A GOOD RECORD

It's been a pretty good old congress, after all. We've criticized and belabored it; we've prodded it to get up more speed; we've even questioned its loyalty; but now that the tumult and shouting have died, we recognize that with all its muddling and balking, it has written a big legislative chapter in our national history.

Six months ago we were ready to declare war, but were about as ready to fight as a new-born babe. We had a ridiculously small army, an inadequate navy, a total lack of industrial organization for war purposes, a chaotic transportation system, no plan of action—only a general desire to lick Germany, and a feeling that we could do it.

Today we have in France more troops than our whole army amounted to six months ago. We have over 1,000,000 men under arms, with our military plant in effective operation, and the assurance of turning out a total of more than 2,000,000 within a year. We have more than doubled the personnel of our navy. We have finished scores of war vessels, and started building hundreds more. We have added millions of tons to our merchant shipping. We are far on the way toward giving the allies complete mastery of the air. We have helped England reduce the U-boat menace to a minimum. We have raised several billions of dollars, and arranged for a total yearly expenditure of 20 billions. We have undertaken to finance our allies for the remainder of the war, and provide them with whatever food and equipment they need. We have stimulated our production, and lessened our consumption. We have completely reorganized our national transportation and industry, and every other material phase of our national life. We have adopted unprecedented government control of national activities and resources.

All this huge mass of innovation and reorganization has passed through the hands of congress—public opinion and public will shaped into legislation for the accomplishment of the national purpose. Some of the lawmakers' work has been careless, some of it unwise perhaps, but on the whole it is pronounced good. Congress has earned a rest, and earned the thanks of the country.

"A STRANGE TRANSGRESSOR" WILL STAR LOUISE GLAUM

"A Strange Transgressor" is the title of the new Triangle play starring Louise Glaum, the celebrated "peacock siren," at the Globe theater tonight. It was written by John Lynch and directed by Reginald Barker.

Louise Glaum, as Lola Montrose, the woman who believes love to be the only bond necessary to join man and woman, is said to present an unforgettable characterization. Through her intense devotion she defies the laws of convention and scoffs at outward hypocrisy.

BOYS RAID VINEYARD; SPRINKLED WITH SHOT

Three Scio boys concluded last Wednesday night to make a raid on a grape vineyard. They were armed with a .38 Smith & Wesson revolver and a .22 caliber rifle. They moved nicely until one of the boys tripped against a string which was attached to the trigger of a gopher gun. A loud report resulted with the charge of shot sprinkling all of the boys, none of whom, however, were seriously hurt. It is understood the boys say the grapes were sour, especially after the gun was fired. Scio Tribune.

S. F. HUNTER HAS EVERYTHING NEEDED BUT BIRDS

Fine equipment does not always get the birds. Yesterday a man who gave his address as San Francisco hired an automobile and a driver and went in quest of the festive game bird—the Mongolian Pheasant. After searching all day in vain—and perhaps missing a shot or two—he was on the point of returning to the city empty-handed when his driver, no doubt, told him that there is a place near the city where they raise the birds in captivity.

He was driven to the Ringneck Pheasant Farm, where the proprietor, Chas. Alexander, let him have two nice cocks for the small sum of $6. The S. F. hunter was armed with the best shotgun on the market, his apparel was of the latest and most approved style for hunting purposes, he had a big supply of ammunition, money was plentiful, and, in fact, he had everything but the birds.

As he was leaving he asked the driver how he would explain having the pheasants alive.

"Oh, these birds flew into a wire fence and got caught, and it was not necessary to shoot them," said the driver.

It is said that Alexander has sold birds to other city hunters this year who were unable to bag any.

ENGINE BACK FIRES; BREAKS MANS LEG

Because a traction engine which he was cranking back fired, Ernest Nofziger, who resides ten miles southeast of Albany, will be unable to work for several weeks. His leg was broken by the fall after he was thrown in the air a distance of five feet. Dr. Davis was called and reports that he is getting along nicely.

GOOD CHEER BOYS FOR U. S. MARINES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—"Good cheer bags" are to be supplied all the United States Marines serving abroad.

Mrs. George Barnett, wife of the major general commandant of the Marine Corps, has started a fund to supply the sea-soldiers with the comforts needed overseas.

An organization called "the Marine Corps Knitting League," with headquarters at Merion, Pa., has already supplied the Marines with extra woolen garments. Friends of the sea-soldiers are doing their bit by helping to make bith movements a success.

CAMP LEWIS POST OFFICE HANDLES MAIL

CAMP LEWIS, Oct. 12.—(U. P.)—In amount of mail handled, the Camp Lewis postoffice is one of the largest in the state of Washington. With 35,000 men in training, an average of one letter a day is mailed daily by each one. The incoming mail is probably even greater.

Monday is the busiest day in the camp postoffice, as most of the men write a few letters Sundays. Last Monday 55,000 letters were mailed.

Two motor trucks from the quartermaster's department are kept busy hauling the mail to the regiment headquarters. Although the present post-office building is twice as large as the one originally planned for the cantonment, it is overcrowded and additional room will probably have to be provided when all the 50,000 men arrive.

DIDN'T SALUTE COLONEL

CAMP LEWIS, Oct. 12.—(U. P.)—Colonel H. L. Cavenough was walking across the parade grounds the other day. A soldier was leaning against a building and did not move as the colonel passed.

Colonel Cavenough stopped. "How long have you been here?" he asked. "Three days," said the man, "how long have you been around here?"

MANY STATES REPRESENTED AT U. of O.

EUGENE, Oct. 12.—(U. P.)—Thirteen states besides Oregon are represented in the student body of the University of Oregon this year. Next to Oregon, Washington leads with 21 students; Idaho second with 19, and California third with 13. Four Chinese students are enrolled and one is a native of Germany.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Columbus Day was observed this afternoon at Albany high school. A short program was given. The high school orchestra, under Prof. E. A. Moses, played several selections. Rev. O. B. Pershing, the new pastor of the First Presbyterian church, gave an address on Columbus, and several numbers were given by high school students.

Following the exercises the students and faculty went out to the football field where a game is being played between the high school team and a mixed team from the faculty.

HOMER CHILSTROM PROMOTED BY U. S. MARINES

Homer Chilstrom, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Chilstrom of this city, has recently been promoted to the position of sergeant in the United States Marine Corps. Sgt. Chilstrom enlisted in the Marines over three years ago. Since that time he has engaged in extensive sea travel and has visited Guam, Honolulu, the Mexican coast, where he was stationed at Maratani. He has been stationed at Santiago, San Domingo, Haiti Island, for more than a year. He received the appointment of corporal shortly after arriving at Haiti, and his recent promotion comes as a recognition of his abilities.

With less than a year to serve, his parents expect him home at the expiration of his enlistment period. He is a former student of Albany high school.

MARINE INSURANCE IS CUT ONE THIRD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(U. P.)—Thirty-three per cent cut in the cost of government insurance of crews crossing the submarine zone is considered a further evidence of waning submarine effectiveness.
