Returned from Vacation—

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Nutting and Mrs. John Bassett returned Saturday evening from their outing at Westlake, Lane County.

Left for Vacation—

Miss Elizabeth Peacock left this morning for Newport where she will spend her annual vacation.

Holbrook Visit Here—

J. C. Holbrook and family of Springfield, were over-Sunday visitors in this city. They were guests at the homes of Mrs. Carl Sox, Mrs. L. E. Tillman, Dr. M. H. Ellis and other relatives of this city.

Arrived from Portland—

Dr. Earl Fortmiller arrived in the city this morning from Portland for a visit at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fortmiller.

Went to Seattle—

Manager Everett Cummings of the Globe theatre, left this morning for Seattle, where he will interview some of the leading motion picture agencies and theatrical producers, getting a line on his run for the coming season. It is Mr. Cummings' plan to bring the best to be had to Albany, in spite of the fact that there is no competition here, and to also sign up with Klaw & Erlinger, theatrical producers, for their Pacific Coast bookings for the coming season. The latter, however, depends upon the attitude of the people and the support which may be counted on for bringing high class productions here. It is possible that before booking any of the big shows that Manager Cummings may have to insist upon a certain number of tickets being pledged owing to the heavy losses sustained by the house and visiting companies in the past. It is purely up to Albany this winter.

Held Good Roads Meeting—

A good roads meeting was held at Cascadia Saturday night by the party of government and state officials and the Portland, Lebanon, Albany and other valley men who are making the trip over the old military road across the mountains to inspect it with regard to probable improvements in the near future.

Many Attend Convention—

About eighty members of the local Christian church went to Turner yesterday where they attended the sessions of the state convention which has been in progress for the past week. D. Loyd Morgan, pastor of the local church, with his wife, has been camping on the convention grounds during the week. On Wednesday a number of the ladies of the church were there in attendance upon the sessions of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions. There were no services in the local Christian church yesterday.

Went to Springfield—

J. C. Holbrook and family returned this morning to their home in Springfield. They were accompanied by Miss Mae Tillman who will visit at the Holbrook home for a week.

Dutiful—

Our idea of a dutiful daughter crystallized into definite form yesterday when we saw a blooming young matron of this neighborhood stand by with an air of quiet resignation and exemplary patience while her mother did undoubtedly kindly intended things to the baby.—Columbus Journal.

AMERICA TO HER ALLIES

I send my men in khaki
With singing on their lips—
My engineers and artisans,
My captains and their ships,
But yet another sending
Shall greet your lifted glance,
When the eagles of America
Are on the wing to France.

My fierce white eagles,
They shall gather in their might,
In hundreds and in thousands
They shall circle for the flight
With wings that bear the lightning,
With eyes that pierce the night.

My soldiers and my sailors
Shall prove their wrath and will,
My engineers and artisans
Shall serve you of their skill,
But yet a greater service
The four winds shall advance,
When the eagles of America
Are on the wing to France.

My fierce, white eagles,
They shall gather for the feast,
Like a swift cloud of judgment
They shall turn them to the east,
And God shall steel their talons
For rending of the beast.
—By Theodores Garrison of the Vigilantes.

The Engineer Corps.

The duty of the corps of engineers in the United States army in the time of war consists of planning and constructing fortifications, procuring information concerning the topography of the country, supplying maps, selecting position for camps, constructing or destroying bridges and often work requiring technical skill; in time of peace, to plan and construct permanent fortifications and coast defense, build lighthouses, superintend river and harbor improvements, survey and establish boundaries, etc.

IT WAS VERY GOOD COAL.

That It Was Spiced With Gunpowder Made It All the Better.

In reviewing his early life in Constantinople Sir Edwin Pears tells an amusing story of a coal contractor who was supplying the British fleet with fuel. A commissariat officer on one occasion went to him to say that a man-of-war had just arrived in the Bosphorus and was ordered to proceed to the Crimea with distinguished officers on board, but it was short of coal. The contractor answered that one of his small sailing vessels had just arrived laden with a cargo of coal and that he would arrange to have it discharge the fuel directly on board the man-of-war.

A day or two later when the contractor saw his manager he asked what had been done with about ninety kegs of gunpowder that had been stowed on the top of the coal.

"Oh, we found all the kegs empty," said the manager. "There was no powder to remove."

During the next three weeks the contractor lived in constant dread. He feared that every ship coming from the Crimea would bring news of an explosion on the man-of-war and an order for his arrest. He became ill from anxiety.

One day, a fortnight later, he heard with fear and trembling from his inner office the voice of the commissariat officer asking to see the merchant who had supplied the ship with coal. He put on a bold face and went out.

"Yes, you're the man," said the commissariat officer in a loud voice. "You gave us 300 tons of coal. It's the best we have ever had. Instead of our having to stop the ship while we cleared the funnels whenever there is a puff of smoke goes with a puff that clears the funnel itself. I want 300 tons more; let me, it must be of the same quality."

ARMY ADMITS "CANTAMS."

Ranks Opened to Men Five Feet One Inch Tall and Weighing 110 Pounds.

Small men make as good soldiers as big men in the revised opinion of the war department, which has instructed recruiting stations to open the ranks of the regular army to men who are no more than five feet one inch in height and weigh only 110 pounds.

The order was issued on the basis of a recommendation made by Surgeon General Gorgas, who advised that good men were being kept out by the minimum height and weight limit of five feet four inches and 120 pounds.

As a matter of fact, however, recruiting officers had been instructed not to enforce rigidly the height and weight minimum limits, and there are a considerable number now in the army who are below the five feet four requirement.

The new orders will have a wide effect in national guard recruiting and probably in selections for the national army. Regular army standards govern both services in a general way.

"TEAR GAS" TRAPS DESERTER.

French Soldier, Deserted in Home by Police, Ends Life.

Tear producing gas, such as is used on the battle front, was utilized by the Paris police to capture a deserter named Thoulou, who resided then in his apartment in the Rue Andre del Sarte. Protected by a steel shield, a policeman forced the armed recruit, forced a hole in the door and inserted a tube for the gas. As soon as he realized the situation Thoulou shot himself. His wife, half suffocated, opened the door. Thoulou died soon after.

The Difference.

"Well, what of it?"

An Electric Range
Is a Thing of Beauty

Something every woman admires and wants in her kitchen but not for beauty alone.

Because electric ranges employ no open flame for heat—they are clean and safe.

Because they are clean they are sanitary

Because they are not subject to the whims of dampers and drafts and flues they are reliable.

More than all else—modern housewives prefer and use electric ranges because they are economical and produce superior results with less trouble. Ask about the new cooking and heating rate—and decide to take advantage of the low price time payment offer before it expires.
