PATRIOTIC SUNDAY WILL BE OBSERVED GENERALLY

Churches All Over Country Will Work For Red Cross and Army Y. M. C. A.

Patriotic Sunday will be observed all over the United States next Sunday. Allan H. Banks of this city, is in receipt of instructions from the State Sunday School Association, asking him to boost the idea and swell attendance at church and Sunday school that day.

The main purpose is to raise money for the Army Y. M. C. A. of which $60,000 is Oregon's and Idaho's share. The Army Y. M. C. A. does as much for the well soldiers off duty as the Red Cross does for the sick and wounded. The nation needs $5,000,000 for Army Y. M. C. A. buildings, equipment and maintenance for 1917.

Next Sunday in nearly every church in the United States the ministers will discuss the conservation of food. The problem is a serious one and the United States government asked the telephone companies to notify the ministers of the country to make this subject a topic for July 1. Manager Geo. Senders reports that he has notified all ministers in his district, and with but one exception all have replied favorably.

LIQUOR QUESTION HAUNTS SENATORS

Bonedry Amendment to Food
Control Bill Makes Passage of Bill Uncertain.

OPponents OF AMENDMENT MAY CONDUCT FILIBUSTER

War Tax Bill Also Held Up
Pending Action; Liquor Revenue Lost If Passed.

Washington, June 25.—The liquor question hurled confusion, dismay and vast uncertainty into the Senate food control fight. Just as it appeared that the Administration was holding the upper hand with the aid of powerful Republican support and was about to force the passage of the bill this week. The bone dry amendment the House adopted has completely upset everything.

The wets who were favoring the bill heretofore, are now hedging. The dries have split on the extent prohibition should now be inaugurated. Danger of the liquor contingent filibuster is admitted. In the meantime Senator Chamberlain, who is in charge of the food bill, declared that the Senate would agree to the House amendments including the bonedry section.

As a result of House action, the war tax bill now being drafted is left in mid air. Approximately seventy-five thousand dollars were to be levied under the proposed bill on wines, and beers. If bonedry prohibition is adopted, a redrafting of the bill will be necessary.

Cigarettes—John Cullin this morning picked up two young hoboes and charged them with smoking cigarettes. They claimed to have purchased the goods in Seattle. Judge Swan fined each of them $4, without which they were sent to the county jail for two days each. Both are under age.

The boys gave their names as Weaver and Way and claim to have come from Washington and Chicago. Here from Walla Walla—Tom Stevens, who has been located in Walla Walla the past few months, is in the city visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Stevens.

Leaving for California—Mrs. H. Duncan and daughter, Naomi and Bernice, leave today for San Diego, California, where they will make their future home.

Athens, June 25.—The entire Zaimis ministry has resigned. It is reported that Venezelos, ex-Premier and president of the provisional government, is now en route to Athens and will probably be named head of the new cabinet. Venezelos, it is known, left Saloniki, and arrived in Southern Greece.

King Alexander is known to have great admiration for Venezelos and allied officials say that Alexander could not make a more popular move than to appoint Venezelos. Such a move, it is declared, would immediately reunite the monarchial and provisional governments.

HONOR GUARD GIRLS SELL ALL THEIR PAPERS

Invading the city like a flock of New York newsboys, the Honor Guard girls, directed by Miss Janet Dawson in the absence of their leader, Miss Mae Ballack, Saturday swooped down on all corners and sold every one of their 500 Telegrams for a total of $56.35. This averaged better than 10 cents each. Some of the girls got papers back and resold them. The squads took different sections of the city, one bunch of fair maidens going to the trains and canvassed the passengers. The girls had lots of fun and the Red Cross netted a fair-sized sum.

Of the 20 girls who sold the following sold more than $2 worth: Ruth Ross, $9.39; Carolyn Cannon, $8.20; Ina Smith, $6.69; Anne Dawson, $6.40; Helen Gibson, $2.89; Ruth Beal, $2.37; Lois Nebergall, $2.

CYRUS WALKER TELLS OF VISIT TO CANNERY

The Brownsville Cannery is now working exclusively upon gooseberries, putting them up in large tin cans. The berries are first put through a machine with revolving knives that cut off the stem and blossom ends. The berries are then dumped into a large sink where they are washed and then the women workers deftly scoop them up in their hands and place them in the cans. Then these are taken to a table arranged with an endless chain process that carries them upright into and through a steam heated box, cooking them by the time they emerge on the opposite side.

They are then carried along to where the can is automatically lifted to a cover in waiting that is placed on top and pressed down. The cans are dropped down and carried on to where a sufficient number are loaded and are carted off, to be stacked for shipment.

Manager Hutchings, garbed the same as other men workers, helps speed the work. His lady stenographer, when not needed in the office, helps fill the cans. The manager remarked to the effect that she would rise in the business world. And she will. She is not "putting in time" and watching the clock, just for the money in the job. Mr. Hutchings is desirous that people visit the cannery, and inspect the work for themselves. He and employees will gladly show you around and explain the workings of the machinery.
