To bring the season of music to a close for the summer months, Mrs. Winnifred Worrell will give a musicale tonight in the First Methodist church. A well arranged program has been planned and will begin with the opening numbers at 8 o'clock. The church rooms have been gaily decorated, an abundance of Shasta Daisies being used. A large crowd is expected to throng the church for this delightful musical affair.

Among the piano numbers, those who will appear on the program are: Eudora McAlpin, Louise Collins, Elizabeth Batdorf, Jamie Mize, Geneva Olin, Madaline Ward, Martha and Alice Fisher, Dorothy Callahan, Murial Blume, Nina Propst, who will sing; Mildred Hartsock, Delmar Morrison, Dorothy Clifford, Helen Baily of Tangent, Orena and Volena Jenks of Tangent, Mildred McMahon and Olga Jackson. Three little children will sing, Jack Rhodes Eliot Irvine and Elda Hoflich. Miss Marciel Austin will give a reading. Mrs. James Ewing will assist as organist.

As hostess to the Neos Numphe club Mrs. Clinton Straney pleasantly presided Friday afternoon. The rooms where the guests gathered were attractive with profusions of sweetpeas in baskets, artistically arranged. Knitting and Red Cross work made the afternoon hours pass enjoyably, and later a dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

Another enjoyable social event for which Miss Eleanor Duff was the inspiration, was the theater party of Thursday evening given by Mrs. E. M. Pugh. Several guests were present and attended the program at the Globe, Mary Pickford in Stella Maris. Later refreshments were served in the Elite.

Among the other many delightful theater parties of Wednesday night, one was graciously presided over by Miss Annette Weatherford. The young people were guests at the Weatherford home and passed the remainder of the evening in a pleasant way, after the theater. At the close of the evening dainty refreshments were served. Among the guests were the Misses Lucile Longbottom, Irene Barrett, Dorothy Lee, Marciel Austin and Annette Weatherford, and the Messrs. James Sears, Harold Irvine, Jack Haucksly, Walter Hecker and Clair Hunt.

Miss Eleanor Duff, who has been the motif for many delightful social affairs, was complimented on Tuesday of this week with a dinner at which Mrs. Charles L. Monson presided as hostess. Red rosebuds prettily centered the well-appointed table at which the guests were encircled. Later in the evening several ladies came in to spend the time in music and cards. At a late hour light refreshments were served to the guests.

A jolly motoring party composed of Mrs. Earl C. Brandeberry, Mrs. J. J. Barrett, Mrs. E. M. Pugh and Miss Elenor Duff drove to Salem Thursday and spent the day visiting at the home of Mrs. E. L. Lloyd, formerly of Albany, and Mrs. Gilman.

In honor of Miss Hazel Ross, who left this week on Thursday for California, a number of girls gave a theater party on Thursday evening. After seeing the play at the Globe, in which Mary Pickford was featured, the crowd went to the Elite and enjoyed refreshments.

Miss Florence Fortmiller was a charming hostess of the week when she entertained at a theater party, complimenting Miss Katherine Bain of Poplar, Montana, formerly of this city and Miss Bernice Duncan of San Diego, California. The affair took place Wednesday evening and the group of young people went to see Mary Pickford in Stella Maris. Following the program they enjoyed refreshments at the Elite.
