MUST HE WAIT?

Not since Lincoln have such terrible things been said about a President of the United States.

It was the viciousness of the attacks upon him that led to Lincoln's martyrdom. The arm of John Wilkes Booth was steered to its cruel task in the Washington theater by the utterances of Lincoln's vilifiers.

Looking back through history, we see how fearfully wrong were Lincoln's accusers. Looking back through history, we realize how frightfully unjust were the attacks on Washington. It was even said of Washington that he had sold out to France.

Posterity in both cases has righted the wrongs done Washington and Lincoln. In the case of Lincoln, the madman's hand did its deadly work, before his countrymen could do him full justice.

It is over the poor and unresponsive clay in a silent grave that the glory of the martyr's work is acknowledged.

We ought never to wait for posterity to do justice to our great figures. Just judgment should be given them in their lifetime without waiting for impartial history to make reparation.

At the moment when his own countrymen and European peoples are acclaiming Woodrow Wilson, Mr. Roosevelt has virtually charged that our President is in collusion with our enemies, that he is ready to "cheat" the American people, that he is guilty of "treachery"; and he has demanded the passage by congress of a resolution depriving the President of the power to negotiate even with our allies. The Poindexters, Lodges, Smoots and Penroses, powerful leaders, are cheek by jowl in this conspiracy.

Woodrow Wilson has saved the lives of tens of thousands of American young men by using skilled diplomacy with which he raised up insurrections in Germany and Austria. By inciting oppressed peoples to strife for their freedom he has caused rebellious subjects in Germany and Austria to wage war on those governments in the rear, while allied armies smashed them on the battle fronts.

By making diplomacy the great ally of the fighters, the war has been much shortened, with a corresponding saving of thousands of American fighters from mutilation, blindness or death.

Is this great service to be repaid as Lincoln's was repaid? Must Woodrow Wilson wait for posterity to right the wrongs done him by his accusers?

Those who believe in Woodrow Wilson have a chance to register their approval at the polls next Tuesday.—Portland Journal.

MISFITS

By F. P. N.

Never have seen any Misfits from Scio, suggested one of the original natives, to whom everybody in trouble goes, Riley Shelton.

Very few people there who ever lived in Albany. T. L. Dugger, who writes some stirring editorials in his home paper, the Tribune, and wife once had that distinction.

W. L. Cobb and family are former North Albany people.

Prof. Robe has come close to it. He is school supt.

Hugh Perfect runs a farm near there.

Scio is a good business center and has some prosperous stores.

At Harrisburg recently I ran into the Flu, but escaped. For two days I lived on sandwiches, coffee, pie and other baked goods.

Postmaster Tom Anderson and family resided in Albany a number of years ago when Mr. Anderson officiated as county assessor.

J. R. Cartwright, W. L. Wright and a few others, are in Albany enough to deserve mention.

Rev. Davis, former commercial traveler, now has charge of the May & Sanders store, a live wire.

F. L. Board, merchant, is a native of Scio, son of the late Jesse Board.

At Halsey Postmaster Dean McWilliams, wife and son, always treat Misfits royally. Mrs. McWilliams is a former Albany school teacher.

Shedd is the home of the Shedd's, also of many other good people.

Nevin McCormick once married an Albany girl, and now he and Mrs. McCormick are grandparents.

Mrs. Lena McCormick Thrift after residing in Eastern Oregon for several years, is teaching in the Shedd school. She is a former Albany teacher.

Tangent cannot be mentioned without reference to the edska family, who have made good there.

Homer Speer, a former Albany merchant, runs one of the stores.

Mrs. W. J. Smith requested me to speak a good word for Tangent, an easy task.

An experience this week was a ride in the Standard Oil truck, and it is easy to imagine what a ride in a "tank" would be.

Women with gauze masks are seen in the S. P. thru trains—spooky apparitions, and if there is anything, suggestion, enough to give one the Flu.
