LENGTHEN YOUR LIFE.

Add Fifteen Years to It by Simply Learning How to Live.

Fifteen years is the length of time one may add to his life by applying what is now known of personal hygiene. This statement was made by the Roosevelt conservation commission in its report on national vitality. The findings of the commission reversed the impression of a generation ago that the average human lifetime was a fixed allotment decreed by fate. It teaches that our doom is a variable thing and that it is more or less in our power to control.

Learning how to live is the secret of how one may add fifteen years to his life. Individual hygiene, or the hygiene of personal habits, according to the commission, contains possibilities of self-improvement far beyond what ninety-nine persons out of a hundred have ever realized. In other words, only 1 per cent of people today know how to live. The other 99 per cent are victims of improper living habits and the customs of our so-called civilization. They have not learned to order their lives according to their physical needs. They are content to tolerate bad air, bad food, imperfect teeth, wrong posture, improper clothing, constipation, self-drugging, alcoholism and other conditions of the average life.

The 99 per cent who have not learned how to live, says the commission, are responsible for the increase of 41 per cent in the country's death rate from wear and tear diseases in twenty years. Wear and tear diseases are said to be the byproduct of civilization, not that civilization is all wrong, but that people have not yet learned to adjust their habits of living to its demands.

A Dismal Room.

An eccentric character died in London a few years ago at the age of ninety-one. Long before his death he ordered his own coffin and had it placed in his bedroom, which was hung, by way of pictures, with the funeral cards of his friends. This preparation seems to have had the effect of longevity on the old man, for in spite of his gruesome forecast he lived long beyond the usual span.

Excusable.

"Remember," said the floorwalker sternly, "the customer is always right." "But, sir," expostulated the clerk, "in this case I was exercising a privilege to which I am entitled."

"What do you mean?"

"The lady I was arguing with is my wife."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

An Explanation.

"I wonder what the author meant who talked about silence that speaks." "I guess he meant what you don't hear when deaf and dumb people talk."—Baltimore American.

Everything we endure patiently is a key to something beautiful we could never enter otherwise.

NOT A BIVAL OF THE SUN.

This Shows How Pure is the World's Brightest Artificial Light.

Perhaps you know artificial light in the form of the 100-watt candle power or half incandescent at the falls of Niagara. When this gigantic installation was made it was claimed to be the nearest approach to real sunshine ever devised by man, and that may be true. But it is interesting to ascertain, if possible, how much it fell short of the actual output of light in our great luminescent and starry world.

Professor Young made a calculation some years ago based upon careful and repeated experiments of the total quantity of sunlight given out by our sun, and he found it to be a quantity represented by candles burning to twenty-eight billion candle power being the sun's output.

How many lights equal to the Niagara installation would it require to match Dame Nature's big luminescence which appears above the horizon so regularly day by day? More big figures! It would require 2,500,000,000,000,000 lights just as powerful as the biggest you have ever displayed "on his own." So even Uncle Sam will have to be awed. The Niagara illumination is "some" light, but old Sol is equal to three and one-half quadrillions of them!—Nathan's Weekly.

Watson and Ireland.

Sir William Watson has earned the right to be termed Ireland's poetical champion, although he was born in Yorkshire and is of Yorkshire ancestry on both sides. Home rulers say that there is no more terse description of the position of Erin than that contained in the famous lines of his "Ode on the Day of the Coronation of King Edward VII.":

"The lovely and the lonely bride
Whom we have wedded but have never won"

His first volume of poems was published at his father's expense. Ten years later not twenty copies had been sold. Six years after the publication of his second volume he had gained no success. Today he is regarded as our greatest living poet.—London Standard.

SOCIETY

A gay party to be held tonight is that for which Miss Elepha Cummings will be hostess at her home. The guests will first visit a "movie" and a slumber party will follow, with all the usual fun at one of these enjoyable affairs. In the morning a delicious breakfast will be served to the guests, who will include the members of the Beta Gamma club and the Misses Bernice Hall and Helen Grigsby as complimented guests.

STORY OF A REVIVAL HYMN.
The "Glory Song" Was Not Written For Financial Gain.
Nothing can be more inspiring than to hear a great congregation sing Charles H. Gabriel's revival hymn, known as the "Glory Song." It is one of the most recent of the hymns of its character, having made its appearance in 1860.

The author was born in the early fifties of the past century. In Iowa, and spent his earlier years on a farm in that state. His melodies are popular.

During the early summer of 1860, while bicycling with a Chicago publisher for whom he was at the time preparing manuscript, he said to him, "I've got a song that is going to live." He then gave the title of and made brief quotation from "O that will be glory."

It will doubtless be of interest to state that the author received only $10 for the copyright and sole use of it, and this illustrates the fact that gospel songs are not always written for gain.

Charles H. Alexander, the singing evangelist of Torrey Alexander fame, has made the "Glory Song" famous wherever the English language is spoken.

Alexander states that to his knowledge the "Glory Song" has been translated into at least fifteen languages and three Indian languages.—Detroit Free Press.
