Goes to Portland—

Percy Ralston went to Portland today to spend the week with his brother, Arthur Ralston. Both are members of Fifth Company, C. A. C.

Widmer is Out—

C. R. Widmer, who was injured very severely June 22, by being struck by a Corvallis and Eastern train, which wrecked his auto truck at the Granger Crossing, was able to leave the Corvallis hospital at the end of last week and is now on the high road to recovery. His broken shoulder and the wounds about his face and head have healed up, and while he looks like he had been struck by a cyclone, or something worse, Mr. Widmer says he feels pretty good and is happy to be alive. The injury to his back seems not so serious as was at first thought. —Gazette Times.

Accepts Position—

E. N. Parker has accepted a position as brakeman on the Southern Pacific on a run out of Portland. He left this morning to take up his work immediately. Mr. Parker was a former Democrat carrier.

Halsey People Here—

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Ward of Halsey, are in the city today on a short business trip.

Leaves for East—

Stanley Powles, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Hulbert and Mr. and Mrs. Will Ballack left this morning for Portland where he will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Park Satnacker while attending the convention of the National Educational Association. Mr. Powles is the superintendent of schools at Berlin, Wisconsin. Mrs. Powles will join him in Portland on Thursday and they will leave immediately for Milwaukee, Wisconsin, by way of the Grand Canyon.

Motor to California—

Mr. and Mrs. Ohling and daughter, Elma, left today in their car for Sacramento and Santa Rosa California, where they will visit Mrs. Oling's sister. They may drive on down to San Diego, where their son, Merrill Ohling, is stationed with a hospital corps. The Ohlings expect to be gone for two or three months.

Council Will Meet—

The City Council will meet in regular session tomorrow evening. Among the matters to be considered is the proposition of purchasing the water plant of the Oregon Power Company, and arranging for referring the matter to the people at a special election.

TALE OF A MIGHTY WARSHIP.

And the Wreck of Her Armor Plated Turret and Twelve Inch Gun.

Captain Haddock, who succeeded Captain Smith of the Titanic as commander of the White Star line, was made commander of Great Britain's dummy fleet. The dummy fleet was an auxiliary that had an important duty in the North sea in the early days of the great world war.

The fleet consisted of converted merchantmen. In most cases the conversion was superficial. The vessels included liners, tramps and fast channel steamers. Paper mache made an important substitution for armor plate and armament which helped the deception. Guns of all kinds were mounted, the big ones, however, being more awe inspiring at a distance than effective as weapons.

With this armament the dummy fleet kept up a steady patrol and at a distance deceived many a German observer into reporting the presence of warships.

Admiral Haddock's flagship looked an imposing vessel in her "low visibility gray," with twelve inch guns fore and aft. Naval discipline in the dummy fleet was an innovation that had not worked into the souls of the erstwhile merchant mariners; otherwise this story might have had a sadder sequel in a court martial.

One of the tars was having his "time off." The air was good, the sea was calm, and he sought to beguile the hours with a comfortable smoke on the promenade deck (she was a converted liner). He sat on the stern rail dangling his legs. His teeth lost the grip on his pipe. The pipe fell. The tar made a wild grasp into space. He, too, fell and crashed through the armor plated turret and smashed one of the twelve inch guns. —Wall Street Journal.

You'll always find our every-day prices less than so-called sales at other stores. Cooperative buying for 175 busy stores for spot cash means values that can not be duplicated by the one-store merchant, and you'll never find odds and ends and old shelf-worn goods here. Better do your trading every day at The Golden Rule and play safe.
