FRIDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1917.

GERMANY CRACKING

The recent revolt in the German navy, affecting the crews of five warships of the Grand Fleet, appears to have been due to two causes.

First, according to official German admissions, the revolting sailors had been influenced so strongly by the Russian revolution that they had formed a secret, democratic organization after the manner of the Russian soldiers.

Second, the rebels were moved by dissatisfaction with the submarine campaign and a growing disinclination to serve on the U-boats.

Both of these explanations sound plausible, and both are full of encouragement to the American people.

It is evident that the rank and file of the German nation are, after all, susceptible to democratic ideals. The ferment of freedom across the eastern frontier has had its inevitable effect. And American efforts to revive the old, free spirit of the Germans are at last showing results; the democratic trumpet blasts of President Wilson's messages are finding echoes in German hearts. The sea naturally promotes thoughtfulness and freedom. The Teuton sailors have been thinking things over, and they want to be as other men.

The U-boat failure, now universally recognized outside of Germany, must be particularly apparent to the men who are doing the undersea fighting. An appalling number of their craft has been destroyed, some by the elements and most by the enemy. They find themselves menaced more and more by the guns of merchantmen and destroyers, and by the various devices for catching them unawares, and find their work rendered ever more difficult by the clever camouflage of their prey. The latest U-boats are said to be of inferior size, easily sunk or wrecked. And the life is, at best, a rat's life, with the certain death of a rat in the end. What wonder that flesh and blood rebel against the insensate policy that holds men to such hideous and hopeless work?

This time it was the navy. Next time it may be the army. A first revolt may fail, or a second or third. But in the end, if we persevere, the once compact structure of the German war machine will crack and split. The people will assert themselves against their crazy and criminal rulers. Time and the spirit of man are working on our side.

NAVY HAS MADE MAN OF EDGAR DAVIS

Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Davis were at Albany early the other morning to see one of their three sons now in the service. This was Edgar, who went to the navy, has advanced to second-class yeoman, and was on his way from the San Francisco training station in charge of a squad of young fellows being transferred to Bremerton. When he went away the young fellow had a tendency toward physical weakness, and the family was in more or less doubt as to what the navy service might do to him. Instead of doing anything to him, it did a great deal for him, and they found Edgar weighing 183 pounds and as straight as an arrow. He was enthusiastic over his work, and the parents were happy over his condition and his interest.—Corvallis Times.

Lebanon Farmer
Dies in the Hospital

LEBANON, Oct. 19.—(Special to the Democrat)—William H. Reeves, a prominent stockbuyer of this county, died at the Lebanon hospital this morning of pneumonia, after an illness of four days. He came to town last Friday after a buying trip and Saturday was taken sick and removed to the hospital.

He was reared in Grant county, Or., and came to Lebanon eight years ago and purchased a farm on the Santiam river ten miles east of Lebanon, and engaged in a stock-raising and buying business. He was 37 years old and is survived by his widow and one child.

Justice Dugger Serves
Notice on Litigants

It's now Judge Dugger of Scio. The editor of the Scio Tribune has been designated justice of the peace, and serves the following notice upon the people of his community:

The Tribune editor has had the job of justice of the peace wished on to him. So the people will greatly favor us if they will just simply be good and get along without litigation.

Sweet Potato Puffs.

Cook and mash enough sweet potatoes to measure one cupful. Add salt to taste, one teaspoonful of butter, one-half cupful of cream and one well beaten egg. Beat together until light then fill buttered custard cups almost full with this mixture and bake in a quick oven until lightly browned.
