NEVER-STRETCH MATTRESS

Why it won't stretch.—The sliding is secured in such a way that the mattress is held in place by the sliding action of the spring. The mattress is made of 45% cotton and Tulipwood. By sliding a finger between the mattress and the spring, you can see that the mattress is held in place by the sliding action of the spring. The top and bottom sides are made in duplicate, each taking pressure directly against the spring, and when driven down into the spring, the mattress is held in place by the spring. The mattress is made of 45% cotton and Tulipwood. (See 5 the patent laws) on all genuine Never-Stretch Mattresses.

Shedd men are putting their plows to the sub-soil, for spring is here now.

Mr. and Mrs. Margerson have returned from a visit through most of the southern part of California. They went buggy riding with an ostrich for a horse on an ostrich farm, as one of their experiences.

On the sick list of Shedd are George Maxwells two daughters, Karl Arnold and Ed Haverland.

Sam Pugh had his arm broken Tuesday evening while doctoring a sick horse, the horse reared forward and broke both bones in his left arm just above the elbow.

NERVE OF A STEEPLEJACK.

His Coolness and Resource in a Time of Extreme Peril.

Ordinary people standing on a narrow ledge whence they can see down 200 or 300 feet are so appalled by the danger of falling that their nerves give way, their bodies flinch and there comes to some at least an impulse to end the mental strain by a leap into the gulf. But the steeplejack is indifferent to height and proximity to the abyss.

The coolness and resource of these men were never better shown than in a case which happened in upper New York state a few years ago. A steeplejack had down his kite over a chimney and subsequently drawn himself up to the top. He was just beginning his inspection of the work when by some mistake he dropped his rope and was left, like St. Simeon Stylites, alone on his pillar.

Attempts were made to fly another kite over him, but the wind had dropped. There were iron ladders inside the chimney, but the fires would have to be drawn and the chimney let cool for hours.

The steeplejack was then seen to un-lace one of his shoes, take off the long blue stocking worn by such workmen and set to work carefully to unravel it, knitting the pieces of yarn together when necessary.

He then fastened a stone to the end, plumbed the depth, picked the other stocking to pieces and added it to the first length of yarn and let it down far enough to meet a tall ladder, from which he drew up first a piece of strong string, next a rope and then after completing his inspection of the chimney top lowered himself to the ground.—Los Angeles Times.

Origin of an Old Saying.

Many think that the saying "Blood is thicker than water" originated with Commodore Tattall of the United States navy, who assisted the English in the Chinese waters, and in his dispatch to his government, justified his interference by quoting the words. It is, however, an old English proverb and is to be found in Bay's "Collection of English Proverbs," published in 1672.
Walter Scott, too, makes Dandie Din-mont say: "Weel, bluid's thicker than water." She's welcome to the cheese and the fumes, just the same.—Philadelphia Press.

An Offensive Cravat.

A man once called upon Whistler with a letter of introduction, and an amusing scene followed arising out of the fact that the visitor was wearing a red necktie. Whistler declared it interfered with the color scheme of his room and "put him off" a picture he was painting in quite a different "key." Finally he obliged him to take off the offending cravat before he would con-descend to exchange another word with him.

Faulty in His Diagnosis.

Mrs. Malaprop—Young Sharp will have to apologize to me before I speak to him again.

Miss Interest—Did he insult you?
Mrs. Malaprop—Did he? The last time I met him I told him that my uncle had locomotor ataxia, and he asked me if he whistled at crossings.—Stray Stories.

Rather Demoralizing.

"Are you still thinking about buying a motorcar?"

"Yes. It doesn't cost me anything to think about buying one."

"Don't you fool yourself. When a man gets an idea like that he's liable to neglect his business."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Stone Wall.

"Notice—Why do they call it Wall street? Lower—Pump up against it and you'll find out."—New York Times.

LARRY McLEAN IS

NOW IN THE MOVIES

Former Portland Coast League and Now N. Y. Giant Catcher With Fox Films.

Shades of John McGraw!

Shades of Christy Mathewson!

Shades of Walter McCreedie!

Listen, ye millions of baseball and motion picture enthusiasts:

Larry McLean is playing an accordian and, horrors of horrors, in a bar-room, too.

The tangled skein of fate has caught the irresistible Larry, late star of the New York Giants' catching forces; Larry, who shone in the World's Series; Larry, upon whom Matty has been counting so strongly to do some of the backstopping for his Cincinnati Reds during the National League's coming season. Larry went up to the big league from the Portland Pacific coast team.

Lithe-limbed Larry is now gracing about the floor of a saloon over in New Jersey.

Those sinuous arms which whipped the ball to second and caught many a baserunner on his tardy way to the keystone sack, are now engaged in squeezing popular airs out of an old accordion.

But the peerless Matty need not shed any bitter tears. John McGraw need not hold Larry up as an object lesson to his youthful rookies, for Mc-Lean, as they say in baschallere, is still in the pink of condition.

He has fallen from grace.

The saloon in which he vents his musical skill is merely that represented by a motion picture "set."

Larry, following in the footsteps of the immortal Ty Cobb, has succumbed to the lure of the photoplay camera. Nor did he succumb alone.

With him went Walter Bennett, who cavorted with the Pittsburgh Pirates not so long since.

Both these baseball artists will appear in the Fox production now being made by director William Nigh.
Bennett's debut in the silent drama will be in position very similar to that of McLean.

Larry is sort of "filling in for the films" until spring training begins for the Cincinnati team, which he will then join.

"Baseball's all right," he said, "but
—"

He stopped to survey the palms of his hands, calloused from years of service behind the bat.

"Well," he continued, "it's much more pleasant to have the camera instead of a speed-demon pitcher "shooting" at you."

Blossom Time in the Golden State

A friend just back from Southern California says: "The weather was fine, in fact too warm for heavy clothes. Many were bathing at the beaches. Oranges were ripe in the Valleys, while the mountains nearby were covered with snow."

With warm sunny weather it will not be long before the blossoms on the trees will be everywhere announcing that spring time is here.

Take a vacation trip now where life is different; where climate surroundings and amusements are not of the ordinary.

Spend a different February.
