

BROWN WILL GO EAST TO SELL LOGAN JUICE

George G. Brown, president of the Albany Fruit Juice Company, is getting ready to take another trip East, going as far as New York and other Eastern seaboard cities. He will line up some advance business for this fall's product and do educational work.

The plant, under Manager Lewis, is getting another carload of juice ready to ship today or Thursday. They are troubled in getting bottles at present, and if enough can be secured two cars of juice will be shipped out weekly, enough to keep 15 or 20 men busy at the plant.

An order was received this morning for 200 gallons of juice from New Zealand. The fame of the Albany product has traveled far.

ALBANY RECRUITS STILL IDLE AT BREMERTON YARDS

A letter received from James Grigg by yesterday states that the party which left here last week for Bremerton to go into the naval reserve is all split up. McLennon, Hunter, Whetstone and Gilgou have been transferred to San Francisco; Weingart and Jones are aboard the torpedo boat Goldsborough, and Frances Beal is on the Marblehead. The rest are still aboard the training ship Philadelphia.

They are still in the dark as to what they are going to do, but they are supplied with uniforms now and are free to leave the yards on occasions and visit Seattle and other points.

PEOPLE WITH INCOMES MAKE EARLY PAYMENTS

M. A. Miller, Collector of Internal Revenue, is jubilant over the fact that in response to a call for early payments, the people of Oregon paying income taxes have responded in splendid manner and over $100,000 was paid in before it was due.

Mr. Miller received a request from the government to get in as much money at an early date as possible, and he in turn appealed to the people. The results are most gratifying and shows a healthy spirit of patriotism among the people.

Postmaster C. M. Stewart, who was in Portland, reports that all government offices are busy and that recruiting stations are working overtime.

JULES VERNE'S FAMOUS STORY PUT IN FILMS

Predictions Made 50 Years Ago Shown in "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea."

The greatest achievement in motion pictures, the taking of pictures of human beings playing allotted roles in a drama which is being performed on the bottom of the ocean, has been accomplished by the Universal Film Company in their wonderful picture, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." The story of this photoplay is a dramatization of Jules Verne's masterpiece of imaginative fiction which has been read by millions of people under the same title. In the filming of this photodrama the marvelous Williamson inventions were utilized to take the moving pictures under the surface of the ocean. By this patented device, many thrilling scenes, including the fight with the octopus and the trip through the shark-infested waters near "Mysterious Island" were photographically recorded. The taking of this picture required two years time and the services of 2,000 actors. This photoplay, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," will be the attraction at the Globe Theatre beginning Thursday.

Ironing Kills the Germs.
One need not worry about receiving infection in clothes sent to a laundry, even though they be washed with those of other families in which there may be infectious diseases. Such, in substance, is a report just issued by the United States public health service after an investigation by M. C. Schroeder and S. G. Southland of the New York department of health. For whatever disease germs are not killed in the washing will be killed by the ironing. In fact, the ironing kills more germs than the washing. There is, however, danger in having clothes washed by a laundress at her own home, for, "owing to the close quarters in which the laundresses live, there is possibility of re-infection of the clean linen if communicable diseases are present among the members of the laundress' family."

VOTERS WHO DO NOT VOTE.

Obligations of Citizenship That Are Shamefully Neglected. It would seem that if the people were greatly concerned over any one thing above all others it would be in framing the constitution of their commonwealth—their charter of government, with which all laws and institutions are to conform and the spirit and wisdom of which enter into the moral fiber of the community. The constitution fixes the rights of the whole people, defines and circumscribes them, supposedly for many years ahead. No provision should ever be written into a state or national constitution that is not of sufficient worth and of such general application as to make it in a large measure a fundamental and permanent principle of human conduct. But an examination of the votes on the adoption of state constitutions, and especially on the adoption of important amendments to state constitutions, discloses the fact that less than one-third of the qualified voters in most states signified their preferences in the matter. The figures reveal a shameful and indefensible betrayal by the citizen of his first duty to society, to his neighbor, to the state and to the general government. We cannot study the statistics of those votes without concluding that what we need in this country above all other things is an old-fashioned revival of civic righteousness—the thorough preaching of the gospel of civic responsibility. The power and the influence of a state depend not on the manifold laws on its statute books or on the number of couples and experimental theories that it tries, or yet on the omnipotent cure of an expensive bureaucracy, but rather on the earnest, unflinching, efficient use of the instrumentalities at hand and on the faithful observance of every obligation that binds the citizen to the community, to the state and to the country.—Senator Thrall in Youth's Companion.

Experience Is the Test of Tires

Every tire claims to be the lowest-cost-per-mile tire. If you knew the experience of any considerable number of other tire users, —that would help you decide which tire makes good on the claim. We don't know about other makes of tires, but we do know —that motorists who have used United States Tires continue to use them; —that more and more motorists who used other makes of tires are turning to United States Tires. These two facts are proved by the amazing sales increases of United States Tires —sales increases that are vastly greater than even the greater natural increase in the number of automobiles this year over last —which shows where tire service is.
