BANANAS

We haven't realized the military value—or the mere food value—of bananas.

Walter Sheppard of Columbus, O., wanted to join the marine corps. They would not accept him because he was several pounds underweight.

The first day he ate two dozen bananas. The next day he ate a dozen and a half. Then he settled down to a dozen a day. He started to gain weight from the first, and gained steadily. It was a pleasant process.

After a few days of this intensive banana diet, Walter found that he had passed the weight limit. He drank a few glasses of water, filled his pockets with bananas to eat on the way and started again for the recruiting station, and was accepted.

The story has a civilian as well as a military application. In this time of intensive food conservation, how many of us appreciate the value of the banana as a cheap and wholesome food? It is at the same time a palatable fruit and a fair substitute for wheat.

If Germany can't win now, she never can.

MISFITS

By F. P. N.

At Scappoose the other day I had a good visit with Biron Milloy. Was unable to see Mrs. Milloy, one of the Democrat's former typos, in the days before the long-fingered machines struck the city.

A great many years ago Miss Abbie Wright was a popular teacher in Albany. She came to Portland and made good so eminently as to be retained year after year.

I also have just met another former efficient teacher, Miss Salome Cowan.

One of the largest apartment houses in Portland is managed by a former Albany woman, Mrs. Ida Brush Buell.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. White, of Seattle, were in the city this week. Mr. White is with the Pacific Asbestos Co. in the Smith block.

Recently met Miss Lillian Brenner, musician, a native of Albany, who now resides here, a regular Portlander.

On the same car today coming from a shipyard was "Dick" Conn, a former Albany boy, in 1878 or 79 a member of Albany's famous base ball team that "licked" Portland, and won the state championship.

A Portland minister, Dr. Boyd, on Sunday stated the fact that war sentiment has become standardized, with just one great purpose in view, given under four heads:

The war must go to a triumphant conclusion. No peace except victory.

All the resources of the nation to be at the command of the government.

Harmony must prevail in the accomplishment of it.
