DIAMONDS AND SKUNKS

A Sermonette by a Friend of Uncle Sam—Col. Corker (ALIAS C. H. Burgergraf)

"By their deeds, ye shall know women and men."
"Skunks by their aroma, you can detect them."
"A German Wolf, by his tracks you can locate him."

Diamonds are diamonds and skunks are skunks. You may take a real diamond and lose it in the dirt and filth, smear it with grease and oil, then take the same diamond, clean it and give it the acid test—it is still a diamond, a bright gem. We find them in real life—we find them in the trenches, "Over There"—some knee-deep in mud, some covered with blood—we find them in factories, shops and garages, sometimes covered with grease and dirt until almost unrecognizable—we find them in the stores and offices, those behind the plow, those who do not shirk a duty, for they know not how—those that not only WANT a Liberty Bond, but make a real sacrifice in order to have one. Others that want bonds, but are unable to purchase one. The latter ones are as patriotic as those than can have Bonds, in the four and five figures, for their hearts are right and they are willing to and do do their duty other ways. These are diamonds, for they stand the test.

A skunk is a pretty and innocent little animal. You can take one and civilize it, give it a bath, brush its fur, put a pink ribbon around its neck, and doll it up and, Oh my! what a nice pet, and sometime when least expected and least desired, said skunkship will prove to you that he is a skunk. These are the animal kind.

The human specie like a diamond, in such a crisis as now will show their colors. They are those that are politely called "slackers," those that will do anything to evade a duty—those that CAN and WILL not buy a Liberty Bond or help their best friend, Uncle Sam, when he needs help. Those that will say: "Why should I subscribe, the state has its quota?" they should subscribe for the same reason that the BEST BLOOD OF THE WORLD IS COMPELLED TO FIGHT THOSE BEASTS OF BERLIN. Lincoln once said: "The man who stands by and says nothing, when the peril of his Government is discussed, CAN NOT BE MISUNDERSTOOD. If not hindered, he is sure to help the enemy." And Lincoln had a habit of telling the truth. Are you any relatives or friends in the service? If so, what would you recommend for these odorous felines? Perfume them and forget it? Or ostracize and boycott them socially, religiously, politically and commercially. Should you hit them commercially you strike them right where they reside and you will hear a howl that would make the wildest coyote thing he is a selfish. And any organization, association or institution composed of those that are known of worth and unquestionably patriotism and all of them doing real service for the Government in various ways, if they do not like the name and stigma of HUN, they should not permit a Hun officer or management to practice German-Kultur-Hun-Policies.

"By their deeds ye shall know women and men"—not words. RAUS MIT DER HUNS!
Those that desire to purchase a bond and cannot meet the requirements of the Government, can purchase one by paying 20 per cent down—$10 for $50 bond and 10 per cent—$5 per month, without interest other than what the bond draws. Give your name to the captain of your precinct and he will do the rest.

CLOTHCRAFT CLOTHES

---With Wear and Service Guaranteed

Wool is very scarce. Frankly, the clothes you buy this Spring are not likely to wear as well as usual, unless they're purchased with EX-PERT KNOWLEDGE—or the wear and service are DISTINCTLY GUARANTEED BY THE MAKERS! The Clothcraft Unrestricted Guarantee, which you'll find in the pocket of every Clothcraft Coat, is a mighty important form of insurance just now.
