

Marriage License—

A marriage license was issued yesterday to Hugh F. Isom and Lila Hulbert, both of Albany, and both over the legal age.

Harrisburg Man Here—

O. C. Drinkard of Harrisburg was attending to business matters in Albany yesterday.

County Agent Delayed—

Owing to the fact that the board of regents of O. A. C. will not meet until the 22d of the present month for the purpose of confirming the appointment of the new county agent, he will not arrive in Albany until that date.

EASTBURN GIVES HIS VIEWS IN STATEMENT

Tells of His Plans in Event He Wins Nomination from County Judge McKnight

To the Voters of Linn County: I desire to impress upon you the absolute necessity of a thorough understanding and unselfish endeavor in working out our mutual problems in Linn county, and as the County Judge is your servant, elected to fill the office to the very best of his ability, I desire to state the policy I shall endeavor to pursue should you see fit to elect me to that honorable position of trust. It is not necessary for me to mention that I have been a resident of Linn county for the past 29 years, and I shall leave to you as to my record during that time, as it is the future that we are most concerned about at the present time.

The office of County Judge in conjunction with the two County Commissioners, should be men of experienced business ability, honest and upright, not bound by any promises other than to do their full duty for the people they serve, securing 100 cents in service for every dollar expended of the county funds. The building and maintenance of public roads is the most vital question before the people today, and I am sure that the desires of the people should be followed by the County Court to the letter, allowing them to control the expending of the finances they have been taxed to raise, and that every dollar assessed from the people for road purposes be put on the roads and not held up by the County Court and allowed to revert back into the general fund to make a good financial showing for the county at the end of each year. If elected to the office of County Judge I shall obey the laws of Oregon to the letter by aiding in securing a competent County Roadmaster, whose duty it shall be to supervise all road construction, and divide the county into road districts, placing men well qualified as overseers of the various districts, sworn to keep an accurate record of all improvements and expenditures made by them, all to be under the direct supervision of the County Court. And I am positive that under this policy the amount expended as salary for a competent Supervisor would be but a trifle in comparison with the money wasted under the present extravagant and haphazard system of road construction. As to the County Agriculturalist, very little need be said by me. It is the people's money and majority should rule. Should the County Court use extreme methods and overrule the demands of the people? No—not and be allowed to retain the office they occupy. The matter of taxation is not troubling the people of Oregon so much at the present time, as the disposition of the funds entrusted to those who expend them. The County Judge or Commissioners have very little to do with the levying of taxes in the State of Oregon, as they are controlled by legislation, which provides certain limitations that must be observed and obeyed. Very little changes have been made in Linn County tax levies in the last few years and, in fact, none that has given the taxpayer any relief as you will observe by looking over your tax receipts the valuation has been raised from time to time but the levy remains practically the same. You know whether your taxes are higher than in past years and whether you are getting value received for the money expended. I have nothing more to add at present, only that your interests are mine, I stand for strict conservation and economy, making every dollar purchase a dollar's worth of material or labor, and on this platform I solicit your votes at the coming election. W. A. EASTBURN.

VAUDEVILLE PROVES HIT The vaudeville at the Rolfe last night proved to be more than satisfactory. It was great. Everyone surely got their money's worth here as "The Versatile Girl," surely has not spoiled her title as yet. The first time she appeared in Albany she presented a singing and comedy act, including some musical numbers. Last night her act was novelty and acrobatic dances, which pleased very much. The photoplay on the same bill is also 100 per cent. The same bill will be repeated tonight for the last time.

MARY PICKFORD AT GLOBE Director Marshal Neilan succeeded in bringing a very realistic touch of the real London life to Mary Pickford's Artcraft picture, "The Little Princess," which will be the attraction at the Globe for the last time tonight, when he secured actual motion pictures of the world celebrated clock, Big Ben, to be used in scenes called for in the novel of Frances Hodgson Burnett, as adapted for the screen by Frances Marion.

The scenario of Miss Pickford's picture called for several views of the famous clock, to be flashed on the screen as Mary Pickford in the role of Sara Crewe drives through the streets of London with her father, Captain Crewe.

"More Where These Came From" Doesn't Always Hold This Year

We don't like to keep harping on the shortage of wool and the difficulty of getting clothes. We have anticipated your needs the best we can and really have a fine assortment of clothing ready for you to inspect.

But the fact remains that, as these assortments of fabrics, models and sizes become broken, it is next to impossible to duplicate our orders. In the whole history of the country it was never harder to buy clothing. It was never before so true that EARLY BUYING PAYS.

No doubt we can take care of you whenever you are ready to come in and select your Spring clothes, but we can take care of you MUCH BETTER RIGHT NOW than we can LATER. There are some clothes buyers in town who figure that the wool situation is likely to be worse before it's better, and they are buying two and three suits in order not to be caught later under-supplied.
