TOO MUCH CIRCULATION

The Judge took the county printing away from the Herald, in violation of law, because the Herald would not protect him in his wasteful policy by a veil of censorship.

The above statement is as near the truth as the Herald usually gets in its editorial or news columns, but it may be worth while to refresh the mind of the editor by referring to court records which fortunately have a better reputation for veracity and fairness than the young man who wrote the lines reprinted above.

The county printing is awarded by the county court. The Herald knows that the court consists of three members, Judge McKnight and Commissioners Butler and Irvine. The judgment of these three officials was unanimous and the Democrat is under no political or moral obligations to them for rendering a fair and a just decision.

The contract was not let in haste. Sworn evidence was submitted by both parties in interest. Letters were mailed by the County Clerk to every subscriber of both papers and the answers to those letters are now of record in the county court house. They give the lie to the circulation claims of the Herald and if the editor of that publication had either discretion or political sense he would have maintained a painful, but dignified silence.

If the Herald was convinced that the award of the county court was contrary to law it had its right of appeal to the circuit court. This the Herald declined to do, thus confessing judgment and placing the seal of its approval upon the justice of the court's decision.

Instead of taking the case to the higher court and having the entire question again threshed out on its merits, the Herald opened its editorial safety valve and employed a high priced solicitor who is now combing the county in a mad and fruitless effort to obtain what it has never had in the past—a bona fide circulation. In the meantime it depends upon the self-assurance of its editor for its advertising patronage.

Commissioner Butler has been held up by the Herald as a model for Judge McKnight and Commissioner Irvine to follow. We presume that its editor will not now assail Mr. Butler after having said so many complimentary things in regard to his excellent work as a member of the county court. In conclusion we therefore print a remark made by Mr. Butler at the time the final award of the county printing was made.

"The trouble with the Herald is that it has too much circulation and not enough bona fide subscribers."
Since then we have had a good deal of respect for the judgment of Tom Butler.

OAKVILLE

The Christian Endeavor rally held at Oakville Friday night was attended by delegations from Albany, Shedd, Holley and Tangent.

Each society furnished some part of the interesting program of music and speeches.

The address of welcome was given by Jennie Vineyard, president of Oakville society, and was responded to in a few well-chosen words by Myrtle Curry, county president. The address of the evening was given by Dr. W. P. White of Albany, in his usual earnest and impressive manner. After the program a social hour was enjoyed and the Oakville society served ice cream and cake.
