"YOUR KIND OF a MAN for GOVERNOR"

For County Coroner

TO THE VOTERS OF LINN COUNTY:

At the suggestion of my friends, I have decided to announce my candidacy for County Coroner. In so doing, it is my desire to give the public the best service possible.

In connection with the firm of Fisher-Braden Company, I have been engaged in the Furniture and Undertaking business in the City of Albany for a number of years and am qualified and equipped to properly discharge the duties of the Office of Coroner.

If elected, I pledge to the Citizens of Linn County prompt and efficient service, and economical management in the affairs of this Office.

I respectfully solicit your support.

Everett C. Fisher

Candidate for Republican Nomination for County Coroner interesting is the fact that Monroe saw or heard of McEwen and made up conception of it taken from Mr. Salisbury, who plays the part, never for the part entirely from his own Wright's description in the book.

EDITH STOREY LIKES ATHLETIC ROLES

Edith Storey, star of the Metro picture, "The Eyes of Mystery" which will be the attraction at the Rialto Theatre tonight, delights in playing athletic roles on the screen.

"I feel that my role of Carmichael in 'The Eyes of Mystery' is very well suited to me," said Miss Storey. "I just love the type or role that gives me opportunities to wear 'sport' clothes and be a real red-blooded athletic girl who rides, swims and shoots. I love the great outdoors, which develops the girl of individuality and 'go-to-it-iveness'."

In this photoplay Miss Storey is able to do all the athletic stunts which she enjoys. She makes a thrilling escape on horseback, and being pursued by a man in a rowboat when she rides across a stream, she has a terrific struggle in midstream with her pursuer. In other scenes she shows her ability with a gun when, with the aid of a few men, she defends the historic "House in the Mist" from a host of half-breed Virginia mountaineers.

"The Eyes of Mystery" is replete with thrills.

GREAT BIRDS OF OTHER DAYS

Bones Discovered Prove That in the Miocene Period They Were Truly of Enormous Size.

In so far as birds are concerned, some of the oldest fossils, in the matter of time (Miocene), which have fallen into the hands of science, are those representing the great, flightless, fossil avian giants of Patagonia in South America. They belong to the phororhacidae, R. W. Shufeldt writes in the Scientific American.

Judging from such parts of their fossil bones as have been found, they were evidently great terrestrial birds of prey. Some of the species were small, but this is made up for by the others; and in the case of one of them (brontornis) it had a thigh bone considerably larger and longer than that of an ox.

Of all the remarkable flightless birds of this group, however, was the giant phororhacos. It must have been over eight feet in height, with a skull bigger than that of a full grown horse, and much deeper from above downward. We know little or nothing of these birds or what led to their extinction. With its great hooked beak and powerful claws of great size, phororhacos must have been a terror to the animals upon which it preyed. Skulls and some other bones of this bird have been discovered.

"THE EYES OF THE WORLD" COMING TO THE GLOBE

Arthur McEwen, one of the most noted journalists San Francisco has ever produced, is said to be remarkably portrayed in the character of Conrad Lagrange in Clune's big new production of Harold Bell Wright's story, "The Eyes of the World," which will have its first showing at the Globe Theatre on Friday. The likeness, even to facial expression, is so accurate down to the smallest detail that it is said to be startling. What makes the filmed character even more

High Cattle Prices Accompany High Beef Prices

If consumers are to pay less for beef, live-stock raisers naturally will receive less for cattle.

If farmers are paid more for live stock, consumers will necessarily pay more for meat.

Swift & Company pays for cattle approximately 90 per cent of the price received for beef and by-products. The remaining 10 per cent pays for dressing, freight to market, operation of distributing houses, and in most cases, delivery to the retailer. Net profits also have to come out of this 10 per cent.

This margin cannot be squeezed arbitrarily without danger of crippling the only effective means of performing the complex service of converting cattle into meat and distributing this meat to the fighting forces and to consumers.

Swift & Company's net profit on beef during 1917 was only 1/4 of a cent per pound. On all products, it was a little less than four cents on each dollar of sales. Complete elimination of these profits would not affect appreciably retail prices of meat, or farm prices of live stock.

Swift & Company will be glad to co-operate in devising methods that will improve conditions in the meat and live stock industry.
