WORLDS IN THE MAKING.

What is Taking Place in the Great Nebula in Andromeda.
We look today on the things of a century, a millennium ago. Light traveling at the rate of 180,000 miles a second requires more than four years to come from the nearest star, perhaps thousands and tens of thousands of years from the farthest; hence in every case they are not what is, but what was.

Thousands of nebulae have been discovered in the heavens. The spiral pattern of some few nebulae is long been confirmation of the theory that they are the real beginnings of a solar system. But there has recently come in much evidence of the spiral character of other nebulae that the conclusion seems forced upon us that practically all are in a state of rotation and are hence supplying the centrifugal force to throw off the rings which roll themselves up into planets revolving about central suns.

When opportunity is given to look directly down upon a nebula there results startling evidence of its being in rotation. There is no other way of explaining its remarkable details of structure. Some look like the propeller blades of a motorboat; some are actually caught in the act of throwing off rings which are seen condensing at certain centers, rolling themselves into planets, henceforth to travel around their suns. The great nebula in Andromeda gives striking evidence that it is working out another and a greater solar system than our own.

In short, it seems that in studying the nebulae we are being admitted to the very workshop of the universe and are permitted to watch the actual process of turning out worlds. Nothing in the heavens is better fitted to fill the very soul with awe. As in the case of the "fixed stars," our lives are too brief, too feeble our eyes, to detect the actual motion.—Frederick Campbell's "Suns and Worlds in the Making."

WAR CORRESPONDENTS.

They Don't Have the Liberty Now They Had in Former Times.

In his book, "Over the Front in an Aeroplane," the author, Ralph Pulitzer, tells of the experiences and the treatment of the press representatives in the great European war. He says:

"The war correspondent does not buy himself a motor, because if he did he would not be allowed to use it. All he buys himself is a railway ticket. When it comes to motoring he is packed with an assortment of fellow correspondents into military autos specially assigned by the army authorities.

"He does not buy a shelter tent or a sleeping bag, because at a certain scheduled hour every evening the staff officer who has him and his colleagues in tow will lead him into an excellent hotel in some large town or other and assign him to a comfortable bedroom engaged ahead. He does not buy canned provisions, because before going to bed the officer buys him an appetizing dinner, follows it up with a good breakfast the next morning and at lunch time introduces him to a courteous general or at a pinch to another hotel keeper, by one or the other of whom he is supplied with a prearranged and excellent lunch.

"He does not buy a revolver, because it would be gently but firmly taken away from him if he did.

"If he is sensible he does not even buy himself binoculars, for the officers by whom he will find himself uninterceptedly accompanied will be glad to let him use theirs, and, though he may not look so picturesque without them, he will be much more comfortable if he has any hands and knees work to do.

"Finally he will not have a word to say as to where he wants to go or what he wants to see, for that has all been settled in advance."

Where Gannets Swarm.

One of the most remarkable sights in the world is Bird Island, in South Africa, for the reason that during some months of the year it is literally covered with gannets. Not a foot of ground is to be seen anywhere. Day after day thousands of gannets strut around, and they are so close to each other that the whole island seems actually alive. The sight can never be forgotten.

She Meant Well.

An independence bride, in order to show her love for her husband, decided to launder her husband's shirts. She doubled the amount of starch. When she removed them from the line she couldn't get them through the back door. She didn't cry, but sent them to a laundry.—Kansas City Journal.

Winded.

"Can't you let me have something on account today, Mr. Jones?" asked the bill collector. "It has been running a long time, you know, and"—

"Yes, I know it has," snapped Jones. "It's a wonder to me the darned thing wouldn't get out of breath."—New York World.

For Golfers.

Bunker—Did you read about the golfer who dropped dead right after making a 210 yard drive? Hunker—No, but I have heard of several golfers who have talked countless friends to death after holing ten foot putts.—Puck.

A Perfect Likeness.

Mrs. S.—Oh, what a beautiful face! Who is it? Painter—That, madam, is your daughter. Mrs. S.—What a perfect likeness! I think you must paint me!

A Household Jewel.

"Is your new maid competent?" "Very. She can even fool agents and peddlers into believing that she's mistress of the house."

THE MOST SENSATIONAL COW IN THE WORLD

The purebred Holstein-Friesian cow, Segis Fayne Johanna 114658, realized the long-cherished hopes of enthusiasts and electrified the dairy world when, under an official seven-day test ending January 8, she established a new world's record for butterfat production, producing in seven consecutive days 730.8 pounds of milk containing 50.68 pounds of butter. This remarkable animal has scored a brilliant triumph for the Black-and-White breed.

Repairs hold up Boats—

On account of the repairs which are being made to the Oregon City locks, the regular trips up the Willamette by the Oregon City Transportation steamer "Grahamons" will be abandoned during the coming week. The service will be resumed as soon as the repairs are completed.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Aldrich, of Mill City, spent the night at the Hotel Albany. Mr. Aldrich is connected with the Hammond Lumber Company.

MOOSE GATHER FOR ORGANIZATION OF PARTIES

St. Louis, April 12.—National Progressive leaders gathered here today to unite under the Moose banner the liberal elements of all political parties to organize a party and a campaign in 1920. Neither Theodore Roosevelt nor George W. Perkins was invited. Albert D. Norton, who has been a member of nearly all parties and an ardent Mooser since 1912, is the leading spirit of the convention. The plan is to weld liberal elements of the Democratic, Republican, Socialist, Labor, Prohibition and Women's parties in a National Liberal Party. Among those interested in the party are Matthew Hale of Boston, formerly a member of the Moose National committee; J. A. H. Hopkins of New Jersey, John Parker of Louisiana, and others. It is hoped Bainbridge Colby, Victor Murdock, and other middle western leaders will take an active part in the convention. Norton and other leaders said today the "Solid South" would yield only to a third party that embraced the ideals of all parties now in the field. Permanent working plans for the future will be formulated and it was learned that nationwide prohibition and a declaration for universal military training will be added to the platform of 1912, which, it is expected will be endorsed. A committee of the Socialist party which has been in session here for nearly a week will meet the executive committee of the Bull Moosers.
