To Serve on Jury—
William V. Merrill left this morning for Portland, where he will serve on the United States Federal grand jury.

Superintendent Churchill Here—
J. A. Churchill, state school superintendent, spent a few hours in the city yesterday, taking dinner at the Hotel Albany.

Lecture at Library—
Attention is again called to the lecture on the use of city lots for growing food products at the library tonight. A member of the O. A. C. faculty will deliver the address, which will be interesting and profitable to those contemplating making use of the town lots for farming.

You have a connecting doorway to portiere?

Would you like suggestions from our department as to the kind of hangings that will enhance the beauty of your home and yet be economical?

Whether you purchase curtain materials or not, the courteous attention of our people is at your service. Come in and consult with them and, if you wish, see our selections of curtains.

One Store 15 Years Ago

One hundred and seventy-five today. You cannot say this wonderful growth is a streak of good luck. It's strictly a business proposition, where every man, woman and child entering our doors gets a square deal. In our fifteen years' business not a single store has ever had a special sale for any one day or week—to mislead the public. When an article is once marked it sells at that price. You pay the same as your neighbor—no more, no less. We have no favorites.

TRAPPING A SUBMARINE.

The Wire Rope Net That Catches and Dooms the Vessel.

A submarine net is made of wire rope about as thick as a lead pencil, and the meshes are of great size—about ten or fifteen feet square. The net has floats on top that keep bobbing up and down like the float on a fishing line, and on the bottom are weights that keep the whole thing in a perpendicular position.

The submarine cannot submerge to very great depths on account of the pressure, 200 feet being about the limiting depth. It sails innocently along, therefore, until it pushes its nose into these meshes. The net now trails along on both sides of the submarine, its progress revealing the fact that something below is supplying the motive power.

Perhaps the net suddenly stops. That means that the hidden submarine has stopped, its navigators having made the horrible discovery that they are trapped, or perhaps the net has become twisted in the propeller. Under these conditions the wise submarine rises to the surface. It surrenders, becomes the property of the enemy, and its crew are made prisoners.

If it does not take such action one of two things will happen. The enemy will wait upon the surface until the submarine comes up, or if it starts moving the enemy will follow until the inevitable uprising. But perhaps the surface commander gets impatient. In such a case he can let a bomb down into the water, which will explode when it touches the roof of the submarine. Of course the submerged submarine knows that this bomb is likely to drop at any minute. The psychology of such a situation tends to persuade the imprisoned crew to surrender.—World's Work

High Cost of Artillery.

Always a costly arm, field artillery is more so now than ever, due to the complicated engines it uses. The equipment alone, exclusive of men and horses, for the artillery of a corps in our army reaches a cost of more than $12,000,000. Its visible supply of ammunition twice that amount. For an army of a million men the cost is more than $120,000,000, that of ammunition more than $240,000,000.—Major E. D. Root in National Service Magazine.

No Change.

Patience—Isn't it remarkable how she keeps her age? Patience—Yes, she hasn't changed it in ten years.—Youkers Statesman.
