The soldier off to camp finds that the telephone man has preceded him It has been the telephone man's job to help make the camp ready for the soldiers. He has gone ahead with the contractors, installing temporary telephone equipment to facilitate the work of construction.

As fast as buildings have been erected, permanent central office equipment has been installed, poles have been set and wires strung and the camps and cantonments connected by additional trunk lines to the central offices in nearby towns and cities.

Notwithstanding the scarcity of material, the large amount of equipment required for these camps has been manufactured and delivered in less than half the time ordinarily required.

As a result of this telephone activity, all the varied telephone needs of these great military establishments are amply taken care of and each camp headquarters is in direct telephone communication with the war department at Washington, and with important military points throughout
