PRETTY LEGEND OF NIAGARA

How the Great Lakes Joined in Their Wondrous Leap Over the Famous Ridge.

In old, old times, on the highest peak of a great mountain, there dwelt a hunter and his five sparkling daughters. Their lodge was of bright betula bark and on clear days they could see the distant ocean flashing like a silver band. "Come out! Come out!" cried the youngest daughter, the little Er. "Come Su! Come Ha! Come Mi! Come Cla! (The names stand in order for Erie, Superior, Huron, Michigan and St. Clair). Let us away to the sea, where the foaming breakers roar!" So they left their lodge and leaped and sang with happy hearts. Their robes were of blue and chrysolite green and floated on the breeze. Their moccasins were of frozen water drops and their wings of painted wind. And they scampered and romped across the plain or floated beneath the sky, or rushed past valley and hill and field, singing and shouting with glee. At last they came to a precipice of jagged rocks and moss. "Alas!" cried Er, "what a dreadful leap! But we have come so far that we must go on or our father will laugh at us! So come Su! Come Ha! Come Mi! Come Cla! and follow me!" So over the steep they sprang and floated down on their painted wings. They leaped and they sang like happy-hearted birds. Then the little Er cried: "Let us up and down the steep again!" And up and down the five maids skipped and laughed at the sport and foam and called it Niagara Falls. And today, through the rainbow mist, you may see their robes of blue and chrysolite green and their painted wings and their twinkling feet, as the five play in the waterfall.—New York Evening Post.

Back of the Firing Line

Modern war conditions demand that our armies must have behind them national solidarity, the coordination of all the vast activities and an industrial army; many times greater than the Nation's fighting forces.

The Nation's capital is linked with all these varied activities by the toll and long distance lines of the Bell System. Thousands of miles of special wire systems have been turned over to the Government for its exclusive use. Switchboards in the Government departments at Washington have been enlarged and new ones installed. Right of way is given to Government business over all commercial lines, so that the Government chiefs may keep in constant touch with every phase of the Nation's great task and direct its progress intelligently and effectively.

In organizing the military activities of the country, the Government has had the effective cooperation of the Bell Telephone System, which even in peace times reached 70,000 communities and now extends to the headquarters of every Army Department and Naval District in the United States.

FRED DAWSON'S DRUG STORE

The first treaty with Algiers, was negotiated during Washington's administration, cost the United States, for the ransom of American captives $1,000,000, in addition to which an annuity was promised. In 1800 President Adams claimed that the United States had to pay three times the tribute imposed upon Sweden and Denmark.

But this temporizing policy only made matters worse. Captain Bainbridge arrived in Algiers, bearing the annual tribute for the day in a national frigate, and the dey ordered him to proceed to Constantine to deliver Algerian dispatches. "English, French and Spanish ships of war have done the same thing," said the dey insolently, when Bainbridge and the American consul remonstrated. "You pay me tribute because you are my slaves," replied the dey, who was playing the role assumed in later years by the Kaiser. Jefferson had expressed his detestation of the method hitherto favored for pacifying these posts of commerce; and, availing himself of the present opportunity, he sent on Commodore Dale with a squadron of three frigates and a sloop of war to make a naval demonstration on the Barbary coast. The Barbary powers were for a time overawed, and the United States thus set the first example among the Christian nations of making reprisals instead of ransom, the rule of security against these marauders. Tripoli declared war against the United States June 10, 1801.

HOW SHE REMEMBERED HIM

"Such a Friendly Face," Said Woman of Man Whose Name She Had Temporarily Forgotten.

It is something to carry one's commendation in one's face, as the poet Coventry Patmore would have it. At the Eurydice concert a few evenings ago a woman was attempting to describe to her neighbor a man whose personality had impressed her, though she had forgotten his name. "You must know whom I mean," she said. "That man with a beard, who has such a friendly look." "Oh, you mean George Burnham, Jr.," said the other. "Yes, that's the man!" "Such a friendly look!" Could one desire a more endearing description? Which reminds me that when Horace Greenwood and Mr. Burnham first met they were somewhat inaudibly introduced. (Why are introductions usually inaudible?) "I didn't quite catch the name," said Mr. Burnham. "Mr. Greenwood," repeated the interlocutor. "To be sure!" exclaimed Mr. Burnham apologetically. "I knew it was some kind of wood." "And I must confess that I didn't catch your name, either," said Mr. Greenwood. "Burnham—George Burnham." "Oh, yes! I knew it was some kind of ham."—Philadelphia Ledger.

ROOM FOR MANY MILLIONS

Vast Spaces of Siberia That Have Yet to Be Surveyed and Exploited by Man.

The biggest and loneliest land on the globe is Siberia, of which at the present moment there is so much talk, says London Answers. Any one who would set about its conquest by invasion would find the task a herculean one, for it contains nearly five million square miles, and is about 45 times as big as the British Isles! In these vast spaces there is a population less than London contains by a couple of millions, and there are hundreds of thousands of square miles of territory where no human being is to be seen. The mighty rivers of Siberia are almost rendered useless by the fact that they flow mostly into the Arctic ocean, and their lower courses are ice-bound during the greater part of the year, and their mouths are at all times very difficult of access. Arctic Siberia is a vast country in itself, but very inhospitable.

Siberia, it is said, is destined to be the granary of the world; and the opening of the railway across its entire breadth has certainly done much to develop its resources.

Burglars Dread a Noise.

"Noise is the greatest enemy of the burglar and is what he most fears. Bear that in mind if you believe a thief has entered your house." So says Frank McCarriek, lieutenant in Manhattan's downtown detective headquarters, whose long years in the police department give weight to his statements.

"The best of alarms in a household," he continued, "is a glass or chinaware pitcher or similar vessel. Slam it through the window and its crash above will be followed by another as the missile falls to the street or the driveway below.

"Never grapple with a midnight prowler, for he is prepared for such eventualities and has it on you. Generally no qualms of conscience would come between him and murder if there was danger of his being caught."

Exit the Raw Egg.

One of the latest anathemas of medical erudition isheaped upon the head of the hitherto considered benign raw egg. Its sin, according to the New York Medical Journal, is chiefly plain cussed worthlessness. The Medical Journal goes on to say that the raw egg white leaves the stomach unchanged and only feebly stimulates the flow of gastric juice. Cooked egg white, however, emits forth a generous flow of gastric juice and readily unites with the hydrochloric acid. In addition raw egg white leaves the stomach much too rapidly. It is the only protein which acts in this peculiar way; the only one to leave the stomach unchanged. However, in spite of these multifold iniquities, "raw egg white," concludes the medical journal, "is not really harmful, but it must be remembered that in keeping with newer findings it must be cooked."

THE Best Advertisement in the World

IT IS THE TICK of the Clock. It says only one short word, but it says that word over and over.

Here the tick is loud there low.

But always millions on millions of clocks are saying it.

It never stops.

It speaks to a baby's ears, and to the dying hours of an old man.

It speaks in time of joy; in time of grief; in time of idleness, or struggle and stress; in time of peace, or time of WAR.

It never stops.

Always it is telling the old, old story of the clock, "Time Flies."

Always it is repeating the stern lesson of life—"The World Forgets."

It never stops.

And it has made the clock the best known thing in all the world.

Such is the power of reiteration.

Such is the power of persistence.

Such is the power of constancy.

Call the advertising roll of honor, the world-famous advertising-alive to answer.

None ever stopped. All have told their story over and over, and still are telling it.

Advertising stopped is advertising dead.

Advertising brought back from the grave must foot again the long, old road from the very beginning.

NOW is the time to advertise—the only time.

Advertise tomorrow when tomorrow is NOW

Listen to THE TICK of the clock, as it tells you: "Time flies. The world forgets."
