JOLLYING THEM ALONG

From a late issue of the esteemed semi-official and veracious Cologne Gazette we learn that "the present strength of the American troops France does not exceed 300,000 men. Aso that these few were sent in the summer and fall of last year, and "since then the transportation of men has practically ceased, owing to the ever-increasing lack of tonnage." Also that there is a woeful lack of uniforms, ammunition and other war materials, and our expeditionary forces are almost entirely dependent on supplies furnished by France.

Our troops here at home are in wretched plight. There is little clothing for them. Less than 50 per cent of the men have proper shoes. "So i happens that only half of the men car ent out for training at one time. On their return, the others will put on their boots."

The civilian population is still worse off. "Throughout the United States a great shortage in food supplies has prevailed since November of last year, conditions in the eastern part of the country being such as to come close to a famine."

All this, of course, is good news to the Germans. And it's just as good news to us. We couldn't ask for anyment and press want to jolly along the war-weary German people that way, let them! The shock when the truth strikes them will be all the mor

FARMING EFFICIENCY

There's generally more than one way to do a thing. Most of us don't know how much ingenuity we've got. and how much work we can get done just by using our brains, until we're flat up against it.

This bit of philosophy is inspired by a casual item sent out by the depart-ment of agriculture, telling how one farmer in Indiana has met the farm labor shortage. He had a big farm to work and no men to help him. He hadn't any tractor and hadn't any prospect of getting one in time for the spring sowing. But he had plenty

Well, neighbors who happened to pass along that way were soon edified by the sight of that Hoosier driving a team of six horses hitched to a disc plow, and leading three horses drawing a harrow. "He was working nine borses and two modern farming implements, and doing the work of several men and teams under the old system of farming."

And what he has done almost any man could do, in his own work.
