AMERICAN DIPLOMACY

The "trained" diplomats of Europe have had a rude awakening since the United States became a partner in the war against Germany. Our diplomacy has succeeded where European diplomacy has failed.

Central and South American nations turned a deaf ear to the appeals of the diplomatic representatives of the allied nations. They have listened to the representatives of the United States who for the most part have been educated in the great school of practical politics and boast of no titles or decorations. They have played the game and played it well. It is American diplomacy which is welding North and South America into a powerful and invincible sword with which to beat down the soldiers of the Kaiser and substitute justice for might as the correct means of settling disputes among the nations of the world.

When Uncle Sam entered the world war, Germany did not realize her strength and the allies did not thoroughly appreciate the value of their new recruit. They reckoned only the possibilities of raising men and money.

The moral influence which the United States has brought to the allies is tremendous. She is the one nation now engaged in the war (with the possible exception of Belgium) which entered it with no thought of acquiring territory, money or diplomatic advantage. She entered the conflict because no other course was open if she was to protect the honor and rights of her citizens.

America must now feed her allies and raise and equip an army which will put an end to the bloody war in Europe. It will take time, it will require sacrifice and it will take men and money but it can, and will be done.

L. J. HYLTON DIED JUNE 4

Louis Jackson Hylton of Mulino, died June 4, and was buried under the auspices of the G. A. R. two days later. He was a Confederate soldier under General Price and served through the Civil war.

He was born in Floyd county, Va., and came to Oregon 28 years ago, living all that time in Clackamas county. His daughter, Mrs. Anna Karl, lives in this city. Other sons and daughters are Mrs. Laura Hendrickson, Mulino; Mrs. S. E. Strawn, Eugene; Louis of Oregon City; James of Twilight, and Dennie Hylton of Mulino.

Mr. Hylton lived to the ripe age of 81 years. He was a kind and loving father and liked by all who knew him.

Ambulance Co. No. 14—

Unusual interest of Oregon people will be directed upon Ambulance Co., No. 14, which is being formed under the leadership of Captain J. Eberle Kuykendall of Eugene. The unit will comprise 91 officers and men, most of whom have already enlisted. Orville Montieth is expected down from Alaska to join in the near future. The unit is composed mostly of students of the University of Oregon, alumni and other college men from other institutions. They leave in a few days for Allentown, Pa., from where they soon leave for France. They expect to be in active service between field and base hospitals in France in July. If any Albany men wish to get into this desirable branch of the service they should communicate with Dr. J. E. Kuykendall, Eugene, Oregon, at once. The company also will accept contributions from any person. They have to complete the raising of $4,530.77 for equipment which the government does not supply.
