BALFOUR'S WARNING

"Realize, people of America, that you face a real fight. And be prepared for great individual sacrifice—for it will be demanded."
In the above words Arthur J. Balfour, British Foreign Secretary and head of the British Commission which has just landed on United States soil, sounded a warning to the American people that our war with Germany will be no international "joy ride."
It is serious business that brings the great British statesman and diplomat to our shores and it is a serious note that he sounds to the American public on the day of his arrival.
In another paragraph Balfour says: "The war will be of long duration. It will tax our resources of men; it will require all of our financial strength; it will command all of our commercial and industrial energy; it will involve the individual effort of every true American. Time will bring the war home to you—as it has done to us."
The British Foreign Secretary did not brave the perils of the Atlantic for the purpose of frightening the United States. He came for the very definite purpose of working out a practical scheme of cooperation in the great task of breaking the backbone of the Prussian military system. He has no illusions in regard to the weakness of the common enemy. He makes no impossible promises of a speedy victory. He merely tells us that our war with the Central Powers will tax our resources of men and our financial strength and asks us to prepare for the sacrifice.
If the message which Balfour brings to America does not impress the members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives it will be because their ears are deaf to reason or because their eyes are blinded with pacifism.

Cannery Committee Busy—E. C. Roberts commenced work this morning in North Albany obtaining signatures of the growers who will agree to grow the products for the new cannery.
