Jazz Dance Good—

The jazz dance given at the armory last night by C. J. McElroy, assisted by his famous jazz orchestra was a great success from an amusement standpoint, although Mr. McElroy states that the financial part of the entertainment was decidedly not up to standard. There were 122 paid admissions, the fee for dancing being five cents for each dance. Over 400 people were in the armory and those who did not dance enjoyed the music as well. Mr. McElroy will return here in the near future, when he expects to greet a larger crowd and put on a dance that has never been equalled for pep and fun.

LEBANON PAPER STRIKE ON

others, while many stuck to their jobs. About 50 of the men belong to the union, but many who do not refused to work or to join the union either.

The strike is called by the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers, the International Brotherhood of Pulp and Sulphite Workers and the International Association of Machinists. Six mills on the coast are affected. Five of the mills, the Camas, Washington, Oregon City, Lebanon, Powell River and Ocean Falls, Canada, mills belong to the Crown-Willamette Paper company. The other is the Hawley Pulp and Paper Co., of Oregon City.

The strike started at Camas. The Camas mill sent an order for mill wrappers to the Oregon City mill. The employees refused to work on it as a "scab order" and struck. The order was then turned over to the Hawley mill, whose employees quit, and it was then sent to Lebanon, which caused the strike there.

The Lebanon workers state that the mill virtually forced them to strike by sending them the "scab order." Some claim that it was a test to see what they would do. But they state that they cannot return to work until the workers of all of the other five are reinstated, and the trouble adjusted.

The main reason for the strike is said to be to force the mills to recognize the union. The following telegram sent to the Willamette Paper Co.'s head office at San Francisco gives the reasons for the strike: "W. P. Johnson, President Willamette Paper Co., San Francisco, Cal. 'Your employees of Camas and Oregon City mills, members of unions, appeal to you, and through you to the Board of Directors, whom we are informed meet tomorrow (Liberty Day), that the following requests be given favorable consideration:

"Time and one-half for overtime and Sunday work; discontinuation of Sunday operation of Paper Mills for 24 hours and all unnecessary Sunday work; 25 cents per day wage increase; no discrimination against employees because of membership in labor organizations; officials of company to meet to hear and adjust grievances of men; reinstatement of discharged employees at Oregon City because of not working on Sunday and because of membership in union.

"If your board cannot agree with us in our contention for the above concessions, may we not ask that the differences be submitted to a Board of Arbitration for adjustment, to which your employees stand ready to subscribe. That industrial strife and cessation of work should not occur in this hour of our country's crisis, all loyal citizens must agree. The conditions of employment and wage increase asked we believe we are fully entitled to. The right to be members of unions, and that grievances of workers may be presented through committees, should no longer be questioned, much less denied. In the interest of peace, humanity, freedom and democracy, we trust this appeal may not be in vain.

"(Signed by Committee of local unions.)"

Everything in Lebanon is union now. The barbers turned the shops union today. The employees of the union are forced to trade at union shops throughout.

Of all the union men, but one refused to strike. The union left men to keep up the fires in the boilers for fire protection to the mills. All entrances to the mill are picketed.

Last night a union dance was held in Lebanon and a large crowd attended.

IMPORTANT TO BE ON TIME

Even the Biggest Men of Affairs Arrange Their Business on Punctuality as a Safe Guide.

A young Kentuckian lost a big fortune by being 20 minutes late in keeping a business engagement, according to the Christian Herald.

The cheerless old fellow with the scythe always gets all that is coming to him. And there is many a bad son of a gun whose time he has had to prod us up to the mark.

Time is cheap and we are apt to think we can fish it as we will. But it is always ourselves we rob, not time.

Maybe you can waste your own time by being late in keeping engagements and feel that the loss, if any, is your own affair. But it is also the affair of the man you keep waiting. You waste his time, too. If your time is worthless, maybe his is not. He may conclude that his time is worth more to him than you are.

In many cases it may not matter much. But one never knows until afterward whether it matters or not. And through false politeness we are usually assured that it does not matter even when it does.

Only the idle and careless, whose time is of the least value, can afford to waste it by looseness in keeping engagements.

It may be hard to acquire the fixed habit of always being on time, but it can be done, and it is worth while to do it.

Great business men have this habit. Men of great affairs, whose time is most completely taken up, are usually on time. It is they who know best the value of time and the importance of saving it by being prompt.

MONKEY'S LOVE FOR YOUNG

Mothers Practically Devote Entire Lives to Their Babies and Fondness Knows No Bounds.

Monkeys are born in almost as helpless a condition as are human beings. For the first fortnight after birth they pass their time in being nursed, in sleeping and in looking about them. During the whole of this time the care and attention of the mother are most exemplary. The slightest sound or movement excites her immediate notice, and, with her baby in her arms, she skillfully evades any approaching danger by the most adroit maneuvers. "At the end of the first fortnight the little one begins to get about by itself, but always under its mother's watchful care. She frequently attempts to teach it to do for itself, but never forgets her solicitude for its safety, and at the earliest intimation of danger seizes it in her arms and seeks a place of refuge. When about six weeks old the baby begins to need more substantial nourishment than milk and is taught to provide for itself. The mother's fondness for her offspring continues; she devotes all her time to its comfort and education, and, should it meet with an untimely end, her grief is so intense as frequently to cause her own death.

Ancient English Tree.

There grows in the beautiful garden of the dowager countess of Derby, in England, an ancient oak tree which is said to be the oldest one in England.

The size of the trunk of this venerable oak testifies to its antiquity, but on a stone seat by its side is more direct evidence. The seat bears a tablet recording that Wilberforce wrote in his diary in 1788 that he well remembered, after a conversation with Pitt, and before descending into the Vale of Keaton, sitting at the foot of "an old tree" and resolving to give notice in the house of commons that he would move the abolition of the slave trade.

The tree in question, which was therefore a good age 130 years ago, is carefully preserved with zinc plates where the damp might gather, and the branches are held up with iron bars, but it bears a goodly crop of leaves, and seems good for many years of life.

Young Man Held—

Last night the police arrested two men, one giving his name as Henry Brill, of LaGrande, and the other as Floyd Stevenson, of Nyassa, Malheur County. While Brill appeared to be over draft age he claimed that he was not 21, and this morning he was released upon receipt of a wire from the officers at LaGrande stating that he is 19 years old. This was obtained from the police records, he having been arrested a year ago last night for destroying property in playing Hollowe'en pranks. The other man is being held awaiting information from the sheriff of Malheur county. Stevenson claims to have registered, but lost his card.
