The Tailor-made predominates here as in the new suits, but also some very novel skirts in Silks are shown in this premier display.

The simpler models are favored. Tailored modes are in pleated effect or shirred at the waistline. Cluster pleats with panels are many times introduced. Belts and pockets of self-material are notable features. Average length is mostly just below the shoe top and with about two yards which gives the straight silhouette and does not interfere with walking. Materials depend upon the character of the skirt. Tailor-Mades in serges and gaberdines.

For Sport Wear Plaids, Worsteds, and novelty wools are shown.

Our Prices Range from $5.75 to $14.75

In Dressy Models the satins and Taffetas are the most favored.

Greys and Blacks in splendid materials in all sizes. The large sizes are especially good in these colors.

CITY NEWS

Henry Hector Entertained—

Saturday evening the Maccabee lodge met in the lodge rooms in the Schmitt-Hunt building and immediately adjourned to the residence of Henry Hector in North Albany, where an informal session was held. Mr. Hector has been in poor health for the past few weeks and not able to attend the lodge sessions. Under the leadership of J. W. Cox, the party went over in automobiles and took along a copious supply of ice cream, cake, Blitz, and other things to eat. A long table was spread in the dining room and all thoroughly enjoyed the spread and the occasion.

HOME READING COURSE FOR CITIZEN SOLDIERS

The Democrat will publish each day one lesson issued by the War Department. While of interest to every person those who are expecting to be drafted will find them very useful, and they are advised to clip and save them daily.

This course of thirty daily lessons is offered to the men selected for service in the National Army as a practical help in getting started in the right way. It is informal in tone and does not attempt to give binding rules and directions. These are contained in the various Manuals and regulations of the United States Army, to which this Course is merely introductory.

Lesson No. 2.

(Preceding Lesson: 1. Your Post of Honor.)

The National Army, in which you are to take your place, truly expresses the American character and ideals. It is a great democratic army. It includes men of all degrees of wealth and education, chosen through fair and open selection by lot. All are brought together on terms of equality. There has been and there will be in this great National Army no favoritism and no "pull." The poor man will drill side by side with the man who has been raised in luxury. Each will learn from the other. The place each man makes for himself will be determined by his own work and ability.

Developing Soldierly Qualities

The question as to whether it is better to join the colors now or with a later contingent is not worth arguing, since the decision has been made for each man by lot. An ambitious man, however, will be glad to join now. It gives him a better chance for promotion. The commissioned officers of the first contingent are packed men who have voluntarily gone through the hardest kind of training. The officers of later contingents will be drawn largely from the men enlisted in the first contingents. There is plenty of opportunity here for every man to use his brains and his energy and to earn promotion according to his worth. This does not mean easy or quick advancement. It means only that you will have your fair chance—and you would ask for nothing more—to develop yourself and to climb upward step by step.

In order to make good in the National Army you must, first of all, fit yourself to carry with credit the simple title of "American Citizen-Soldier"—one of the proudest titles in the world. This means that you must develop in yourself the qualities of a soldier. The more quickly and thoroughly you cultivate them, the greater will be your satisfaction and success.

There is very little real difference of opinion as to soldierly qualities.

They have been determined by ages of experience. Weapons change, but the soldiers who handle the weapons remain much the same.

Three Basic Qualities

There are three basic qualities, without which no man can be a real soldier even though he may temporarily wear a uniform. They are:

- Loyalty.
- Obedience.
- Physical Fitness.

A man without these qualities is in the way and is a source of weakness to an army, both in the camp and on the field of battle.

The Articles of War of the United States set forth the military crimes which are punishable by heavy penalties. Among these crimes are desertion, cowardice, insubordination, drunkenness while on duty as a sentinel, sleeping while on duty as a sentinel, disclosing the watchword, and giving aid or comfort to the enemy. Run over the list and you will see that every one of these military crimes can result only from the absence of one or more of the three basic qualities of a soldier.

Loyalty

A soldier's loyalty governs, first of all, his feelings and actions toward his country, his government and his flag. There can be no such thing as half-way loyalty. The slightest compromise opens the door to treason. But the soldier's loyalty does not stop here. It governs also his feelings and actions toward the army and toward all the officers under whom he serves. It absolutely forbids disobedience among both officers and enlisted men, or disrespect toward those in authority.

Going a step farther, loyalty governs also the soldier's feelings and actions toward his own regiment, his own company and his own squad. Without this form of loyalty there can be no real comradeship; without it you will never feel that personal pride and satisfaction in the service which should mean so much in your army life.

Obedience

The second of the soldier's basic qualities is obedience based on discipline. Without obedience and discipline an army can not long continue to exist; it will quickly degenerate into an armed mob. As the infantry Drill Regulations put it, discipline is "the distinguishing mark of trained troops."

Frequently the recruit, with his in-born dislike of being bossed, makes the mistake during his first few weeks in the army of resenting the fact that immediate and unquestioning obedience is required of him. He quickly learns, however, that obedience enforced throughout the army is in all situations the chief safeguard of the rights, the comfort and the safety of every man, from the raw recruit to the commanding general. It is a guarantee that the small number of unruly men or cowardly men to be found in every group shall be kept in check and forced to comply with rules made for the benefit of all.

Military discipline is always impersonal. Obedience is required not merely of you, but of every man in the army. It is required of officers by their superiors with fully as much strictness as it is required of you. It will become your duty, whenever you are given authority over other men, to demand from them the same full measure of obedience that others will require of you.

Discipline is not only essential in developing the army, but also in developing your own character as a soldier. "The soldier who is by nature

Don't Do Sentry Duty Any Longer

You can dust, sew or read while the Electric Range is cooking your dinner.

An electric range will not only release you from sentry service in the kitchen, but it will also effect actual economies in your cooking by making foods go farther through reduction of shrinkage.

An Electric Range Keeps the Kitchen Cool

No surplus heat escapes into the kitchen from an Electric Range. Three degrees of heat—high, medium, or low—available instantly at the turn of a switch, enable you to secure just the right temperature for your work. From the standpoint of cleanliness, convenience and safety, an Electric Range is unequalled.

Call today and inspect the various styles on display. Note particularly their simplicity and ease of operation.
