NORTHWEST LETTER

Portland, Ore., June 14.—Ralph Stewart, 19, of Seattle, will see his mother here this week for the first time in his life. The two have an appointment to meet at the office of William S. Spencer. Spencer will step out when the boy's mother arrives and mother and son will get acquainted. A few days after the boy's birth, he was kidnapped and taken to Seattle where he was left on a doorstep. The child was turned over to the Washington Children Home Finding society. The organization named him Ralph Stewart, and placed him in a Seattle home. Seven years ago he began a 1,500 mile journey.

Newspapers and the police in every part of the country helped the boy.

A woman at Castle Rock, Ore., she knew a such a case. Yoim.

Stewart had just one clue. His mother's first name was Amy. The boy ran down the clue offered by the Washington woman and located his mother, a white haired little woman about 35 years old. The two exchanged their first letters last Saturday, and an appointment was made for them to meet this week. The boy's father is blamed for the kidnapping, his mother secured a divorce and remarried a year later. She lives near Portland.

You may be too old to enlist for military service but age is no barrier in subscribing for a Liberty Bond, besides, it is your patriotic duty as an American citizen. See your banker today. He will explain.

Don't Lay Up Your Car

Bring your battery to me when it needs repairs or recharging, and I won't hold up your car a minute longer than it takes me to remove your battery and replace it with another.

Stop and let that sink in.

Whatever the make and model of your car, I have a rental battery for your use while yours is being fixed.

This is one of the "Service plus" features that I have to offer you—great convenience added to conscientious, expert handling of your needs by men especially trained for the job.

Service that gives you the full use of your car while a vital part is being fixed, is unique. Keep it in mind.
