Vaudeville at Rolfe Theatre Tonight

Hazel Gladstone, the versatile girl who appeared with her sister Emmalyn a few weeks ago at the Rolfe, will appear tonight in a single act presenting a new novel and acrobatic dancing turn which she used over the entire Pantages circuit.

The girls proved to be a great favorite in their last act, and above all they do not resort to smut to get their act over but rely upon their own merits—clean and refined in every way.

No doubt a packed house will greet this wonderful bill. The prices remain unchanged.

Mary Pickford at the Globe Tonight

Mary Pickford's picture, "The Little Princess," from the story by Frances Hodgson Burnett, which will be seen at the Globe today and Thursday, is a reminder of the Christmas season never dead in the child's mind. Christmas trees, roast turkeys, presents, dolls and candy figure prominently in the incidents of the picture. When the Christmas tree is decorated in Miss Minchin's London boarding school, Mary Pickford as Sara Crewe is enacting the humble role of maid-of-all-work at the establishment, having been relegated to that position from that of one of the well-cared for pupils when her father died and left her penniless. The story turns out all right in the end, however, because Sara is rescued by her father's former partner, who arrives at Christmas time with news of millions of dollars' worth of diamonds from the venture of Sara's father in India. Then Sara and Becky the Slavey have a Christmas tree all their own, and things are not half as bad as they appeared to the friendless children.
