HUMBLING THE PRUSSIAN
 "We are pounding a sense of inferiority into every pore of the German mind," said Lloyd-George in a recent speech. "As long as the Prussians have an idea of superiority in their minds Europe will not be a decent place for people to live in peace. It will be easier after this. The Prussian has many virtues, but a sense of humility has never been among them. The Prussian is now being taught the virtue of humility with a fierce and relentless lash."
 This is not a mere bombast. It is the sober truth, so admirably phrased that it sheds a bright light on the fundamental fact of the war.
 The British premier is a good enough psychologist to know that the only important thing about a man or a nation is the way that man or nation thinks. It is of no avail to chastise people for wrong-doing if their minds remain unchastised. Prussianism as we know it is a disease of the Prussian soul which has apparently infected the soul of the German nation. It is the disease of sinful pride.
 It shows itself as a haughty sense of superiority to all the rest of mankind. It is at the opposite pole from the Christian virtue of humility. It is diametrically opposite to the self-obliviating quality of mind that we expect to find in a "gentleman." Germany has become the bully among nations.
 It is literally true that there will be no living with Germany until Germany learns humility. Unfortunately, it seems incapable of the lesson except through bitter suffering. So the task in which England and her Allies have been engaged becomes also our task. In accomplishing it we shall have to use the weapons that Prussianism itself has forged. We shall have to apply hunger and fire and sword.
 It is a tremendous undertaking, to cast out that devil of Prussian pride. But we have faith that we can do it. And when the Prussian governing class is reduced to a proper state of humility, and thereby rendered inoffensive to the just and lawabiding portion of mankind that seeks nothing except through peaceful competition, then Germany will be once more a good neighbor as she was in olden days.
 The spirit of the German people need not be broken in the process. Only, they will be regardful of others' rights as well as their own. And in the change of heart they may acquire an honest self-respect which they could never feel while puffed up with the dangerous and silly delusion of superiority to the rest of us mortals.

TRENCH TALES
 "I got it in both legs before we reached the German lines," a youthful Australian was relating his experience at Vimy Ridge. "But, glory be to God, I fell into a shell-hole and lay down as snug as you please in a clever place. I lay there for hours and I heard a great roarin' noise comin' near me. I knew it was a tank and I prayed it would not come near me, me bein' hid in the shell-hole. But I heard it go roarin' past quite near and then it got stuck, and I could hear it fightin' and strugglin' to get clear. I never saw it."
 "Later in the day, a lad I knew came by, slightly wounded. 'Hallo, Peter,' says he, when he saw me in the hole. 'For God's sake have you a water bottle with you?' says I. 'Me legs is both broke and I can't move to get a drop o' mine.' He threw me down his water bottle and it bein' full of rum and water, it kept me goin'. Then it began to rain, and another lad, passin' by saw me and threw me down a water-proof sheet. Late at night the stretcher-bearers got me. So they were all Good Samaritans the way they helped, them that saw me lyin' by the wayside."
