NAPS BETWEEN EDITIONS.

They Have a Nice, Easy Going Way on Newspapers in Japan.

Eleven o'clock at night in an American morning paper is the rush hour. Typewriters click frantically, and copy boys haven't a minute to sit down and digest the baseball scores. It's the time of night when the editors are glibly awake.

I chose that time, therefore, to visit the office of the Nichi Nichi, in Tokyo, says Archie Bell in the World Outlook. I wanted to find things moving at their height. The Nichi Nichi is a big morning daily, popular with the masses.

Presenting myself at the sidewalk entrance of the big building in which it is published, I roused a couple of sleeping porters, who allowed me to pass. Every one I encountered in the anterooms was asleep, with the exception of some office boys, who were preparing tea. It was like walking through the palace of the Sleeping Beauty, where every one had been sent to sleep in the midst of his task.

I was taken to the office of the telegraph editor. Fortunately, he was awake.

"The first edition has gone to press, so virtually every one has gone to sleep," he said to me, "but we will take a look around."

And what he said was true. We went to editorial sanctums, one after another, and when we didn't nearly stumble over an editor asleep on the floor we found him stretched out asleep on his desk.

Japanese editors do not believe in keeping awake at night when waiting for the late news to come in. If they do not publish it today or tomorrow they may be able to get it in the next day. What is the use of killing an article because something of greater importance arrives later in the evening? The newer staff will make good "copy" for another day.

The Real Wonder Workers
"Do you believe in fairies?" asked the sentimentalist.
"Fairies?" granted the practical person. "What did they ever do? It took us human beings to put over things like locomotives and telephones and electric lights." - Washington Star

Glaciers Are Brittle.
The substance of a glacier is brittle, though solid, and its descent down a valley is caused by its constant fracture, produced by gravitation and the sliding forward of the whole mass.

Money.
If money is the root of all evil there are undoubtedly times when it is possible to secure a medicinal extract from the root. - Sir Hardman Lever

POWER OF MONEY.

And the Danger That May Come With Undue Love of Wealth.

It is convenient to have money. We all see many ways in which we would like to use it. But when we have money we are all apt to wish it just a little more. Who is to say what is the exact amount it is right that we should possess? Wishes, tastes, desires, differ. We ourselves do not know what our limit should be.

With too much money one is likely to become conceited, to lose sympathy and be hard hearted and more than likely regardless of the means he takes to add to his store. If he has too little he may be envious of others, embittered toward society, tempted to dishonesty, or there may be real suffering for need of what money can buy. No one, not even the man in a prison cell, can live in any degree of comfort without money. It is necessary to life.

Yet there are many things of greater value than money, things that money cannot buy, that are necessary to our welfare. Undue love of money is a poison in the soul, eating out what is of most worth. We may pay too high a price for its acquisition. We should judge our desire for money by our purpose, our motive in wanting it. Money is a power for good or evil, as we choose to use it. - Milwaukee Journal

THINK BIG THINGS.

Give Your Imagination Play and Try to Live Up to Your Dreams.

Isn't it true that the only thing which makes it possible for us to perform the daily drudgeries of life is the hope for better things which blooms in our hearts?

Hope is romance. Ambition is romance. All the fine, true inspirations of life are romantic. Romance leads to achievement, unless it blossoms in the mind of a lazy, shiftless creature who is incapable of action.

The man who leads a forlorn hope is romantic. The hero who gives his life fighting a dread disease to which he succumbs, but against which he has incurred humanity, is romantic. Romance is the thing which makes it worth while for men to sacrifice material comforts and die on strange fields of honor.

In a materialistic world, where we have to deal with the facts of earning our living and fighting for place and position, the thing which lifts us above blind instinct is romance. Cherish your dreams, for they give you a glimpse of beauty and make you will long to struggle over cruel mountains and harsh plains to the pot of gold at the rainbow's end. Dreams give respite from dreary reality and urge on to all that is big and fine. - Exchange

When Lafayette Was in Jail.

After our Revolutionary war, while Lafayette was trying to reach Holland to escape enemies at home, he was seized by the Austrian government and imprisoned as a dangerous character. His wife also was imprisoned at Paris during the reign of terror, but succeeded in getting to Vienna and pleaded with the emperor for her husband's release. Lafayette's friends in this country did what they could in his behalf, and finally, on the 25th of August, 1797, he was set at liberty after five years' confinement in a dungeon. During this imprisonment two American friends of Lafayette—Francis K. Huger of Charleston, S. C., and Dr. Eric Bollman—made a daring attempt to liberate him, for which they both were imprisoned.

Horses Have Quick Ears.

The horse is really one of the best listeners in the world. He is always on the alert for sounds which concern or interest him. When he looks at any thing he turns his ears toward it to observe the better whether any sound comes from it. If a horse is particularly interested in your driving of him he always turns his ears backward toward you, but if he has no concern on that subject or if he sees anything ahead that interests him he keeps his ears pricked forward. A horse hears the whinny of another horse at a greater distance than the average man can hear it. - Boston Transcript

Vegetable Cutlets.

Try the following recipe on your "meatless day." Take equal quantities of carrots, turnips, parsnips and onions and sufficient potatoes to form half the mixture. Slice the onions and brown in a little butter. Boil the other vegetables and chop them up finely, mixing them with the potatoes, which should be mashed. Season and add some chopped parsley. When cold form into cutlets and fry in egg and breadcrumbs. - London Answers

A Cheerful Mind.

"A merry heart doeth good like a medicine." The correctness of this latter statement is seen in the fact that it is much easier for a person to recover from an attack of illness if he is cheerful and hopeful than when he is either indifferent as to his recovery or despondent of it. This is also altogether aside from the strength of purpose which often helps one to throw off an illness by sheer force of will.

Just as the bodily health is improved by cheerfulness so the mental condition is equally benefited by it.

Enlarged Veins.

A physician says that continuous drinking of alcoholic beverages is a common cause of the distention of minute blood vessels, particularly about the face and nose. These blood vessels are influenced each time alcohol in any quantity is taken into the system, and finally the elasticity of the walls is destroyed, and the veins become permanently enlarged, and "red nose" and "red face" result.

Colony Convicts.

Virginia was the only colony which sent convicted convicts, and very few were sent there, and most of those sent were political prisoners. The first warlike element predominated. In 1771 parliament forbade the transportation of convicts to English colonies in America.

Frequent Colds in the Heads.

Recent investigations show that disease of the sinuses may be suspected when persons suffer from recurrent headaches and constant inclination to a cold in the head. An X-ray plate of the sinuses is advised, and antiseptic vaccine, say the experts, should be used in the treatment. - Exchange

The Bible and The War

Is Present Struggle Long-looked-for Armageddon, or Will Another Follow?

Series of thrilling lectures on Prophetic subjects to begin in big tent, on old Central school grounds Sunday night.

Evangelist Phil. C. Howard, noted Bible expositor whose lectures in many of the principal cities of the Pacific Coast, as well as throughout the East, have always attracted large and appreciative audiences, will speak every night this coming week, beginning Sunday night, in the large canvas pavilion which has been pitched on the old Central school grounds for that purpose. His long experience as an expositor of the prophecies qualifies him to speak with authority on present day happenings, which are free of charge and highly instructive, are strongly evangelistic in their nature, and always result in the conversion of many souls.

To the Many Wearers of Holeproof and Luxite Hose, who have so patiently awaited the arrival of our new supply, we announce the arrival of a reasonably complete shipment of the
