seized the public utilities, arrested the ministry and then placed the power in the hands of the Duma. A temporary committee of wonderfully capable men from the Duma and workmen's deputies was formed who directed the affairs of the government from then on. It was thrilling to see regiment after regiment march to the Tauride Palace and offer their services to the Duma. Manifestoes were immediately issued by the Duma which were distributed by the soldiers in automobiles. They were thrown around over the city and thus people were kept informed of the progress of affairs. The regular newspapers were not issued. Soldiers in automobiles with cocked pistols and guns patrolled the streets searching for the secret police and gendarmes who were concealed in garrets and on roofs of buildings and fired into the streets. Several hundred people soldiers and police were killed before the soldiers succeeded in forcing the police to surrender. Some of the police were barricaded in a bank building just a few steps from our apartment and we could hear the pop, pop of the machine guns as they fought the soldiers. I staid in the house during that mix-up. The Revolutionists burned the police stations, Palace of Justice, where many political prisoners had been condemned to exile, and broke down the doors to the Peter and Paul fortress, and freed the political prisoners some of whom had passed many years in underground cells. Some shop windows were broken, but I have told you practically all of the damage done. The royal palaces were unharmed. The big iron gates to the grounds of the winter palace have the Royal Crest in gold. These crests were untouched simply covered over with the red flag of the revolution. We were never without lights and water. The street cars did not run for about a week, but by that time, to uninformed, no evidence of the revolution could be told except the red flags seen occasionally and the substitutions of National for Imperial in the signs on buildings. Of course Russia has many problems to solve, but I am sure that all will be adjusted in time. There is one thing sure: public opinion will be a mighty factor in influencing the acts of the nation as a republic but which did not affect it at all as a monarchy.
We are not getting letters from you as often as we should. I am sure that the terrible German submarines are the cause of our not hearing from you. We are so proud of Wilson. He reflects the spirit of the American people in language so convincing, elevating, and noble that I think all Europe and the whole world cannot but admire the high ideals of our country.

I cannot send postals, or could not under the old government, but I am buying many that will give you ideas of what Russia has been and is.
Here from Wisconsin--
Mrs. William Ward of Lancaster, Wisconsin, arrived in the city last night and is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harper of Sunrise.
Here from Salem--
Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Miller were visitors from Salem yesterday.

Buy All-Wool Clothes

AT a time when every dollar spent ought to be looked at twice before you part with it, just remember that you ought to look more than twice at what you're going to get for it.

Hart, Schaffner & Marx have based their whole business on the belief that all-wool is best for men's and young men's clothing; that cotton mixtures, though somewhat cheaper, are not economy.

They have maintained a strict all-wool standard in spite of steadily rising costs of fine wool, in the face of the clamor for cheaper clothes. We know that the men and young men of America share this belief that all-wool is best; is real economy.

Good clothes, like everything else, cost more than they formerly cost, but if all-wool is best and cheapest in the long run, you ought to have it. It means more style, more service, more satisfaction. It's worth the price.

In spite of the war the weavers of England, Scotland, Ireland and America have supplied the wool goods for these clothes.

We believe we are upholding and strengthening the call for economy in offering these all wool clothes, with an unlimited guarantee of satisfaction.

The Hart, Schaffner & Marx label in a garment is the sign of all-wool and an absolute guaranty of satisfaction; a small thing to look for, a big thing to find.
