Great Patriotic Picture at the Rolfe Tonight

America is now facing the same condition in the training of her citizen soldiers that the Canadians faced back in 1914, when the world war was young. Few realize that among those first heroic Canadians there was a large percentage of Americans, many of whom have since come back from the front line with promotion and military honors to their credit.

The valiant American Legion of the Canadian army is the subject of a tremendous motion picture spectacle, "For the Freedom of the World," which will be shown at the Rolfe Theatre tonight.

"The Bluebird" Scores Hit in Premiere

"The Bluebird" of happiness fluttered at the Globe yesterday before a large Easter crowd, and pointed out the way to true happiness. The motion picture was screened under the direction of Maurice Tourneur, and produced by Artercraft, and is truly one of the greatest pieces of art that has been presented by the silent drama in many a day.

"The Bluebird," screened from Maurice Maeterlinck's famous poem by the same name, first had a phenomenal run in New York on the spoken stage. Owing to the massiveness of the production it was never taken on the road on account of the great expense that it would involve.

Manager Hawkins secured the first showing of this play in Oregon, and it was an ideal Easter number. It will be repeated tonight for the last time.
