railroads for eight and one-half, brush burning six. The remainder were from miscellaneous and unknown causes.
