possible factors that cause deviations from the normal growth. Methods of examinations and measurements of children are discussed and treatment applicable to the different types of cases are suggested.

Dr. DeBusk took his doctor's degree in Education at Clarke University and has taught in Southwestern College, Kansas; University of Indiana; Teachers' College, in Colorado, and was a member of the staff of the Children's Institute in Worcester, Mass. He is at present in the School of Education of the University of Oregon.

The lecture is a part of the extension work of the University and is free. Parents and friends of education are urged to be present.

DEATH REV. CARLETON

The funeral of Rev. Israel Carleton, who died last Sunday on his farm, home near Lacombe, was held in the First Presbyterian Church at Lebanon Tuesday.

Mr. Carleton was born at Haverhill, Mass., on March 13, 1832. Thirty years ago he came to Oregon and settled on a farm of 640 acres near Lacombe, on which he resided until his death. He was married in New York in 1863 to Miss Phoebe Miller, who died in 1894. He was married again in 1902, his last wife dying two years ago.

He is survived by seven children. They are: Miss Maud V. Carleton and Miss Olive J. Carleton, of Klamath Falls; Mrs. John G. Swan and G. H. Carleton, of Merrill, Or.; F. R. and B. C. Carleton, of Lebanon, and Professor E. F. Carleton, of Salem, who for 15 years has been assistant State Superintendent of public instruction.

GRANGE MEETING

On Saturday, Jan. 27th, Tangent Grange held its first meeting since it was reorganized.

The day was very unpleasant and the roads quite muddy, but notwithstanding this there were 40 present. The bad weather caused those who attended to arrive late, but they were full of enthusiasm, and commenced work with a determination to make this, the first meeting, a success.

Three more members were admitted and with the appointment and election of several committees occupied quite a bit of time.

Dinner was announced and a recess was taken for an hour, which was spent in partaking of a substantial repast and visiting.

Dinner over we again assembled and the business of the afternoon was taken up.

The committee which was appointed to confer with the I. O. O. F. with reference to renting their hall made a partial report which was discussed at some length and laid over until the next meeting. The committee was retained for service.

We now feel that a wave of prosperity has come our way and that we will soon be gaining in strength and influence.

Visitors will always be welcome and hope they will improve the opportunity to assist us to make one of the best granges in Linn county.

NEW SCHOOL PLAN

Roseburg Educators Have Scheme for Making Clean Faces and Clothes Count for Credits

Roseburg Review

As indicated in a plan not yet fully matured but practically decided upon and which is being sponsored by two prominent Douglas county educators, education in this state may soon be broadened to include the improvement of personal appearance as well as the pupil's mind. Dirty hands, unbrushed teeth and unwholesome clothes are special objects of attack, and these will probably concentrate the greater efforts of the censors.

The plan is yet chiefly within the brains of County School Supt. O. C. Brown and School Supervisor H. M. Cross, although at a conference here Monday the men were nearly agreed as to its most important features. As soon as it is completely outlined, it will be placed before the state board and with their sanction will be installed in the schools of this county. If it proves successful as in the case of other plans, of which it is a close imitation, it may then be adopted by all counties in the state.

According to Supt. Brown, it is planned to follow the idea applied in the teaching of agriculture. Grades in the latter have been made up of a certain per cent obtained for practical gardening. If the children have raised good gardens in connection with their studies, 30 per cent has been given for their year's work in agriculture. In the same way the cleanliness of the pupils will give possibly 30 per cent of their grade in physiology. The object of both studies is to encourage practise as well as the acquirement of theory and it is believed the increase in grades for applying the rules they learn will bring the desired result.

HIGH COST OF BABES

Babies Cost $150 to $200 More Apiece in England Nowadays

London, Jan. 31.—(By Mail)—Babies are between $150 and $200 costlier in England today than they were before the war.

An expert has just figured out what it means for British fathers and mothers to have babies in war times.

On the annual basis it costs about $10 more for an infant's milk than two years ago. Baby food costs two cents more a feed and even bottles are up a third. Methylated spirit to heat the infant's night food is now more than double the normal price.

Infantile garments cost thirty-three and one-third per cent more just now if they are made of wool; if cotton or woolen mixture its an additional 25 per cent and 15 per cent if merely cotton. The expert suggests that the high price of infant's long frocks, flannels, cot blankets, woolly shawls, vests, shoes, the nurse's baby bath paraphernalia is enough to make ordinary parents gasp. Even the bath costs a third more, the bath thermometer is up 25 per cent and toilet powder has skyrocketed 100 per cent.

If the baby is ill, medicines, beginning with good old castor oil, are doubled in price. Olive oil is up 50 per cent, glycerine 15, lanoline 300 and even the price of dill water is not what it used to be.

Perambulators that sold for $40 at the beginning of the war now cost the enduring parent about $55. A cot he might have bought for $5 two years ago now takes about $8 of his bankroll. When he has provided the cot he can buy the mattress at one and one-fourth the original cost. High chairs cost $5 now. They used to cost $4.

Nurses in England now do their work for $50 additional to the usual wage. The nurses' food costs an additional 33 1-3 per cent.

Thus the Rooseveltian theory isn't encouraged, the infant expert observes.

CARTOONIST AVIATOR

Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 31.—Establishing a precedent by being the first aviator and owner of an aeroplane to enlist as a private in his country's military service, Charles E. Hays, cartoonist, reported and birdman, today joined the flying squad of the United States Marines at the Aeronautic Station here.

The youthful aviator, who rejected the temptation to go abroad in belief that his country has the first demand for his services, is eager to demonstrate his skill as a flyer, and expects to win rapid promotion in the "soldiers of the sea."

Young Hays says that he hopes to achieve success through merit alone, and ignores the inference that by owning and operating an aeroplane he is bound to rise in the world.

TANGENT NEWS OF LOCAL INTEREST

Homer Speer and wife have returned from an extended visit at the home of his brother in California.

Mrs. Nellie Aubrey has gone on a visit at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Harrett in Eugene.

S. C. Sharp, once a resident of Tangent but now working in the S. P. shops in Portland, visited with his mother near Tangent Tuesday.

L. B. Luper and son Delmer went to Portland last week to take in the big automobile show.

R. C. Archibald was taken to Albany last week suffering with appendicitis. It was thought likely he would be compelled to undergo an operation but at this time he is much better; he is under the care of Dr. Stark.

The I. O. O. F. lodge at Tangent has bought a lot of Homer Speer and have the concrete foundation for a 30x70 foot hall already for the erection of a two-story building, which they expect to finish up soon.

J. N. Ross, the S. P. Agent, has bought a lot on which he intends to build a house the coming spring.

Mr. Bennett, the Tangent butcher and barber, will put up a building on his land lately bought of A. D. Hudson, which he will use for a meat market.

Frank Slate, the Tangent blacksmith has several autos on hand which he is repairing. His brother John is assisting him.

The Pacific Highway from Tangent to Albany has all been graveled and is now in good condition for winter travel.

W. C. Scott has again been appointed road supervisor for the present year. We hope he will succeed in fixing up the roads leading into Tangent as well as the Pacific Highway, for many people who live nearby would like a good road to reach Tangent.

The fall grain all around here is still very small but looks vigorous, and is all ready to grow when the warmer weather comes.

FERN HOBBS AT WORK

Former Secretary of Gov. West Now in Office As Clerk Assistant in Work.

Roseburg Review—Miss Fern Hobbs, formerly private secretary to Oswald West, while he was serving as governor of Oregon, and at present in the employ of the United States Government, spent this morning in Roseburg checking over and verifying the report of the local tax collecting office with regard to the monies due Douglas County from the Government on the lands of the Oregon & California Railroad Company.

Miss Hobbs was frequently in the limelight during the West administration and her name was closely connected with the sensational raid on the town of Copperfield a few years ago. On that occasion Miss Hobbs went to Copperfield with B. K. Lawson, when warden of the state penitentiary, and other officials, and confiscated great quantities of liquor. Prior to that time Copperfield had been operating wide open, and numerous complaints had reached the Governor's office regarding the lawlessness that prevailed there.

As a result of this raid and other achievements that marked Miss Hobbs' work in connection with the Governor's office, she was made the subject of many flattering articles published in the Eastern press. Equally as much space was devoted to her operations in Oregon by the Western newspapers.

Immediately upon her arrival here this morning, she went to the sheriff's office, where she was given access to the tax rolls. She quickly performed her work and was ready to leave for the north at 2 o'clock this afternoon. She lunched at a local restaurant. Miss Hobbs is a comely young lady and is a fluent and willing conversationalist. She enjoys discussing her present work, but dislikes to refer back to the past. "You know as much about the Copperfield raid as I do," remarked Miss Hobbs this afternoon, when asked for a story regarding her operations there. "I am no longer in the employ of the state and why should I recall the official acts of long ago?"

Miss Hobbs makes her headquarters at the office of Attorney Oswald West, at Portland.

THRILLING STORY

How A Woman Escaped a Band of Hungry Wolves by Presence Of Mind.

In view of the recent death in Southern Oregon of a man by a band of wolves, the following story in the American Magazine, told by a woman, will be read with great interest by Oregonians. It is one that would make a hit in a movie picture:

"I had not traversed much more than two thirds of the distance thru the hollow when some instinct made me look over my shoulder. At the same instant a mournful howl came over the hill. What I saw on looking backward was four gaunt wolves loping with great easy leaps down the hillside several rods away, and even while I glanced, a fifth, larger and more gaunt, came over the brow of the hill. I was not certain that they were pursuing me. I did not wait to make sure. I turned and ran. Terror added wings to my footsteps, for I had heard many gruesome tales of lone women travelers attacked by famished beasts. But even as I ran I did not lose my head. I was near enough the Sharrow road to hope that I might reach the old hickory tree that grew just beyond the rail fence at the roadside. If I could get there first, I could with a flying leap make the top rail and climb the tree out of reach of voracious jaws.

"I made the leap and caught the lower limb of the tree, and, as I leaped, the foremost wolf, with an angry snarl, jumped and caught my skirt in his gleaming teeth, and for a second I hung twice sky and earth, one hand grasping the stout hickory limb and the other the molasses, and the powerful wolf pulling me backward. I looked around, and quicker than my tongue can say it, I raised my heavy nail and smote him with all my might upon the jaw. With a howl he turned a somersault in the snow, and I drew myself into the tree barely in time to escape the clutch of the other four. They leaped back and forth from around to fence rail, and snarled and snapped, but without result. I had escaped them by a second's time."
