CONFIDENCE

The internal troubles in Austria, combined with the notable failure of the Austrian arms in their supreme effort, inevitably remind us of Russia. At this time it seems not impossible that there may be a political and military collapse in the Dual Monarchy comparable to that of the Russian Empire.

Such a development would be a greater piece of good fortune for the allies than the Russian debacle was for the Central Empires.

It would not, however, end the war.
We must not be over-sure of an early Austrian collapse, and must not base too high hopes on it when it does come.
It will mean, perhaps, half the victory.
The other half will be still to win, and will require time, patience and huge effort.

Germany will remain. Her defeat will be absolutely certain, once her ally is put out of the game; allied resources and morale will be too overwhelming; but still the Germans may be expected to fight like heroes when they are pressed back upon their own soil and the old cry that they are fighting for their life and homes is given literal application.

It would be a grievous mistake for any of the allied governments to abate one jot of their preparations for the great, final phase of the struggle. It would be a mistake for the people of any allied country to indulge false hopes of easy and early victory. The thing to do is to set to the task more grimly than ever, in the sure knowledge that the harder the blows we are able to strike, the quicker will come the peace we desire.

We had better muster enough power to smash three Germans than prolong the life of Prussianism through over-confidence.

"OVER THE TOP"

There is no twilight zone between success or failure in the War Savings Stamp drive. Seventy-five per cent of our quota won't do. We must be 100 per cent Americans and that means that we must subscribe 100 per cent of the quota which has been fixed for this section of the state. Linn county has never failed to do her full share in the past and she will not fail to respond to the demands of the government tonight.
